It's mid-October and I am at camp watching Dallas and his crew close up The Realm to prepare for another New Hampshire winter. Summer 2013 is officially history and Woody, Sol, Jamie and I have now completed our 10th summer as Directors and Owners.

It has been a wonderful 10 years, and we all feel blessed for the opportunity to lead our unique, special haven nestled in the White Mountains on the shores of Ossipee.

Our "To Do" list has been getting wonderfully smaller from year to year, and our most recent camp improvement was the addition of a philanthropic/social conscience component. With the introduction of the Pihcintu choir in summer 2012, we realized the value of exposing our camp community to different populations of people who aren't as privileged in some ways, but so magnanimously inspirational that our campers and staff felt changed by these experiences.

This past summer, we welcomed Dare2Tri to The Realm. One of the group's founding athletes Melissa Stockwell shared with campers that she was the first female soldier to lose a limb in the Iraq War. Stockwell was awarded the Bronze Star and a Purple Heart, and went on to become the two-time Paratriathlon World Champion, and first Iraq veteran chosen for the Paralympics; Melissa served as the U.S. Team's flag bearer at the closing ceremonies.

It was with this inspired vigor that campers and staff competed in the closest Green and White Color War in Robin Hood history.

Another noteworthy item from the summer was the elimination of screens. Without iPods, Gameboys and the like, our campers were face to face again to enjoy full days of traditional play and social interaction. We saw children coloring, playing on the swings, tether ball courts, engaging in board games...it was a beautiful throwback to camp in earlier times. Superseding our own joy in witnessing the reversion, was the children's embracement of the screen elimination. There was truly a palpable liberation from this electronic vacation.

We charge ahead into this next decade with sustained appreciation for the opportunity to impact children, and excitement for camp's continued evolution and growth.

To the TPJ's, to the TEE PUG JAYS, the LADZ, to the kids who count off like sassy cheerleaders, old ladies, giraffes and anything else we can think of. It's time to hang out, get comfy, and read about the summer of 2013. Think about the sounds of the waves of the lake, the smell of the pine needles or the campfires, the sight of the stars on a clear night on the quad. So TPJ's...count off like the Queen of England...GO!

Remember...the TPJ's dominating The Realm this summer?...How strongly we started this summer?...How we all became the best of friends right away? How exciting it was having you guys sit on our shoulders and greet all our new and returning friends from the bus. Remember...“if you're returning, welcome home, if you're new welcome to the best place on earth?”...Remember the hour-long Gaga tournament opening night?...and tiring you dudes out by making you run round the rink after every game?... Jake's Gaga gloves? And how he'd be able to smash the ball because of this?...Remember how much we played Gaga this summer? It was definitely the TPJ's sport. No one could touch us.... except for maybe the Bards... but let's not talk about that!...I remember getting ribs to eat a few days in, and how filthy you all got too! TPJ's are best in camp for messiest eaters.

Do you guys remember hiking Rattlesnake Mountain? Remember how humid it was that day? That didn't stop you dudes though. You battled through it like absolute champs! Remember flim flammig at the top?!

Remember Ryan doing the splits on a tree at the top of the mountain? Then going on to walk on his hands on the cliff top? Great day! Great determination from you guys. Remember the Mainers Game? Remember every trip out how the TPJ's would spend 98.6% of their money on candy?...How about when we only had 13 of you. One was missing? Remember how we eventually found Pickles riding around the baseball field on a truck with their mascot? I was laughing hysterically the whole time. Remember every time we went out of camp you'd all sing 99 bottles of juice...and usually finish it too? I Definitely remember that!!

Remember how epic the dining hall dancing was this summer? Not only was Henry killing it, Pickles had everyone cheering his name while he did his hip-hop moves, and then a bunch of you were off dancing with the Bards. Remember how little you'd all clean during meals, and the counselors did it? I don't mind, it meant you guys were off socializing with every group on camp! That's what it's all about! Remember post-Color War and singing along to All The Small Things and 1985 and it bringing back all the great memories of Color War? Remember the epic chocolate chip cookie cakes? My mouth is watering just thinking about them!... Something that won't make our mouths water...remember Chase drinking 22 milks in 2 days? Then it coming out projectile style? Eww. Heroic, but eww. How about all the new cheers this summer? OH WHEN THE HOOD GOES MARCHING IN. We yelled louder than any group! It was awesome.

Remember...meeting your big brothers in the Saxons?...and how cool they were to hang out with?...how about pizza night with the Saxons? And sitting with your big brother, learning their name, favorite activities at camp, and them talking about it to all of Boys Camp! That took so much courage but you all did it with ease! You're all pro's up on that stage! Speaking of the Saxons...remember our Saxon aides? Remember how awesome Cody, Hamad and Noah were as counselors with you guys? They loved you as you did them! I bet you're all wishing they are your counselors next year right? Remember getting front row seats to the best Saxon speeches of all time? I know you all took in some very important messages from them that night. They will help you further your camp career in ways now you may find unimaginable, but trust me, you will look back at them and realize how spot on they were.

Remember when...we all camped out at the new Outpost?...and, how beautiful the new Outpost is? Shout out to Iain and Patrick for that one! Remember the campfire we had and how it brought the group even closer than before? You guys said some mature and meaningful things at that fire and it made me so proud to be your GL. Remember when we ate some delicious steak sandwiches at the outpost for dinner? Remember doing a mini Color War with song night, trivia and a spelling bee? The Mighty White Harshmallows took on the Great Green Rhinos? Remember the hysterical ridiculous-off you guys had? I've never seen a more ridiculous than the ridiculous-off! Your skits were so on point when making fun of your counselors and we all had so much fun!

Remember...loving the lake so much we decided to do the Island swim?...how cold it was, but just going for it because we are pro's and do not give up?...how Ryan, Andrew and Pickles all managed to make it there and back?...Remember getting dog tags for doing it?...How we even made a commercial for the island swim because we liked it so much!? Remember how your counselors would watch from warm and dry canoes as you battled through the cold?... and always remember, "clothing optional!!!"... Remember how often we'd go tubing? Remember when Nick's shorts fell down... and how for solidarity Toby pulled his down? Remember the time Chase and Jake, followed by Noah and Pierce, did a 360 in the air? The 5-foot high jumps on the tubes were legit too, you guys killed it on those tubes.

Ahhh, the July 4th carnival is one of my favorite things of the summer! Remember... cotton candy? Ice cream? Cookies? Decorating your own cup cakes? Remember the slip and slide?...the bouncy castle obstacle course? How about getting your face painted or getting married at the top of the quad?

Remember Noah Wheeler? The best psychic to come to The Realm! How about the second half? The HUGE beach party with all of junior camp? The lake had layers of face paint that had washed off of everyone. How about eating dinner together at the adirondack chairs? What did everyone have? Steak and cheese sandwiches? Fried dough? French fries? Corn dogs? Oh wow, best dinner ever?! I think so!!

Who remembers Chuck's favorite day of the summer? Beach Day!! It started with a ridiculous amount of fart smells on that bus! Remember having a huge water fight with your Saxon aides? Flash, Cody, Hamad and Shreibman got creamed! They put up a heck of a fight against you dudes though! Remember the amazing lunch we had? That fried haddock sandwich will never be beat! Remember Pickles' huge dolphin he got? Remember making a mermaid out of you guys by burying you in the sand? SO funny. Remember the swim and cook out back at camp? Got the sand out of our hair and food in our bellies before going to sleep after an incredible day at the beach! Nothing better.

Remember how great Visiting Day was? Your parents and siblings were all amazing and it was so cool to see similarities between you guys and your parents! Remember the parents/staff v Campers game of Dodgeball? Pretty sure you guys creamed us every time but I loved seeing your parents play just as hard as you did. Remember the delicious lunches that were made by the kitchen staff? Those brownies were soooooo good! Remember the Talent Show on the Friday night? How epic was the Scribe dance with the glowsticks? Remember Marco and the eagle? And the intensity of Chanel during the Bard dance? Remember how sad it was when people left? That's the worst part about Parents Day as it means a few people may leave... Remember how we bounced back by planning our ideal Green and White breaks? Remember the naked break? And the airplane break? Great ideas! Remember thinking of the worst breaks ever? Remember the campfire that night where we said our goodbyes? It was an emotional but perfect evening together for the last time.

Remember how often we owned that stage? Remember Ginger Bread Stan? Remember how great you all were acting out DC, Woody, Chuck, Dick, Rhod and of course Ginger Bread stan? Remember performing it to the Brass and Saxons?...and the delicious refreshments we had? CANDY! Remember loving it so much Nick, Andrew, Toby and Ryan wrote the sequel? Gingerbread Stan: The Curse of the Candy Canteen. It's going to be in cinemas everywhere in 2015. Incredible script. If the cast is anywhere near as talented as the TPJ's of 2013 I think many Oscars and Golden Globes are to be won!

Remember...my favorite 5 days of camp... Color war?...the mighty White Royalty taking on the great Green Monsters?...and how about that margin of two points? Remember competing as if your life depended on it, and bro'ing out together in the bunk moments after activities and sports and just chatting about what great games you had? The sportsmanship you guys demonstrated was mature beyond belief and I was SO proud. Remember the pump-ups for all the activities? Remember the staff pump-ups in the dining hall with all the cheers? Remember how we'd cheer for the sake of it at random times?...the 16-15 game of kickball was a highlight for me. WHAT A GAME! Remember the 1-1 soccer game that came down to penalties? Amazing war you guys. We had a blast this Color War. I hope more of you stay the full 7 weeks to experience the fierce competition of Robin Hood next summer.

Yo, how fun was our excursion? Want to know what I remember? For about a week solid, at least 50 times a day being asked "Hey... Rhod, when is excursion?"...Remember... How exciting it was when we finally got to pack for it?...The anticipation of where we were going to end up? Would it be Story Land? Clark's Trading Post? Disney Land?! The possibilities were endless! Remember how great Story Land was? Again, you guys blew all your money on slushies!

Remember the spinning ride? Remember Nick and Chase's slushies in projectile form? I know the poor woman working on that ride does! Remember how they both smiled once they threw up and carried on playing hard? How about taking off our shirts for the photos on the log flume? Great times. Remember Despicable me 2 and how funny it was? Remember making delicious fajitas on the fire? Remember the high ropes course at Cranmore? Oh my word! You guys and staff were so brave. Remember how Rhod just went on the beginners course then left? Haha! Remember Pickles' accident on the zip-line? Remember tubing down hill?

Remember the bungee jump trampolines? Remember the stunning view we could see on the ski lift ride? Remember the giant swing? Remember the memories we made during excursion that we'll never forget? I loved excursion and rounding it off with a delicious Ben and Jerry's with you guys was awesome.

Remember all the random stuff?...the thunderstorm that flooded junior camp?... how we got up at 10pm to watch it from the benches?...the sounds, the sights and the fun of being outside late? Remember our chanting?...lads lads lads ladsladslads... Remember Skippy McFinnigan, our fishy friend? He was awesome. Remember how rain never bothered us?...working out on the quad, during a thunderstorm? Remember being punked by your counselors and ending up with McDonald's?...remember how traumatized Noah was? Remember how comfortable our chair was that we built for Founders Night? Our remember when's will live on forever... and how most of them were about farts? Remember clapping with your elbows at perfect angles with Ellie at the lodge?...and looking at them Ellie Tremayne eyes? Remember WE LOVE BOATS? Remember Tommy's ghost throwing sticks at Chase at the old ODT? Remember the epic water fight against the Infirmary staff? Paula Klausner didn't know what had hit her when the TPJ's got into it!

Remember our last-ever evening activity? It was amazing! Remember...popping balloons at archery? Playing hockey? Kickball and softball and how fat Gord hit the trees for the first time? Remember our celebratory dance for him? Remember soccer, tennis, newcomb, horseshoes? Then rounding it off with an epic bro sesh at our ODT by junior camp? Remember those delicious s'mores? I know I do! Perfect way to round off the summer, by doing all our favorite activities, you guys giving it 110% then chilling with you guys around a fire! Bring on 2014 so we can do it all again!

Nick Barone – The Donut Of My Eye. Nick, everyone at camp adores you. You are quite possibly one of the most impressive Gaga players I've had the privilege of watching and playing against. You rocked as Gingerbread Stan; and I look forward to watching you in the sequel next summer. Gingerbread Stan; The Curse of the Candy Canteen. Keep your eyes peeled, TPJ's, it's going to be huge.

Jacob Baumoeel – As soon as you showed up to camp, you were radiating confidence. Camp is all about being comfortable and being who you are, and you showed you had an understanding of that from early on. You have a big personality and a big presence on camp. That will only grow. I'll never forget how surprised I was to see your dad show up as a Color War judge.

Toby Bloch – You talk more than I knew was possible. Your love for camp is infectious and you're always enthusiastic about everything. Especially tubing. At such a young age, you already have such an amazing understanding of what camp's about. I've loved seeing you and Nick grow as entrepreneurs. I never got a Nick and Toby Cool Stool, though.

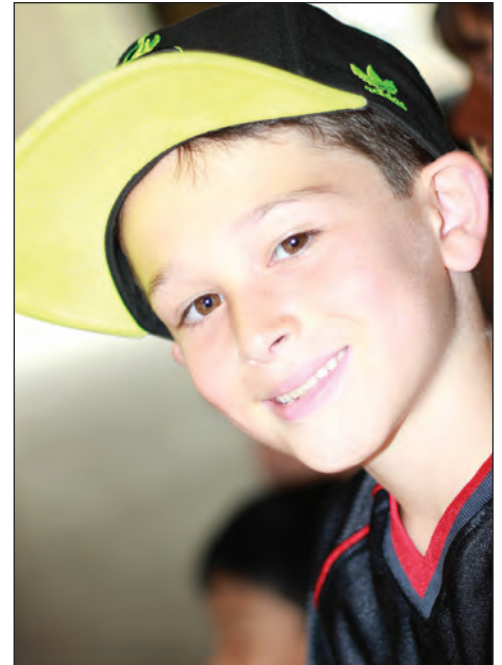

Elias Brandt – It bums me out that I will never see such a fast Macarena outside of camp. It was awesome to see you and Ryan bond over your love for gymnastics. You really came out of your shell this summer. It was amazing to see you blossom from the shy seed you were at the beginning of the summer into the fabulous, outgoing flower you were when you left. Please keep coming back, you bring a lot of fun to this group.

Chase Brooke – I can honestly say hand on heart you are one of the most unique kids I have ever met. I've never met anyone with such an obsession with airplanes and the Titanic. Your weird eating habits (...remember the cottage cheese and jelly breakfast) and hysterical sense of humor keep the group in high spirits. I hope you keep coming back every year. The group loves you, and so do the staff. Have a great year in Florida.

James Dodge – It's probably hard for you to read this while you're in the water with your dolphin friends. They probably enjoy your company as much as this group does. You're a funny dude and you light up the room with your sense of humor. You are also a great athlete, but nobody would hear that from you. Your humility is rare and admirable. You were devastated to have to leave so early, which shows how much love you already have for this place. Please come back for longer to share that love with your boys.

Henry Flug – Seeing you kill it on the dance floor in the dining hall is one of my personal highlights of the summer. I know you found the adjustment of camp difficult at first, but once you got into the swing of things there was no stopping you. You are such a mature young man Henry, and I hope you decide to stay longer next year. It was such a pleasure being your counselor. Keep coming back. Miss you bud.

Noah Grossman – TRIPLE CROWN! TRIPLE CROWN! I hope you're doing your flim flams as you read that. We never did get you to do all three jobs since it was always hard to find you in the dining hall because of how sociable you are with all of camp. You have a real big heart, and you do your best to share it with everyone. I can't wait to see you grow up at camp and learn how to use that big heart of yours to be a great friend and a great competitor.

Joshua Iby – Your athleticism and competitive streak are mind blowing for a kid at your age. Remember dominating West End in the 10 and under tournament in soccer, newcomb, and Gaga? I imagine you being one of Robin Hood's best weapons against those guys in the future. I hope you come back next year and continue to give your all.

Ryan Kao – You're probably standing on your hands as you read this, and I would expect nothing less. Your gymnastics skills are beyond impressive, and your athleticism shines through in all other activities as well. On the field and off, you are a leader of this group. Hopefully you'll stay full next year, as the group is not the same without you. I sort of liked your balloon things.

Sebastian Karlson – Pickles, you have only been here one summer and you've not only made an impact in the group but across all of camp. I am so glad you stayed for 7 weeks; you were a fantastic Color War Captain and you have a great camp career ahead of you. I was so proud when you beat Sam Rosecan in the Joke Off. Please keep coming back for years to come, and bring the hilarious shirts, knock knock jokes and great attitude along with you.

Andrew Schmidt – Whether it be swimming, basketball, newcomb, or any other activity, you showed that you have a knack for anything you put your effort into. You are a leader on the field with your athleticism and attitude. Off the field, you are polite, helpful, and respectful to everyone and your group looks up to you for that. We need you, our llama king, back next year for the full session.

Oliver Snidow – I've never seen a rookie 1st year camper just "get it" as quickly as you did. Some of the stuff you said at the campfire at the Outpost almost brought tears to my eyes. You have a huge camp career ahead of you. You're hysterical, enthusiastic about everything (even bunk cleaning) and have a great attitude. I think you'd thrive during Color War, so do us all a favor and stay seven next year Ollie!

Andres Tello – You are absolutely hysterical. You fit into the group with ease, which isn't easy coming in after 4 weeks. That shows what a loveable dude you are. Your area was always immaculate, you played hard in every sport and more importantly you did all of the above with a huge smile on your face. Keep smiling and coming back and we'll all be smiling with you.

Pierce Terowsky – Pierce, I've been your brother's counselor twice, and was SO excited to see your name on my group list. It's hard to believe you're only 7 years old, yet you compete against the nine year olds in the group with such ease. You were an incredible competitor during Color War, and so kind when hanging with your bunkmates. Thanks for making my job as a counselor so easy.

To my staff – I feel like this has been an extremely successful year for the TPJ's. We started with 14 and finished with 10. TEN!!! That's incredible you guys. This is down to you guys. Thank you all so much for all you did. I couldn't have asked for a better group of dudes to spend my evenings with sitting duty, planning evening activities and teaching these 14 little guys the traditions of The Realm. I love you guys and hope this isn't the end of anyone's camp careers. You all have so much left to give to The Realm.

To my TPJ's – I'm not sure where my camp career is going. Is it over or will it keep going. I am 25 going on 26, and as much as it breaks my heart, there's only so long I can keep coming here and doing this. If this is the end; I couldn't have asked for a better group to end on. This has been the best summer of my life, with so many highs and so little lows. I hope to come back and see you guys growing up and moving up the ranks at Robin Hood. You guys ran The Realm this summer. Play hard. Bro out together. Don't waste a minute.

I love you dudes,
Rhodri

SQUIRES

Gabe's Babes, Gabe's Babes count off!

Now that I have your attention, I'd like to lead us back to The Realm, down past the craft shack, off of the basketball court, and into our little Squire kingdom which housed the best summer we could have ever asked for. Odds are you remember...

The very first day. Slowly but surely, the Squires assemble, lice-free and full of smiles. Remember our very first activity? Gaga: the official sport of the Squires. That evening we take on the quad for our first EA. Remember spud? "Sick-dying-death"? Dog piles and laughter? Way to set the tone for the rest of this amazing summer.

Remember all of our fun adventures? Climbing Mount Major. The view at the top was so worth it. Tanner is in his element and Sam leaves a nice gift at the peak for future climbers. We claim our territory with a smang. Remember Henry's birthday? Jesse's birthday? Caleb's birthday? Trips to Cozy Corner and Pizza Barn. Remember the 10 and under basketball tournament? Whether or not Santi scored in the wrong hoop, WE HAD FUN!

Remember Beach Day? Better known as Cooper's birthday. The whole camp packs up and heads to Ogunquit, Maine. Remember catching rays, waves, and crabs? Eating lunch together on the boardwalk. Rafa interrupts a local's reading time and a shark interrupts our swimming time (I saw it, I swear). We head home sun-kissed and tired on a 5-hour I mean 20-minute drive back to camp.

Remember all of our challenges? Bombardment and kickball with the Archers, capture the flag with the TPJs, basketball against the Scribes and Arrows, just to name a few. Remember College League? The epic four way tug of war. UNC comes out on top, but we all walk away with sweet t-shirts. Remember boot camp? "Pikachu did not chose agility." Remember steal the bacon at the waterfront? Ginsberg manages to take himself down. The ambitious stool franchise? Squires flex our entrepreneurial muscles. Remember every game of kick the can?

Remember the Talent Shows? My favorite nights of the summer. Talent shows are where heroes are made, and this year was no exception. Remember Henry doing Macklemore better than Macklemore does Macklemore? Remember Shoes? Shoes? Oh my god shoes? Dancing with our shoes on our feet and turning our swag all the way up to Thrift Shop. "Hey Gabe, can we go thrift shopping?" You guys brought so much spirit and charisma to that dance. We bopped harder than any other kidz I know.

Remember mini G&W? White Vandals versus the Green Overlords. An impressive performance by all, shout out to Brooks' cracker eating skills and Rafa's mastering of the English language in the spelling bee. Remember water balloon slingshot homerun derby? Water gun camper hunt? Remember when the nurses bombarded our bunk with water balloons? Not cool mom! Remember sharing new cultural experiences? Like Shabbat with our yarmulkes. Wearing the banana suit and squirrel mask. Remember tubing? Canoeing? Candy canteen? Real time mafia? Odds Are? Our night at the outpost under the stars.

Remember when Logan left things on the ground? Santi went to church? Angelo frowned? Rafa got to go to waterski? Brooks sucked at sports? Alex wore underwear (or anything but sweatpants to waterfront)? Iggy wore shoes? Greenfield couldn't fix something? Cooper wore a hat? Caleb wasn't in the bathroom? Tosin wore his own clothes? Henry wasn't rapping? Sam didn't finish a book? Jesse forgot a digit of pi? Liam wasn't filling up water balloons? Tanner wore pajamas? Andres was quiet? Zubi knew where his stuff was? Gabe wasn't getting tickled? Greenberg walked on two legs? Schloss was yelling? Charlie rode a horse around camp? Henry wasn't taking pictures? Daire didn't dare and do it? WE DON'T!

Remember bro sesh? Mafia, Mad-Libs, remember whens, and reading together. Remember following Christopher through his journey in The Curious Incident and exploring the magical world of The Little Prince? Remember passing the Panda. Sharing our thoughts and listening to each other, and coming out of the night a stronger group every time. Thanks for making these sessions so special, and for always falling asleep in my bed.

Remember Green and White? A copter soars across the quad and the war is on! Sam and Santi lead the Green Monsters while Jesse and Alex are reppin' White Royalty. The Squires fight hard in every activity and the war ends with the smallest margin in history. Monsters snag the medley and take the war by 2 points! Congratulations to all for being a part of the best Color War of all time. G&W brings out a spectrum of emotions, from passionate intensity in the field, to a sense of heartwarming appreciation for camp as we discover some of the unique and powerful traditions that make this such a special place. I loved sharing this experience with you guys and I am so proud of all of you.

Remember excursion? Day1: Storyland affirms its reputation as the happiest place on earth. Log flumes, roller coasters, circus acts, magic shows, mother goose, candy shops, and chocolate covered bacon. What more could we ask for? Oh yeah, where was Martha the talking dog? Remember our awesome campsite? Cooking fajitas before seeing Despicable Me 2. Day 2 at Cranmore Mountain Resort. Climbing, jumping, and soaring on the coolest ropes course ever. Everyone makes it across successfully but Schloss needs a little help. Remember the spider bungee, giant swing, tubing, zip line, and the exhilarating chair lift? Last but not least, we stop at Zeb's General Store for candy, soda, more candy, and the best card game every: Squarrels.

The last weeks of camp come all too fast, but are nothing short of exciting. Remember my birthday? Running around camp playing all the games we could and letting me win (or so you say). I'll have the card you made me framed in my room forever. Remember when we BEAT WEST END in soccer, newcomb and gaga? Remember "what's big, green, and always gets played with?" Our awesome new ping pong table we made for Founders Day. Remember GL swap day? Saxon Speeches? Our last campfire? Awards night? Many congratulations to all.

SQUIRES

Remember meeting the remarkable Dare2Try girls? True testaments of ambition, dedication, and heart. Reflecting on their visit makes me think about everything you guys accomplished this summer. From learning how to waterski and wakeboard, to making new friends or even making your beds, to our whole group's completion of the Island Swim. I am so proud of everyone's "firsts" and the positive attitude you put toward trying new things. As Christopher says at the end of the book, "I can do anything." I hope you carry these four simple words with you wherever you go.

Logan Alderman – You are a little ball of energy. Although you came late, you immersed yourself into camp just like you never left. It's great to watch you constantly having fun with a huge smile on your face every day.

Santiago Balbontin – Those two weeks you left us, we noticed...there was way less Macklemore playing in the cabin. We really missed you. You're a great camper, athlete, and friend to the entire group. The fact that you were elected as a co-captain should show you how much love and respect everyone has for you.

Angelo Casabiana – Coming into camp for such a short period of time, you really made the most of it. You made friends with absolutely everyone, and you gave it your all in every period. Please come back for the whole session next summer, we know you will be an incredible full time addition to this group.

Rafael Fernandez Maquieria – Come on baby let's go party! What you did this summer was really brave. The way you made your way into the group was nothing short of impressive. You are confident, smart, and funny, albeit mischievous. It was great to watch you learn and grow.

Brooks Galbraith – Oh Brooksie, you are a ridiculous athlete. Your presence on the court is matched by your friendliness in person. You were missed by all of us when you left. Keep coming back and keep doing you. Please.

Alex Ginsberg – Ally. G! It's amazing to see how much you've matured since last summer. You provide constant hilarity for this group, no matter the circumstance. Your distaste for conventional fashion and hygiene and your love for sports, humor, and friends are what camp is all about. You were a great leader during Color War, just like I knew you would be.

Jacob Greenfield – It was so cool to watch you leave your comfort zone and participate in every activity. The group adores you in part because you are so wildly mature and intelligent. We definitely know who to call the next time we have some tech issues. I love your taste in music and books. P.S. You gotta stop being so cute.

Jacob Iby – You overcame any hurdles with such maturity. Your competitive nature is unmatched and you are a force to be reckoned with. You shined during Green and White and showed everyone what kind of a leader you are. We had a great time watching you grow and discover the magic of camp this summer.

Cooper Malley – You love camp, it's obvious, so never try to deny it. I love your goofy spirit, and I don't know what this group would be like without it. Camp is one of the only places in the world where you can be your 100% true self 24/7, so embrace it every day.

Caleb Nadell – I hope you realize how integral you are to this group. You are so unafraid to be you, and by doing so you set an example for the rest of the Squires. You are one of a kind, and possess a heart of gold. Just in case your NBA dreams don't work out, I think a high school health teacher would be a solid back up plan.

Tosin Odunsi – We counted down the days for you to join us this summer. Your personality and politeness are infectious and you make us Americans look bad at basically everything you do. Not to mention, you're a crazy soccer player. I only hope you can come for a full session next summer.

Henry Rodin – I've been thinkin bout you oh naa naa naa. It's a pleasure to be your counselor. Your smile is contagious and can brighten anyone's day. I love how comfortable you are on stage and on the court, it's so awesome to watch you perform. On Visiting Day, I was not surprised to see how amazing of a brother you are to your lucky siblings.

Sam Rosenthal – If I can give you one piece of advice, it would be to never grow up. You embrace each member of the group for who they are, and you cherish camp for everything that it is to you. It's no surprise you were a captain. You never let your bacon spasms get in your way. Please never change, my friend.

Jesse Schumann – It's been three years now, and I'd do anything for three more. I think I learned just as much from you as I hope you did from me. Scientist, tennis player, artist, you can do it all. I hope you're as cool in Oklahoma as you are at camp. My guess is that you are because I don't think anyone else lives there. Keep following in Napoleon's footsteps, this world is yours.

Liam Seiler – AKA Lax Bro Liam. AKA The Infirmary's Most Wanted. We drafted you for the full summer and you served your duty valiantly. When you're having fun, I'm having fun. You are such an awesome kid, and this group is so lucky to have you (I promise I'm not saying that because of the cupcakes!!).

Tanner Slesh – Good move adding that superman bathrobe to your evening wardrobe. It was appropriate for many reasons including your athletic ability and giant heart. I'm not sure what your kryptonite is yet or if you even have one. But I know that you're the man, Tan Man. And the whole group feels the same.

Andres Urmeneta – You came in with an incredible attitude. Your comfort zone spans far, and you were never unwilling to participate and have fun. Your outgoing personality made something difficult, like coming to sleep away camp for the first time, very easy. Way to go. I hope Panama was awesome.

Santiago Zubillaga – Wow! I'm so happy you came back to camp. As you grow older, you will continue to raise the bar for yourself. You gave camp your all – plus some extra items you may not have meant to leave behind. As I said last year, your smile was all it took to make my day.

Staff – What a crew. Who could have imagined such a squad? You came from all over the world and brought your own distinct personality and style to the summer. You worked so hard and the campers noticed. I will never forget the time I've spent with you and neither will they. I love you all.

Squires of 2012 – Gabe's Babes, writing this only makes me realize how much I'll miss you this winter. I am honored to have been your counselor this summer, and for some of you, these past several summers. I can sincerely call all of you my friends. Never hesitate to reach out, no matter the time or place. Thank you for the best summer of my life. You are the future of The Realm and I'd say the future's looking very bright. Never stop sharing, never stop listening, and never stop being you. Keep doing what you're doing Squires, because you know what...WE CAN'T STOP!

Much Love,
Gabe

PS: Remember quote of the day? A selection of highlights:

"Live Free or Die" – New Hampshire

"After rain comes a rainbow" – Mother Nature

"My Pepsi Cola tastes like Pepsi Cola"
– Lana Del Rey

"Only God can judge us" – Miley Cyrus

" " " – Michael Schloss

"I love pizza" – random Squire

"Pizza is awesome" – still the same Squire

"The tube isn't a double tube, it just has two sets of handles for people with four arms" – Cooper Malley

"It's hip to be Squire!" – The Squires of 2013

ARCHERS

ARCHERS, ARCHERS... It's time to finish up that magic trick, put away the cards, stop shooting hoops, put down your Starbucks frappuccinos, turn off the Kardashians and buckle in as we journey back through the summer of our lives. Archers dominated The Realm from day one to closing, and everyone knows it. I loved every second of the wild ride that was this past summer, and I am so blessed to have become a part of your group. Now enough of this rambling, Khalid is starting to zone out, so let's relive the dog days of 2013.

Remember day one? So many faces, both old and new. Not long after you guys start showing up Scooter Ball is quickly established, the first and only day of its inaugural season. Luke, Dylan, and Charlie already have one night under their belts as they help everyone get settled in. Starting off at 27, scratch that, 26 strong. Who's Alex and what did this Sam kid do with him? Start the summer off right with a game of camper hunt. Gabe comes out on top, and the night is capped off by Lucas naming (almost) everyone in the Adirondacks, earning the first Candy Canteen of the summer.

Remember when... Archers dominated the 16 laps, Aidan and Marc couldn't handle the spider in their canoe, Jedi-Ball, everyone fell for the fake $100, Khalid became the first Kuwaiti lacrosse player, Michael dominated with the d-pole, Matt and Francesco braved the storm, Gabe dominated shortstop, and Matt and Jordan perfected their American accents?

Remember... Mailman took a slice of pizza to the face, Khalid had a rash incident leaving him waddling his way around camp, Oli dominated the slalom ski, Apples to Apples, naming our pillows, nighttime scaring shenanigans, Luke's 22 performance, and Scott's Family Guy voices?

Remember the mountain hike? The long climb up leads to a beautiful clearing to enjoy our lunch. Remember swimming in the falls after? Freezing water never stopped the Archers from having fun. The night is capped off with a visit from our best friends Steve and Earl, fajitas, ice cream, and of course s'mores.

Remember basketball at West End? Didn't really get the memo that we were supposed to score more points, but we clearly won in the fun category. Khalid hits a clutch shot at the end to narrow the margin, and of course the "International Superstar" lineup to end the game.

Remember... when Crystal decided to be a Lancer for a game of camper hunt, Peter's birthday wake-up, waking up early on Sundays to get to breakfast, odds are, a close call in the Squire bombardment challenge, Francesco's Christmas comes early, Jake cleans every table, Podl flops in Danish, abs class, showering in the lake, and "if you don't win, then you lose"?

Remember the 4th of July carnival, Ricky and Khalid get married, Aidan cranks out a side flip, the magician creates the first G and W hype of the summer. Can it really break before PVD?!!

Remember...that one softball period, Max being Max in everything, Danish for EA and nobody can stay on their feet, Labes wakes up to a little furry friend on his back, Podl drinks his first soda, and Nico makes it rain 3s.

Remember when...Max was using a real language, Khalid had shoes on, Sez was bad at something, Luke's hair looked bad, Charlie's voice got deep, Podl was normal, Ryan wasn't smiling, Edoardo had brown eyes, James and Nick were on time, Peter wasn't ticklish, Goodman had a job, and Sam was unathletic?...We don't!!!

Remember Beach Day? Archers lead the charge to Ogonquit. Not long after we enter the water there is a "barracuda or shark (or Wheeler) sighting." I still think Barracuda. Remember body surfing, getting candy from the boardwalk, making a body rub with the sand.

Remember...The best EA ever, capsizing our boats, catfish/dragonfish, Pajama jump skits, Max's banana phone, the Friars clean our tables, and finally Dotun arrives? Quickly making his presence known on the soccer field and basketball court.

Remember PVD? Khalid and Lucas' dads show us where their soccer talents come from, basketball drills with our parents, the longest game of knockout ever, Rink gets a little too hot, luckily we go cool off at waterfront. Remember Podl's last night? Classic Podl always wearing his Rae-Bans, belly flopping off the tower, time trials in the Adirondacks, Max somersaulting up and down the quad, Edward comes in and lowers the flag.

Time for the last 3. Lee and Andrew arrive to round out the group, leaving us 11 strong for Green and White. Shortly after arriving, Lee suffers a severe but not so real injury on his arm. Remember EA on the quad with the Yeomen? About to start a big "Woh game" when all of a sudden Sez points to the sky and shouts "Chopper!" Quick, everybody down to the waterfront. What's that thing hovering over the lake? Follow it to snack, out to the far-far field. Could this be it? The chopper lands and out come DC and Jamie donning their Green and White shirts, hats, and canes. This is it!!!! Head over to the fire truck on the soccer field and Green and White is upon us.

Congratulations to Peter and Khalid for being named captains, and Luke and Dylan as their co-captains. Watching you guys compete made me so proud. You went hard in everything you did, but remained friendly nonetheless. You are all fierce competitors and great sports, and it was so enjoyable to coach your activities. In the end, Peter, Luke, and the Green Monsters (isn't that a wall at Fenway?) came out on top, but not by much. 2-2-2-2, 2-2-2-2, Everybody!!!

Remember Excursion? Labes dupes everyone with fake packing, but one short day later we're off. First stop, Dunkin Donuts. Enjoy our donuts in the van on the way to Liquid Planet Water Park. After finishing the slides in record time, the group is crazy for food. Remember the impromptu trip to Wal-Mart? Scavenger hunt leads to some absurd finds. Head back to the campsite and get set up. After we finish our delicious steaks, Dick arrives with a birthday cake for Andy Friedman. HBD Andy! No questions, everyone back in the van. Arrive at the drive-in movies to meet the Bows. Some of us watching Despicable Me 2, others peering over at The Conjuring, and some even enjoying the back of their eyelids. Khalid falls off the van, but is back up quickly.

ARCHERS

Remember day 2? Wake up to s'mores, and head on over to Monkey Trunks. Archers dominate the course and hit the zip lines with our favorite pal Earl. Remember the ice-cream buffet? Remember go-karting? Dot cutting people off left and right. Time for our last activity; bowling! Everyone gets in their groups for intense games of candlestick bowling. After a long 2 days, finally time to head home and enjoy our last few days in The Realm.

Wait what? Why is there an extra bed in our bunk? What's that say on the comforter? Zach Bohm?!?! Remember frantically searching around camp for Zach, meanwhile Dick sabotaging us by hiding him in the back of the bunk. Remember when Ricky did it twice in one day, and Khalid's tube twerking in our last activity.

It was an incredible journey we had, and I am so happy I had the chance to get to know all of you. It was truly a pleasure to be your Group Leader, and I hope you all recognize how much this group has ahead of it. At such a young age, you already love camp and are a huge presence in The Realm, and I cannot wait to see you all running this place in a few short years. Keep coming back, keep being goofy, and keep doing you. You are an awesome group and I am honored to be able to call myself a part of the Archers of 2013.

To my staff – All I can say is wow. You guys killed it every second of every day. The fact that out of 7 of us only 2 had worked at Robin Hood prior to this summer is something that only now crossed my mind for the first time, because you all seemed so experienced. You made my life so easy on a daily basis, and I felt confident leaving the group with any of you. Almost as importantly, we had a blast doing it and our personalities combined so well; not to mention we were the most cut staff in camp for sure. Sorry about your razor Zak.

Khalid Al-Mutawa – What can I say? You get camp. It is clear that you are a veteran of The Realm, and I love watching you share your second home with new members of the group. You never cease to steal the spotlight and get the whole group laughing; I hope to see you back here for many years to come. Even though you've experienced so much here, you still have so much ahead of you.

Lucas Asner – Your card counting skills never cease to impress me, and I really hope you didn't get into any trouble on your trip to Vegas. You really know how to work a crowd, and I hope you will be able to stay 7 weeks next summer; you would love Green and White.

Aidan Barber – Faking an injury to try to stay at camp is one of the best displays of dedication to The Realm I've ever seen, and even though it failed, watching it come from someone so new to camp was awesome. In all seriousness, watching you fall in love with camp so quickly made me so happy, but more importantly I loved watching camp fall in love with you. In such a short time you became such a presence here, due to your easy-going nature and incredible maturity. I cannot wait to see you back here dominating The Realm for years to come.

Zach Bohm – I wish you could have seen the group look for you after seeing your made bed upon our arrival from excursion; your group loves you so much. There was not a day that went by all summer where your name wasn't brought up multiple times, but not long after meeting you I realized why. Although it was a brief four days, I can see how large of a presence you have in the group due to your considerateness, easy-going nature, and immensely comfortable bed. I hope everything goes well for you and I cannot wait to see you here for a full summer next year, Jaime Bohorquez a.k.a. James – Get on benches, you're late! Even though your orejas were not always working so well, it was such a pleasure being your counselor this summer. There is such a great place for you and your fútbol abilities here in The Realm. Take it easy on Nico back in Spain.

Peter Cohen – First of all, I hope you put down your Mocha Chip Frappuccino and paused The Kardashians for a few minutes to enjoy this article. You clearly love camp, and camp loves you. You are a leader within the group, and always keep the mood positive. I cannot wait to watch you grow up and see you running The Realm in the next few years. Keep coming back, keep smiling, and stop being so ticklish.

Francesco Colombo – You are one of the most kind-hearted, considerate people I know and this is evident in everything you do. You are always looking out for the best interest of your group mates, and this is a quality that will get you a long way. I hope that as you come back you continue to grow your love for camp and further carve out your role in the group, all the while staying nice and friendly as usual.

Will Crystal – You are one of the most intelligent kids I have ever met, and this is evident in talking to you for just a few minutes. Everything you do is well thought out, making you also incredibly kind and considerate. Although you are not always the loudest voice, you have a huge presence within the group and I am excited to watch your voice grow in the years to come. Keep coming back.

Jake Danegger – I cannot imagine the Archers of 2013 without Jake Danegger. You brought such a unique presence to the group every day that always kept me smiling and on my toes. As the summer went on, I could see you begin to understand camp more and more and I loved watching it. You are one of the most genuine kids I have ever met, and this place needs you. When you come back next summer make sure you grab your entire wardrobe from the ping-pong table in our bunk.

Sam Devorsetz – I could never have guessed that it was your first summer here. You jumped right in and completely understood what camp is about. Clearly your experience at your other camp whose name I will not mention had gotten you ready for The Realm, and I hope this has become your new home. As you become more adjusted and comfortable here I cannot wait to watch you develop into a leader of the group.

Edoardo Di Giovanni – I don't think there is a doubt in anyone's mind that you have the best eyes in camp, and that is something The Realm can't do without. A man of few words, everything you say is so insightful. I hope to see you back here next year, and watch you build on your soccer and tennis abilities.

Max Escalara – Shee shee, naniboolaylay, foosa. Meme, or tete? You are without a doubt the most energetic person I have ever met and you kept us going every day. I hope that you continue coming back with a further developed shee-shee.

Ethan Hobert – Staying 7 for your first summer is a big decision, and I can't think of anybody better to commit to it than you. Right away you jumped in and understood what camp meant. Your inquisitive nature always kept me on my toes, and I loved hearing your stories. You can finally open your squirt gun now, but no using it in your room! Keep coming back; keep wondering why.

Marc Kanaan – Kid's got no game! I can honestly say that I do not know if I've ever seen someone fall so in love with this place in his first four weeks. You clearly get camp, and I loved watching you learn to love camp. In addition to your impressive athletic ability, you were able to embrace all areas of camp life. I hope you are able to stay longer in the future, because I know how much you would love Color War. I know that in a few years you will be running this place.

ARCHERS

Lee Karlinsky – Remember the fake injury on your arm? That freaked me out. Your goofiness constantly kept me laughing, and I was so impressed to see how easily you hopped right in and immersed yourself back into the group. Keep coming back; you love camp and I want you to experience all it has to offer.

Oladotun Kilaso – Dot, Dk, Dozin, you are a man of many names. I am thankful that I never had to try to tag you in camper hunt because there is no chance I would have been able to keep up. Your rendition of “I believe I Can Fly” in drama was truly breathtaking. I was so happy to see you make your place in the group. Keep coming back.

Ryan Kim – Stop smiling! Just kidding, how could anyone not love that smile. Your constant positive attitude brought up the energy of the group, and in such a short time you were able to make such a large impact on the Archers of 2013. I hope to see you here for 7 weeks in the near future. There is a huge place for you here at Robin Hood and I know you will grow to love camp even more as the years go on.

Andrew LoMedico – I was so relieved when you arrived because for the first four weeks, I was a lone lax bro in a group of ballers. Your hard-nosed attitude on the field is so awesome to watch, and your competitive spirit always kept the group going. It is a tough task to jump in at the 4-week point and you did it perfectly. I loved watching you hop right back in as a leader in the group shortly after your arrival.

Michael Lu – You are without a doubt the best D-pole I have ever seen come through this camp, and you can walk the dog like no other. Even though your stay was brief, you became such a large part of the group. Your easy-going nature makes it so easy to get along with you, and I hope you’re back here for many years to come.

Matt Mailman – When in doubt, do the Spongebob. I sometimes wonder how you were able to eat at meals because I feel like every time I saw you, you were rocking the Spongebob. I have never seen so much commitment to a dance move and I have the utmost respect for you for it. I hope to see you here next summer rocking the flat-brims.

Ricky Melasecca – Reeshee! Your compassion and considerate nature never ceases to amaze me. You are always level-headed and can make time for anyone in the group, genuinely caring about each and every one of your group mates. I am so happy you decided to take the leap and stay 7, and I hope that as you continue your camp career you will begin to find your voice more and further establish your role as a large presence in the group.

Edward Onyeka-Patrick – You entered camp with a bang, and kept on going. Lowering the flag within 20 minutes of an arrival has to be a camp record, and I can’t think of a better person to have it than Easy E. I was so glad to see you enjoy Green and White and I hope you keep coming back to The Realm.

Oliver Paumgarten – You are without a doubt the toughest Archer I have seen; an absolute warrior. I wish we had an ice rink at camp, because I would love to see you be a complete goon out on the ice. I know that as you come back to camp you will begin to find your voice more and more, and become an even larger part of the group. Goon squad for life.

Nico Quijano a.k.a. Nick – Nico nooooo! Get on the benches! You kept me on my toes at all times, and even when you were feeling a little mischievous, it was always fun to be around you. I hope to see you here for as many years as you can. Keep an eye out for Jaime in Spain. P.S. you left your birdhouse.

Phil Schmidt – I still don’t fully understand why you’re a Phillies fan, other than your name, but either way I love watching you rock the Phillies hat all day. I am so bummed you weren’t able to stay 7, because I would love to watch you in Green and White. You are one of the fiercest competitors I know, and being taller than everybody doesn’t hurt either. I hope to see you and your twin brother Andrew continue to dominate The Realm for years to come.

Dylan Siegel – I am so happy you decided to stay 7, and I hope you are too. As the summer went on, I could see this place started to mean more and more to you, and I hope it is now your second home. With more summers, I know you will further this love for camp, and keep your balling skills top notch.

Scott Siegel – Scooter. Your jokes and impressions kept me laughing at all times. You constantly had me wondering if Seth McFarlane was in the bunk. I'd say my only regret from this entire summer is that we didn't get to play more Scooter Ball, because that game was awesome. I hope to see you back here next summer, and be a part of the first real season of Scooter Ball.

Luke Swirsky – The biggest baller in camp. You have swag unlike any other, and the countless time you spent putting hair gel in definitely paid off. It did not take long for you to find your place in a new group, and I know that you will continue loving camp and embracing everything it has to offer. I hope that as you grow older you begin to take on more of a leadership role within the group, because I know you can do it. Stay fly.

Charlie Zinamon – Although it took us a while to establish that your last name is not also a spice, it took no time at all for you to establish yourself as a key member of the Archers of 2013. Arriving a night early, you already had camp all figured out by day 1. Your incredible athletic abilities (particularly on the basketball court) never ceased to amaze me, especially as a younger member of the group. Although your time at camp was brief this summer, I know you will be back in The Realm for many years to come, making the most of all that camp has to offer.

Gabe Zolot – Rub that sunscreen in on your neck! Missed a spot on your arm! I have to say, watching you compete in just about every activity made me so happy and proud. Remember when you switch hit? That was incredible. You are never the biggest guy on the field, but you're always putting in more effort than the next guy. You are such a kind and considerate person, and I hope to see you back here for many years, hopefully staying for Green and White; you would love it.

YEOMEN

WHATTUP YEOMEN?!

Put down your rubix cubes, stop playing war, Natro – go back inside – no hitting for trees at home, everyone turn off College League's latest ESPN special and sit down, take a minute, and relive the greatest summer there ever was: 2013!!

Remember our first day... The first Yeomen, Hunter, arrives a day early and takes The Realm by storm in his first day – dominating the WAH game, and puzzling the staff with his intense knowledge of the countries flags. We wake up and arrive 20 more of the goofiest, most hilarious kids on camp solidifying their title of YEOMEN. Yeomen have the best bunk on camp, three stories and the best view of the waterfront on camp, what more could we ask for?! Gold Rush and a shower in the lake and more importantly the first of many YEOMEN CHARGES. The next morning, everyone's up at 6:30 AM ready to go... luckily that was a trend that didn't continue. Flug's hustle face. Gaga tans, bruises, and cuts – WORTH IT. Meister's iPod shuffle is always charged, Jonny is not afraid to toss Yeomen in the lake, Goodman's constant dialogue, Nick Russell is simply Nick Russell, Paxton's dill pickle sun flower seeds... WHATTUP DEEC, staff talent show: can you freak it? I might... international staff's beaver time, Marco's 'special dance,' the 90 second tent, Pablo's 1, 2, 3... Yeomen love good luck Charlie.

Remember Hunter dominating football, staff foul balls, Fuente's truck stick, Hitting for trucks, Daloia takes hits like a champ, mountain bikers run into Jonny on his way to the UK! J-RO... let's just say the key word is pickles. Watch out for the quabin, Sean, or is it Shawn, takes a shot downstairs – attempts to get up and fails, the dining hall blackout – wasn't bain at the superbowl? Late night run-ins with the kitchen staff... hair, Connor learns first hand that rejection is the toughest part of all our lives, Sailboat tipping, is that kosher? ODDS ARE, Billiam's orange, Nick has rabies, Fuente is Fallente, Yeomen love camper hunt! Stridemint the AGL. Yeomen at OPEN RANGE, Pirates Cove, Pizza Barn and Cozy for the 10,000 Yeomen birthdays. Sinking the canoes, and DJ Wood's false promise, Ethan's high score at mini golf, the crazy thunderstorm, Billiam's pregame speeches and Elwoods 'socks'.

Remember Challenges... our trip to the Marina, Yeomen do their best, but canoeing is still a struggle... candy, candy, candy and Dick makes a surprise visit, Yeomen dominate the Squires on the JC basketball court, take down the Archers in the bombardment rink and take down the Friars and Foresters in the Gaga pit.

Some of these group challenges this summer truly show that when you unite, you can accomplish anything together and that is a great lesson to learn as a group heading forward into senior camp.

Remember July 4th... USA, USA, USA. Brits go for the flag... fail. Hunter misses out on the slip n' slide, Red paint, should we eat inside or out? Fried dough, cheesesteak, corndog, fries... I think we're all still full from that meal. Yum. So many Yeomen get married – congratulations boys I could not be happier for you. I hope they are long lasting and fruitful, that being said...Yo playa's holla we want prenu!...And there goes Sean's voice. Finally, our favorite Spaniard Rodrigo joins us, though sadly under quarantine, Nico TA! The brosefano's. Remember that Archery period with Woody?! Woody + Ollie: 157.5 Yeomen: 157 – Yeomen still find their way to get canteen out of it. Tanner's birthday card, 4 months early, head volleyball, Charlie and Gimbel excel...Wait did JRO just catch that ball? Oh wait he only had one hand...

Remember our mountain trip?! Hiking in the rain, camping in the rain, swimming in the rain...Natro finds himself alone on the mountain, color blindness not helping anything, blue trail or orange trail...Jack takes an epic spill and takes it like a champ. All in all – that trip showed how you boys could make the best out of anything – including a trip in the pouring rain. There was definitely a lack of sleep, but no lack of fun.

Remember the kitchen raid...bye bye Ollie. YEOMEN GOT DUPED. Oh the looks on your faces...regardless, that night is something you guys will remember for years. There is a humongous fungus among us!!! Briar takes hour-long showers with Shires, Friars and Squires, (take your time to say that one out in your best chuck voice), Flug jumps the Gaga pit with ease, Friars love college league, ELWOOD, Tanner has the five star left foot, and his five star left foot partner, Edmond joins us straight from Paris. Matt lets Yeomen cut his hair, let's just say I think the Yeomen hairstylists need a year or two of school under their belt before they take their talents professionally. Insert Goodman remember when about himself...

Remember inter camp...Yeomen make Winaukee their home, way too literally in some cases, Some epic intercamp games: not always wins but memories and constant fun – the most important thing. Natro's game-winner against Winaukee in their own dome?! Robin Hood rushes the court. Nuts. Ethan's 'injury' at the tennis tournament, Football reaches the final in an epic semifinal victory. Paxton and Hunter dominating all along, Soccer has the perfect RH tournament: 7-0 L, 6-0 L, and most importantly a 6-5 win in the consolation (those kids were definitely our age). Paxton to Tanner to Rodrigo. GOOOALLL We had fun! Landon and the coach are crazy and Szabo and Ollie try to act alike. Shafer is a Yeomen for the day but doesn't necessarily look the part. ID Check? Yeomen see a former Robin Hood camper on Birchmont... no I'm not talking about Beth. The day ends with Mcdonald's, thanks Elwood! (I'll get a blueberry milkshake please).

YEOMEN

Remember Beach Day... The early wake up and the two-hour ride down to Maine's finest: Ogunquit. August, Ethan and Edmond and our newest Yeomen Sam Jonas arrive just in time to get in on the action. Rodrigo feeds birds and the Yeomen buy as much food as they can on a single day. August's sunglasses block even the strongest sun, the weather holds up and the Yeomen experience some of the warmest Ogunquit waters ever.

Remember Dare 2 tri... Robin Hood welcomes some of the most courageous, brave and best athletes to ever hit this place. The epic dance party, followed by their amazing and memorable stories. Yeomen get to have the chance to have a private s'more session with the girls. Daloia, TA, and Nick with their exceptional golden brown marshmallows. I hope you all took in what they had to say and learn from it. We are all so privileged to have the healthy lives we do and moreover, to experience this place we have together every summer. Never take any of it for granted and cherish every moment.

Remember Parents Visiting Day... Yeomen intensely clean the bunks to welcome the visitors and in come the parents to watch our dance. The tango Maureen highlighted by Marco and Daloia, then the paper plane crew, followed by the one and only Dancing Queens quartet of the big guys: Meister and Gimbel, paired with the little guys: Fuente and Goodman. You all were great out there and it truly shows that hard work pays off. The next morning The Realm is invaded with Yeomen parents eager to play ultimate Frisbee. Nick and J-Ro's dad highlight a stacked group of mom and dads ready to take on the younger generation. Remember Freddie? Quincy Hansburg decides to stay! TA and Paxton's dad reminisce about their own camp days. The Yeomen say goodbye to a few campers, but the remaining group rebounds and has an incredible last three weeks.

Remember Green and White... the break: a helicopter flying around camp and the fire truck with judges, such a great way to start an unbelievable war. Congratulations to Ethan and David for being elected co-captains and to Marco and Paxton for being elected captains. All four of you were exceptional the entire war and showed why your peers trusted you with their votes. Remember James' and Katie's monsters pitted against Andrew and Kruse's royalty. Remember Marco at the swim meet, Moyo at the track meet and Theodore at regatta.

Remember the epic games of Yeomen soccer with Edmond's 4 goals and Gaga with Paxton's 5 v. 1 takedown. Remember the two greatest flags in the last decade at Robin Hood and the medleys to partner them. Fun Fun Fun Fun Fun Fun Fun Fun Fun Fun... Monsters win by TWO POINTS in a war that will be remembered for decades to come. Boys! I hope you take the time to realize, win or lose, what you all were a part of this summer. This war will go down as one of the most memorable in Robin Hood history and you all were such a big part of it.

Remember excursion... Yeomen pull out of camp early after lazy day, quickly stop at Dunkin', and head to one of New England's staples: Mt. Washington. Yeomen head up the Mountain with our experienced guides. After about a half hour we reach the summit and a view that may even top a Robin Hood sunset. Boys, remember that moment because until you climb it again as Saxons, you may not be able to take in a sight like that one. This body climbed Mt. Washington...SIKE. Yeomen head down the mountain and start the Yaking trip. The graffiti wall may or may not have been the best part of the trip. Yeomen make it through the 6.5 miles of kayaking and see a bald eagle along the way. We head back to the campsite and Jack grills up some great steaks and off we go to Despicable Me 2. The next day starts with a trip to Attitash. The alpine slide, the roller coaster, the waterslides and most importantly – the free falling jump. Fuente and Marco's hilarious flips, Goodman commits hard, Gimbel and Meister stop the roller coaster and Edmond decides its best to switch alpine tracks. Kringles pizza midway through the day and Meido and Narayan decide it's more important to alpine slide than to be on time to leave. Off to the outlets where in classic fashion the Yeomen decide to pick the most cliché Nike graphic T and make it there own. "Your mom knows" "Speed kills" "Make the shot" just to name a few. Narayan and Meido once again get lost in the maze that is Settlers Green and off to Wal Mart for the Scavenger Hunt. Remember Meister's new underwear and 46 Dunkin' Donuts. We head to the Garden of Panda's where the odd smell did not inhibit the great buffet. Hey, it's raining...let's see another movie, why not Red 2? Edmond dozes off... Day 3 kicks off with Dunkin' and the Yeomen are off to Water Country. We arrive to see that the Quills are joining us for a day. Stops at Dr. Von Dooms, the Geronimo, Dip 'n Dots. And we are off, happy to be heading back to The Realm.

Remember the last few days... Yeomen count off, if you can hear me clap once, the penalty kick game, Meido's catch between the legs, a dollar for a sip, zombie apocalypse... FINALLY, tsunamiiii, Cai Cramer takes our cake, Fuente will be 6'3... maybe, Yeomen embrace water pong – you guys are so college, Abby is Yeomen GL for the afternoon, Schreiber tries to impress, injures Yeomen in the process, Aldi having fun all along, Sean takes hits in god, Rink with Vaughn-JEDI, USA vs. the World, Cleveland vs. the World, the quabin is mine! Would you grab me a chainsaw?

Aldiyar Ablyazov – You came in as a new camper in the middle of the summer and from first hand experiences, I know that can be challenging. That being said, you took the challenge head on and made the best of your time here as you were very open to new things and enjoyed every moment. Whether it be reading or horseback riding, it is clear that you are passionate at such a young age and I can't wait to see that passion continue through the years.

Narayan Achar – You, along with the other Lycee boys, experienced the struggle that comes with a late end to the school year and thus, a late start to camp. Despite that, you valued each and every moment you had here and your enjoyment and excitement about everything camp is contagious – keep being you.

Tyler Adelman – You remind me so much of myself as a Yeomen in that you put your full spirit, heart and effort into everything you do. That is such a valuable quality, but with that comes some troubles with failure. Know that you learn with every failure – they are all great learning experiences. I know that your competitive spirit will do wonders for you going forward. I cannot wait to see you progress through this camp and it excites me the way that you embrace and take on Hillary as the great big brother you are.

Charlie Bragg – Since the day you walked into this camp with your mid-calves and bucket hat, I knew that we were going to get along. You came to camp with a group of friends from home but in no way did that restrict you from opening up to the rest of this group and loving this place just after a short two weeks. I know I'll see you back here for longer in the coming years.

William Chang – In this group I have seen you, more than anyone else, grow and mature before my eyes since I was your Saxon when you were a TPJ. I think you are just maturing in the best way possible in that your qualities that made you a memorable TPJ still remain, but with each year you gain a greater understanding of yourself, this group and this camp. I cannot wait to see you progress through the ranks of senior camp.

Michael Daloia – Michael, I think you are the true testament about Robin Hood being everything what you make it. When you put your full attention, effort and heart into something, you do it better than anyone else and you are happier than anyone else. Seeing that side of you made it so sad to see you leave us before Green and White. Realize that you are so appreciated in this group and each and every person values you. I know I will see you back for summers to come.

Connor Dodge – Without a doubt you were the Yeomen's most improved camper this summer. You came in with an attitude that was entirely different from the attitude that you had when you left. You were socially perceptive and aware and shaped yourself and your attitude to this place, and grew to love it in four short weeks. I hope to see you back for seven weeks next summer. I love to see how much you cherish the fact that you get to share this place with James.

Theodore Dresch – Much like Aldi, you came into a situation totally foreign to you and totally embraced it. When we talked about how you want nothing more than to have your younger siblings experience this place brought me to chills. It seems like you understand the essence of Robin Hood quicker than anyone I have ever seen. You're kind spirit brightens every day for this group, and I hope you continue to share your love with everyone.

Ben Flug – You are the most caring member of this group and your unselfishness does not go unseen. You are a second generation Robin Hood kid and with certain kids like yourself, it is just so evident that you were raised by camp. You are freakishly athletic beyond your years and I cannot wait to one-day see Ben Flug dominating the fields of Color War. Your caring attitude is most evident in the way you look at and just get joy out of seeing Henry smile. I hope that the two of you get to share this place for years to come.

YEOMEN

Nathan Fuente – The magical Fuendeezy, Robin Hood did hear you roar. . . In all seriousness, it's very amazing to see how much you've changed not only as a camper, but as a young man in just the past two years. You embrace the unique chance to aid and help others at such a young age at Archery and that skill of helping others will take you far. The future is so bright for you and I know that you are in this for the long haul.

David Geldzahler – I'm pretty sure that about 75 percent of the chatter before you arrived at camp was the constant, "When's David coming, when's David coming??" and you were worth the hype. You came in at a perfect time to spark and ignite the group, and the group never looked back. I'm so happy that you got to experience Color War for the first time and I hope you realize that getting co captain in your first Color War means a lot coming from such an experienced bunch of kids.

Ethan Gimbel – I have been lucky to have the privilege to watch you learn and grow in two separate groups. I think we both know that this change was without a doubt the right one for you and you have fit in so well with an already tight knit group of kids. It was no surprise to me that you were elected as a co-captain in your first summer with this group and that is proof of how much respect this group has for you. I cannot wait to watch you next summer with a year already under your belt.

Jake Goodman – There is so much to say here but I will lead down the path that just shows how much you value and enjoy every second you're in this place. I don't think I see anyone have as much fun as you do on a day-to-day basis. You need just about nothing and can still have fun here and that is such a rewarding quality not only to have at camp, but also to have in life. Keep loving life and being yourself.

Ethan Gross – Being away from home for the first time is hard on anyone and you were as brave as anyone for sticking it out while you were here. Nothing got me happier than to see a smile on your face because I knew you were loving this place. You value family and togetherness so profoundly and I know that if you keep coming back and experiencing this place, you will find the family in every member of your group.

Nathan Grossman – Let me lead this by saying I don't know if you like the thought of hitting trees, or being at camp more. I think we both know what the answer is here. . . That being said, you are so wise and mature beyond your years and I just hope you can experience this place for the fullest and for what it is because I think you have yet to experience all you can here. The connection you share with Dick is so cool and I know that will continue for years to come.

Paxton Hansburg – I think that one of the coolest parts of Robin Hood is that someone your age can have such a powerful impact on others in the way they lead. You have that chance and others look up to you far more than you realize. If you set the tone, others will follow and keep that in mind with all the decisions you make. With great power comes great responsibility and I know you are willing and able to take on that challenge.

Marco Marsans – Wo chau, Marco. . . Marco, you are so intelligent and wise and the experiences you have had in such a short life are so valuable to you everyday. You have lived in three different countries and one thing you do everywhere you go, especially here, is embrace the best in everything. That is a quality I see in you everyday and I know I will continue to see for years to come. When you spoke at our campfire this year, you gave me the chills – a feeling I rarely got even from my own counselors. I learn so much from you everyday and I know this whole group feels the same way.

Kyle Meister – One thing I never doubt for a second is the fact that you are here for all the right reasons. When you said you wanted to come back until you were a brass member, it really hit me that you really will be here until you're old. You enjoy everything about Robin Hood and have a greater understanding of this place than most people do. Having had Jake and now you, I am so privileged to have been able to be a counselor for both of you and I see so much of him in you.

Meido Nkontchou – If you had the chance, there is no doubt in my mind that you would be here for all seven weeks. One thing you do very well is value each day you have here because you know that they are limited. One very cool thing about you and your brother is that you guys started a trend of campers to come to this camp. You were part of a beginning and the reason that so many campers are here now. If you take a step back and look at that fact, that is such a cool thing and so many people are grateful that you are here.

Moyo Nkontchou – Each thing I said about your brother also is true with you. Additionally, after our trip to Mt. Washington I found out how strong of a kid you are. You were in pain, but kept your cool and cooperated so well. Needless to say, I don't think that you missed too much on that kayak trip. I love to see you and Meido go at it on the playing field and I hope to see you two on opposite Green and White teams in the future.

August Pfeiffer – First of all, let me say: I hope that candy was worth it. . . That being said, this summer you were very brave, because being away from home is not easy for the first time for anyone. One thing I will say to you is embrace differences in people because differences are the reason this camp is what it is. You were really great those extra last two days and I know you left this place with a good taste in your mouth.

Rodrigo Quijano – You are the perfect example of a truly happy Robin Hood camper. As a staff member, almost nothing is required for you to have the best time and that is such a good quality to have in life. You took The Realm by storm both in the bunk and on the soccer field. I love the relationship that you and Nico have and it was so cool to watch when he was in our group for the day. Value that, and value the chance to share this place together.

Jake Rosenthal – Like some others in this group, it is so cool to have watched the transformation in you over the last four summers. When you were a TPJ, you were so timid and anxious and it is clear that the last four summers has broken your shell and unleashed an entirely new personality that this whole group embraces. You almost made it through this whole summer without a broken bone, but it was only fitting right? As such a young camper, you have a unique relationship with Chuck, don't let that ever go because there is so much that you can learn from him everyday.

Nick Russell – Where to start, Nick Russell, where to start. . . Really your attitude about being here is just so on point and so beneficial to the group. You don't complain and you value each activity, whether it is Home Run Diamond or shuffleboard and make the best of it. That is the quality of a true Robin Hood camper usually later in their career. If you keep that attitude up the rest of the summers you have as a camper, they will be so amazing. I hope in the future you give yourself the chance to experience Color War because I know you will love it more than anyone.

Tanner Snidow – Tanner, my neighbor and my pal. I don't know how much you realize, but there are so many people in this group who turn to you for advice and judgment. Everyone looks up to you, not because you are loud and vocal but purely because you are a leader by example. I know that personality will continue through your years here and I hope in the future for longer each summer. I know you and Ollie will share this place for years to come.

Edmond Thierez – You are one of the few in this group who value your personal time and seeing you reflect after each day in our hammock was so mature and so cool to see. I know you had a tough time without your brother back this summer, but you took his old area by storm and really made it your own. Your skills on the pitch are unmatched, and it was so cool to see the way you shined during Green and White soccer. I hope that in the future you can be here for seven weeks.

Hunter Thompson – Since you stepped into Robin Hood a day before this whole group, you were so keen and open to trying new things and embracing new chances here at Robin Hood. That is the ideal attitude for any camper, particularly one who is new. You were amazing this summer and the effort you put forth in every activity brought the intensity of this group up every day. I know I'll see you back here for years to come.

Sean Wood – One thing that I never doubted with you is that you are so appreciative and grateful to just be here. That is such a mature feeling at a young age, and it lets you make the best of everything you do here and not take this place for granted. I know you would do anything to continue staying seven weeks every summer and I don't doubt that that will continue.

Pablo Zubillaga – Now that I've had two Zubi's, I feel like I'm experienced in the art of the Zubi. That being said, I really value the differences and similarities that you and Andres have because they make you both such amazing individuals. I hope that you don't take this place for granted and live in the moment. Realize how much fun you are having everyday you are here. I know that when you got home, Andres raved about the last three weeks of camp and I hope next year you're back to experience them too.

Yeomen – Let me start by saying that you boys were amazing this summer. You made the role of first year Group Leader a learning experience and we learned together every day. This summer wasn't all high's but fighting through the lows was all a credit to each and every one of you. It's unbelievable how much I saw you guys mature in one summer and I can't wait to see how much that continues as you guys progress through senior camp. The future of camp is bright, one love.

LANCERS

Boys boys boys. I know better than anyone that by now you are all surely nestled into your petty winter lives. But just for a second, put down the screen, drop the comb (Grant), stop reading (Boffa), put the paddle away (Meka), stop counting cards (Benji), and listen up as I take you through the summer of our lives...

We arrive on camp on a sunny Sunday afternoon, and the summer starts out with a bang, or a pop in Shafer's case (oohhhhhh!). We are all pumped to be here, with high octane energy flowing and for EA, there was only one way to get it out...CAMPER HUNT. A few winners are crowned, but we all remember that at Robin Hood, everyone's a winner...except the losers.

As the group slowly pours in, the summer starts flying by. The first couple of weeks blend into a haze of Cuddlefests, poker games, tennis tournaments, J-Bob domination, Sherman yells, 90's rock, keefy squeaks, elite socks, Grant complaints, crumbly crumbs, and nightly raves.

The first highlight of the summer was a classic move by none other than Jonny Suna. Day 3 of the summer and a Green and White intensity basketball game breaks out during last period. Suna goes for 15 and his team comes away with a W. A few days later, Mr. Melasecca decides it would be a great idea, to chug as much hot sauce at possible and his boot count reaches double digits. Remember Weitzman's period as GL, oh how well that ended. Remember the 4th of July carnival...on July 3rd. Boffa decides to purchase the most ridiculous outfit possible, going with a Mexican poncho and a hat/ boot combo. Barber chattin' it up with lokies, flaking in the digit department, and Taymour decides to become ratchet for the day. However, the star of the day was Boston's own Matthew Longfield. Matt joins 'Rock Bottom' on stage and ends up rocking out on drums to their hit single 'Man, I feel like a woman.' Remember the on camp carnival the next day? Everyone races through the blow up obstacle course and slides down the slip n slide. Dylan then leads the group in a chorus of wagon wheel on the quad after Phil solves one of the many mysteries of CRH...Then at dinner the Chafe decides to eat everything in sight and the trigger is indeed pulled. A few days pass without much hilarity, however this is the calm before the storm.

Lancer League gets off to an exciting start with an ultimate tournament to remember. The Crismon Killers, Man Children, Yellow Jackets, and Blue Warriors face off until one ends up on top...SIKE...I wasn't even keeping score, but I will say that the Crimson Killers had some high quality shirts. We end Lancer League on a high note, taking the group to Subway and candlestick bowling. We end up driving home through some torrential rain, but with Brenda at the helm, nothing can go wrong. Remember the house. The Lancers make a surprise trip and Joey the superstar ends up being the difference in a nail biter that leaves Robin Hood on top by 4. On the bus ride home, we practice our HeyLadi's. Jimmer/ winner complex begins, and you guys refuse to understand that the cheer is NOT a call & response. Remember being woken up to the task climbing Mount Major, everyone is ecstatic...especially Grant. We summit despite some gnarly rain and bask in one the prettiest views New Hampshire has to offer. Our GL teaches us how to identify the trees of New England. On the descent, Suna slips onto a rock and gets a bruise that none of us will ever forget. We slam heinous amounts of McDonald's and make our way back to camp. Remember Dylan putting the table at McDonald's on blast?

Remember when Faisal wasn't wearing goggles, when Jimmer yelled, when Matt's area was clean, when Noah kept his life private, when Benji wasn't eating pinecones, when Sherman wasn't getting Gramlove, when our curfew got pushed back, when Joey wasn't a superstar, when Boffa was wearing pants, when Tommaso said goodbye, Pizza Barn...because WE DON'T.

Remember Excursion. PVD passes in a flash and we leave The Realm, equipped with an absurd packing list, bound for some of the wildest days of our camp careers. With Matty Brown's van leading the charge (listening to nothing but 'I Choose U'), Sherm, Noah, and Earl in the Boogiemobile and Papa Jack in the stern, it was sure to be a wild ride. We drive through some heavy rain but it clears up just in time for our first stop: paintball! Vertes and pals make a surprise appearance and dominate the first game. Then we move over to the pirate ship, play some flag games and after a couple hours, we take off, covered in paint, welts, and smiles. We zoom over to the campsite, and Papa Jack rustles up some hearty steaks. Okay boys, time for bed...SIKE! We are going to Monsters University...SIKE! It's World War Z. Great film but we didn't know whether to be scared of the zombies or enamored by Brad Pitt's stunning bone structure. On the way back to our camp site, we end up getting horribly lost and somehow end up at an ice rink with the Arrows...blob tag flops but somehow Zoobie and Grant pull off a miracle on par the '84 US squad. Day two begins with the staff tent turned into one big puddle and the camper tents totally dry...classic. This rainy day continued with a little bit of free-styling that lead us to an IHop and way too close to the Longfield house; we love rainy days! Jimmer convinces the FYA that we might actually go see Blue Man Group with the Foresters #camper! We then return to the state of the free, New Hampshire, and take over an indoor water park. A soothing hot tub, a few intense games of pool bball, and a few laps on the Lazy River later we make our way to the Arcade. Then we trek over to Manchester, playing for the New Hampshire Fisher Cats baseball game. Stuff our faces with hot dogs, ice cream, and burgers, while cheering at the top of our lungs. Matt

Brown, Shrimp, and RH songs top our list. We get back to the campsite in record time (most of us at least) and make the luxurious switch to cabins #thankswoody and try our hardest not to freak out. Day 3 starts up early at 6 AM with everyone whispering about Green and White. Remember the car ride to deep sea fishing. The moon and the sun both shining bright from the vans. Thanks boys. We get on the boat for some deep sea fishing and begin catching some fish. Jack, Zubi and Faisal (ehhh) bite the head off a fish, Sherm gives a brief history of 90's rap music and unfortunately sea-sickness sets in as Shafe/Meka boot an aggregate 15 times. To end the day, everyone goes wild at Chipotle, downing the fattest burritos known to man kind. We finish up with a legendary mixer and some Wali dancing outside of everyone's favorite place - Walmart, and raise just enough money for some bomb movies for Founder's Day. Great work gentlemen. With Matt Brown leading the way, we play some 'Beat the Inrto' and made it back to camp safe and sound to a place buzzing with Green and White! Remember our last activity before Green and White broke? An oddly epic game of Katana in front of the office with the Foresters - such a hit. Then the clock hits 7:17pm and a roar is heard. A helicopter is flying over camp with none other than DC and Jamie inside. GREEN AND WHITE bellows throughout camp and a fire truck with all of the judges rolls in. We go back to the bunk and vote captains and co. Congrats to Captains Ace and Faisal, and co's. Leslie and Shafer. You guys lead two amazing teams. Teams are split up at the bean pick, and its The Great Green Monsters versus the Mighty White Royalty. Royalty gets off to an early lead, but somehow the Monsters sweep mystery points and win in epic fashion. Within the Lancers, you could not have asked for a better war. Longfields going at it all war. Our football, softball, basketball and ultimate games were without a doubt some the best Green & White events I've ever seen. You guys all fought so hard for each and every point and your staff could not have been more proud of you.

The summer rolled on after G&W and before we knew it, we were challenging the Foresters to a dance-off at lunch. From Lomedico's twerk to Matt's spongebob, we absolutely destroyed it, embarrassing the Foresters and showing camp all the swag Lancy Drew and the case of the awesome group has to offer. Unfortunately, when Tumblers challenged us a couple days later, we didn't do so hot but WE HAD FUN.

Our last EA, obviously camper hunt into steal the bacon. Alderman drops the crumb. Africa derails Collegiate. Jimmer flip dunks Sherman. Zubie and Grant go at it all night. And the night ends in a legendary fashion.

The last night, slamming food smuggled in by the Longfields and Barbers. TPing whoever goes to sleep. We really couldn't have asked for a better summer.

Lancers of 2013, you gave me without a doubt the best 7 weeks of my life. We lived it up in every possible way and found ways to make anything and everything fun. I'm not sure where and when our lives will intersect again, but I assure you guys that no matter what happens in life, you will always be my boys, and I will always be present if any you need advice, good conversation, guidance, or just a friend. I will never in my life have a job as gratifying as leading you 39 wild kids into the field of battle for 7 weeks. A big chunk of me will always be living in the summer of 2013.

LANCERS

Benji Asner – My dude the gunner, you killed it this summer. You were ridiculous 24/7 and we could always count on you for hilarity. On top of this, you also truly captured the magic in the trees; you understood why we all love camp and shared that very love equally. You're massage game is also very on point, I'm sure Noah would agree! Can't wait to see you next year when you stay full session.

Wali Acogny – You arrived right before Visiting Day and I can honestly say I have never seen a quicker and swifter entrance of a Kamp Kharacter. From the first lunch, when you and Khalid had that legendary dance-off, all of camp had you on their radar. You dominated Green & White and had an amazing summer from every perspective. I hope you enjoyed The Realm, because it sure loved having you.

Adeoba Adewunmi – Diooooo!! Big ups to the big man with the big plan and the big heart. Your summer was just like your dance moves, absolutely dynamite (in all seriousness, top 5 best fist pump in camp). I know this place can seem overwhelming at first, but once the summer rolled on you found your niche in the group and it was easy to see that you were made for this place.

Faisal Al-Mutawa – First off, you give a mean back massage. Your free sprit allows you to take in all camp has to offer. You are respected and valued in this group of kids more than you know and I couldn't be more proud that you were elected captain during Green & White. You picked well and ran a great team. I know this place means the world to you and I cant wait to watch you kill it again next summer.

Aaron Alderman – First off, that steal the bacon hit on Matt Brown was incredibly epic, and personifies your entrance to the group this summer. You showed up late, but that never stopped you from making a huge impact in the group dynamic. I know this place isn't often the socially comfortable haven that it could be for you, but trust me, there is no better place to let it all hang out in years to come. Trust the group and trust yourself.

Danny Attia – Danny boy aka the big chief, you are such a goon and I mean that in the best way possible. Just by being present, participating, and (of course) smiling, you contribute so much to this group that you probably don't even realize. You are friends with everyone and I don't think that I have ever seen you exclude someone. You are such a pleasure to be around and a great camper...although it is hard to get you out of bed in the morning. Your time here is what you make it and I know you will make your time great.

Jacob Barber – The linebacker, you are an incredibly bright kid, both in mind, and hair. You love to clown around, but can always tell where the line is and when to cross it. You'd be hard pressed to find a person on camp with a bad thing to say about you, and the way you battled through Color War with a broken hand, still managing to compete at a high level in almost everything, was so admirable.

Vince Barone – My cousin Vinny, you are quiet at times but I don't think I have ever seen you in a bad mood. You really know how to enjoy camp. You get along with everyone in the group and there isn't a person on camp with bad things to say about you. You blossomed this summer and I am so happy that you ended up staying the full 7. Hope the 5-year shirt lived up to the hype!

William Boffa – You are easily one of the funniest kids to ever walk through The Realm. Any moment spent with the Boffstar is destined to be a memorable one. The perfect way to describe Will Boffa is controlled recklessness. You never stop having a good time and your positive energy rubs off on everyone near you. You are truly a one of a kind person and that is what makes you great at Robin Hood. I was blessed to be your counselor this summer.

Alexander Chang – Leslie, the silent assassin. You are always down to chill and have a smile on your face each and every day. You are the poster child for how to lead by example, and prove to the world that a leader doesn't always have to yell. Everyone looks up to you more than you know. Stay golden.

Lorenzo Colombo – My man Zo, I admire your passion for camp. You love this place so much and it shows at every activity. You always put 100 percent of your mind body and soul into every single activity and that's why you had an amazing summer. Can't wait to see you next summer!

Nicolas Dini – Gigaa. The man himself, even though it was only your first summer in The Realm, no one would ever know it. You truly embody what camp is and your energized attitude was amazing each and every day. Keep coming back because you love camp and camp loves you.

Patrick Harvey – Plain pat, what up? At every single activity, your presence was so huge for the group. You were one of the first in the group to actually understand what it meant to "chill" and your influence on the group was astounding. Thanks for the fun and memories and remember to stay longer next summer!

Felix Helsmoortel – THE CHAAAMP. You truly champed it this summer and went into every activity we did this summer with an open and endearing smile on your face. While your summer at RH ended all too soon, I loved seeing you grow and come into your own for 2 weeks at camp.

Mekaheel Gbajabiamila – Donny, you came back into this group and immediately it was like you were never gone. The kids gravitated toward you, and you would think this was your 5th summer, not your 2nd. You have such an upbeat personality and I love joking around with you. Your sense of humor is incredibly mature for a 13-year-old and you have the power to put a smile on anyone's face.

Javier Gutierrez – The Man Child, from gladiator ball to the island swim to socializing at meals, you dominated everything you did. I know everything here was new to you but you made it seem so easy to fit in. We could all benefit from having the motivation and determination you have just to have fun on a daily basis.

Joey Licht – Superstar, what a summer you had. You went from a seemingly quiet kid on day one to all of camp screaming your name within a week. Yes, you are great at basketball, but that isn't what makes you a celeb at camp. It's your adorable and fun-loving attitude that the rest of camp aspires to emulate. I can tell how much you love camp and I can't wait to see you blossom in the future.

Jack LoMedico – Lava girl, what else can I say, you are the man. You arrive a month into the summer and fit so seamlessly into this group, but to be honest, you could fit in and be a star anywhere on the planet. You never miss a beat and are always down for hilarity. Can't wait to see you grow up here and for the rest of camp to see all you bring to the table.

Tim Longfield – The blue devil, a smile on your face brings joy to everyone on camp. You are sweet, kind and competitive all at the same time. You are one of the few kids here that can maintain the proper balance between intensity and fun, and you make it look easy. You have a bright future at this place.

LANCERS

Matt Longfield – ‘Cuse boy, your ridiculous high octane nonstop can’t stop won’t stop attitude is a constant energizer for the group. You know when to be crazy, and when to get down to business. This group looks to you to set the tone. Never forget how much of an impact you can have here.

Ethan Marx – DJ Marx, you really came into yourself this summer. You move at your own speed, but at Robin Hood you can pull it off and then some. From nightly raves to hitting jumpers like J Smoove, you truly embraced camp and your group. You brought a different take on things into each and every situation and are such a unique and essential individual to this group.

David Massart – Big Dave, stop smiling! Everyday you were in The Realm was a great day. Your smile and willingness to do new things made this summer great. Your role in the group is big and you bring this group together through your effort to go hard at everything. You really understand that activities are what you make them, and in a way, camp is too.

Pablo Melasecca – Tatertot, there is much more to you than meets the eye, and that is what makes you a true Robin Hooder. You seem to know everyone in camp, and you are most certainly loved by all. You are one of the most personable people I have ever met. Never let anything deter you from being in the place you love the most. Peace, love and tater tot.

Taymour Nakib – Taytay Swizzy, I looked forward to your jokes every morning on benches. You have never failed to make me laugh and you always have a slightly sly smile on your face. You are constantly thinking about others before yourself and that really speaks to the kind of person you are. I hope you realize how much this place has to offer and keep coming back for many summers in the future, because I promise it will be the best decision that you will ever make. I am so happy that our relationship grew so much this summer and there is no doubt in my mind that you have made me a better person.

Tommaso Olanas – Having you in this group was a privilege. You really let loose and weren’t afraid to be yourself, which was an honor to see. You were an absolute beast at soccer whenever we played and your maturity and ability to mesh with these kids (from a totally foreign land) was unbelievable. You have so many great Robin Hood summers ahead of you.

Sergi Romy – Ibaka, you are the biggest clown ever, and you have a smile that can light up a whole room! When you laugh everyone else can’t help but laugh too. Your radiant personality spreads to everyone around you. I loved chilling with you at all points in time and although it was only your first summer, I could tell that you understood why this place is so special.

Jaime Saenz – Being a returning camper from outside America, you took all of the foreign campers under your wing and helped make their summers amazing. You are truly a fantastic kid and your love for camp permeates throughout the group.

Juan Sainz – Talk about first impressions... Despite arriving late, you really came out of your shell during Color War and we all felt like we got to see a new side of you. The Realm is lucky to call you its own and I hope you grow to understand the honor it is to stand in your shoes as a camper.

Josh Schneider – Mr. Elite socks, you may have only just started at camp, but you have such an innate love for this place that not many people can match. If you continue to embrace the magic and just let CRH take hold, I know this place will soon mean as much to you as it does to me.

Phil Schneider – Phillychee, you are one of the most hilarious and strongest willed people I have ever met. You let no one tell you how to live your life and have such a strong sense of self. While this trait can sometimes be frustrating to your counselors (who often try to make decisions for you), it will surely get you far in life. Hanging out with you at night was always a great cap to my days. Never change.

Josh Shafer – the Chafe, you are one ridiculous dude. You are always down to clown, and have a crazy sense of humor. Sometimes you speak in your own language, but that’s fine cause we all kind of like the way it sounds. You also truly understand how special The Realm is and are an enormous presence in this group and on camp. You helped lead a great Color War team and I am so proud of the way your summer ended up.

Ryan Siegel – Your hair is spot on all the time. It is hard for me to remember a time where I saw you moping or not killing it at an activity. You have consistently proven that you understand the concept of not wasting a minute here at camp. This is the most special place on earth and I hope to see you coming back for the full session in the coming years.

Dylan Smith – The big Dyl. Coming in as a first time Robin Hooder, you added something to the group that no one else could have. Your thoughtful and caring demeanor helped push our group dynamic in the right direction. Keep coming back and this place will soon be yours.

Jonathan Suna – More than maybe any Lancer I’ve ever seen, you truly do get “it.” Whether you see it or not, you are almost the quintessential Robin Hood kid. You love to clown more than the next guy, but when the group needs a nudge in the right direction, you are the guy to do it. Keep leading from the back, because the group needs a voice like yours.

Austin Terowsky – Ace, you are such a monster. I honestly can’t think of a better sport in camp. You go about your business whether it’s in the bunk, on the field, at a meal – with absolute class and I think you lead a great G&W team in your own way this summer.

Grant Wasserman – Grunt, you tend to give some people a hard time, but by the end of the day you really do understand camp and what makes it so special. Having you back for the whole session this summer was very necessary. I could see in the extra weeks that you definitely grew as a person and matured into a true leader of camp and this group. Just keep doing you.

Andrew Weitzman – I have never ever seen an area more spotless than yours. You sure know how to clean a bunk. But all jokes aside, you were a pleasure to have as a camper this year. As a GL, you made my life so much easier just by being you. You always maintain an extremely positive attitude, viewing each day as an opportunity to make new lifelong relationships; I know you made one with me.

Andres Zubillaga – Zubi, you somehow combine sweet, crazy, genuine, and savant all in one. You are never afraid to show anyone love and you have the utmost respect of everyone you come across. I don’t know if I ever told you this but you had an incredible G&W, and your heart on the field speaks volumes to your character.

FRIARS Take a break from your boof homework and all of the EXCITEMENT that high school might bring; turn off the TNT show you're watching and turn down Roses; head to your bed-fort and relive an awesome summer.

Remember the first days of camp, knowing immediately that we needed to establish the wolf code. Remember Flug's headshot at our first Gaga period? Remember improvising dubstep? Remember nights out with the tutors?

Remember Mumford and Sons at girls camp field? Flug's infamous letter? Creating lists at night? Remember the Juggler and the Kazooist sweeping The Realm? Remember how many GOAAAAALS we scored in that one soccer period?

...DANCE BREAK...

Remember when the porch smelled sweet, you went to your Intensives, when we played Rugby, when Lucca listened, when the Friars swept The Realm, when Big J wasn't at the infirmary, when Jay ate healthy, when Adam was appropriate, when Andrea wasn't soaking his toe, when Kao wasn't working out, when Enrique was on the ground? We don't.

Remember Mafia on the Rafia? Our shuffle commercial, winning, going to Cozy Corner and ordering Cherry Vanilla? How boof are screens? Remember TNT and knowing drama? Getting our revenge on the Lancers. The Inglese-Italian Bible, Kayak Drive-Bys and going to the house? Thank God we painted Margolin on our chests!

Remember Odds-Ares with Jay and Warsh and the protein powder challenge? Remember the night of terror with Adam, Lucca and Big J? Shaking that at the Homerun Diamond? Letters from Pops, caveman chugging, and our epic war against the bugs lead by the Italians?

Remember impressing Castle's parents with your volleyball skills? Drafting? Sean's team stinks. Remember Big J's night off, AJ's magazine, or fulfilling the prophecy during the crazy storm? Our campfire and Vertes contributing to the fire in his own way? Speaking of which, who holds the record, Clark or Vertes?

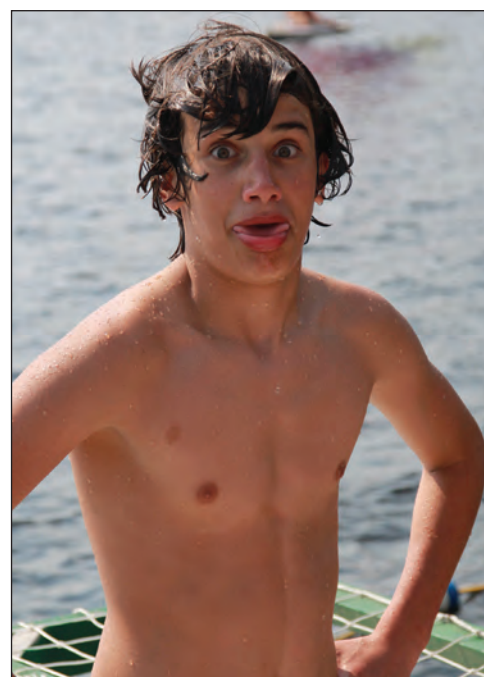

Then came the closest Green and White in history. Although a lot of your team sports were lopsided, each one of you gave it your all, contributed as much as you could to your teams and most importantly had fun. I will always remember that softball game and the rest of your efforts throughout the war. Shout-outs to the Captains and Cos, Vertes' epic save, and everyone who killed it in the talent show even though Gonzalo's HUGE part of glee stole the show.

Finally there was excursion complete with the B-Ball Hall of Fame, Six Flags, White Water Rafting, Paintball, Shelby coming around the mountain, Gonzalo's cross the line stories, Joe the baller, some great Hey-Ladees and who could forget candlestick bowling and of course Now You See Me. Although you guys managed to complain about the best Excursion I've ever heard of, you also made the most of certain activities that not all of you thought you would love. For example, bowling brought about Jay's sweetcheeks, Warsh's Jackpot, Castle getting yelled at, and some sweet shades.

I hope you will always remember beingzborn in the ghetto, playing dead monkey, being single grains of sand in a sandy beach, the Gimbel slide tackle, the legend of azaroth, and everything else that happened this summer.

You all know how I feel about you but it doesn't hurt to say it one more time. You are the nicest and most loving group I have ever been around. You are absolutely hilarious and you are the biggest reason that I had the great summer that I did. When you live with people for 2 straight months, there are bound to be some annoyances, but I urge you to focus on each other's positive traits, and relish the time you have together in this magical place. I love you all; come back and continue loving camp and each other.

FRIARS

Sean – I can always count on you to try in activities and in general. I think the reason you sometimes get frustrated is because you are always genuinely doing your best and trying to get better. Keep coming back so you can build on everything you've worked on, and take it easy.

Pietro – You made a big transition this year into the group and you were a constant source of hilarity. Not every activity that we did was your favorite but you still seemed to be having fun every day. I urge you to come back and try new things.

Andrea – You brought a good and silly attitude since the day you arrived. I never saw you without a soccer ball by your feet and that's a true accomplishment. It's unfortunate that you had to spend so much time in the infirmary because the group really enjoyed having you around.

Niccolo – You were such a good group member and on top of that, a great brother. You always made an effort to integrate despite the language barrier and the fact that it was your first year with this group.

Jaime – You are a really sweet kid and everyone found you to be incredibly endearing. It was great to see you make close friendships in a short period of time. Everybody hopes that you are back next year, ideally for the full session.

Gilstrap – You are a very cool and selfless kid. You know when to be serious and when to joke around. You are fairly different from most of your group on paper and you still manage to be an integral part. You love everyone despite slight differences and we love you back.

Gimbel – You are simply the best. In all seriousness, you were great to have in the group and you very rarely, if ever, caused problems. You always try hard in activities which is not necessarily the norm in this group, and you should always be proud of that. Keep staying full and simply doing your best.

AJ – You are always there for each and every one of your group mates. You are every Friar's best friend. In addition to that, you are a great camper and had a fantastic summer. See you next year.

Mathias – You were always so eager for the next activity, and while your questions were infinite, it was endearing how curious you were. You and Lucca were the first campers to arrive and even though Lucca was the returning camper, you weren't shy at all. We could tell that you were a great kid from the first moments, and you never let that fade away.

Kao – You are an amazingly smart dude who knows himself very well. You are so solid all around. Everyone is hoping that you can find a way to stay the full session next year and the year after that.

Jonas – You are a very smart and reasonable kid and the group can turn to you if they need a levelheaded opinion. On top of that, you are never negative, you love sports, and you make the most of every situation. Come back and stay as long as possible; be louder and more confident because you have a lot to contribute.

Lucca – You were the worst listener in the Friars and somehow everyone still loved you. While your looks, your humor, your smile and your charm certainly help; there is something about your personality that makes everyone a Lucca fan. You are not just a single grain of sand on a sandy beach and I hope that you can stay as long or even longer than you did this year because everyone truly does care.

Margolin – You are very popular and it's not just because of your hot sauce. You truly deserve to be a captain every year because of how highly you're regarded by everyone who knows you. You're a great kid, you know camp as well as anyone else and you'll be here forever.

Gonzalo – Everyone who knows you absolutely loves you and this year the entire camp got to know and love you. You are extremely kind, funny, and are not afraid to laugh at yourself while still keeping an amazing self-confidence. You are a huge member of this group and the whole camp saw it.

John Smith – We had no idea what to expect from you and we were given a handful. Likewise, I don't think you knew what to expect from camp and you ended up getting a completely different experience than you set out for. I can see you maturing and finding yourself in the next year or two and maintaining your status as an important part of this group. Hope you stay full next year.

Jay – You are a hilarious kid. The group and even the counselors want to be involved in whatever you are doing. If everyone knew you as well as your group does, we would have a happier camp and a happier world. I barely knew who you were last year but after this summer I can't imagine camp without you.

Schreibman – You're super goofy and questionable, and well loved because of it. You're constant entertainment, you cheer people up, and you are always yourself at camp. You were born to lip-sync and you are perfect for camp.

Enrique – You have very unique interests and you know what makes you happy. Keep going to the beat of your own drum. You do your own thing but still make sure to be a part of the group and look out for your group mates. Keep doing you.

Vertes – You are energetic, funny, too much at times, and a trooper. You were always smiling this summer even during Green & White and Excursion when you could barely participate. While there was no one less deserving of your injury than you, you dealt with it better than I feel like anyone else could have. I'm so glad I got to know you this summer.

Warsh – Camp needs Zach Warsh and you need camp. It's a beautiful thing to see you have fun, try your best, have very close relationships, and really enjoy the little things like getting mail or being around dogs. I looked forward to your goodnight hugs all summer because I knew they were coming from such a genuine place.

To my staff – You guys were amazing. Thanks for all the hilarity, energy and genuine love for these kids. It was a great summer and I loved working with all of you.

FORESTERS

FOB, FOB, hop back off board, ignore the biggest fish, a.k.a. bish you can find, and take your mind back to what was the greatest summer of our lives. Knowing most of you through my brother and friends from when they had you, I entered the summer having somewhat of a relationship with everyone in the group. I couldn't have guessed that two months later, I would end up being so close to each and every one of you. Although we bickered and complained, and you were all constantly trying to PhUhh ON MEEEE, this summer we became united, and I am so grateful you guys accepted me into your group. We accomplished so much in our short time together: we dominated the courts at West End, captured the audience for our dance and mixer, conquered the lake during Dragon Tales, and swept the afternoon at the 15-and-under softball tournament at Kenwood. You all have provided me with camp memories I will never forget; I think you would all agree after reminiscing with me on the amazing summer we shared together...

I can remember it like it was yesterday. You walked back into The Realm without missing a beat. Remember our first day together? Napach shocked to see Cavin... "Oh, that's you." Remember evening activity of ultimate Frisbee? Mikey Chalkman making a diving catch to end the game. We then went down to the waterfront to have a group meeting. Remember Martyn walking in while Eli was speaking? Eli singing, "But you didn't have to cut me off." Remember Weiss' memorable quote of the night? "Let's turn that frown upside down!" Remember signing the rule sheet, committing to the best summer we could make it? That worked.

Remember FOB? Rocking the dragon robe to breakfast? The ridiculous Doofys? The backpacks in the dining hall and the 10% on the shirt, 90% on the chest? Remember Nade-ing out whenever we left places? Act of Valor!!! Remember all the walkie talkie names? Roger Doger to Doger Roger over and out... Remember the freestyle circles?

Remember: Stone's final period of ultimate, Bear's fantastic jokes, Rybo's "what a concept," Chalkman's air pocket, Miguel's caterpillar situation, Harry's tree shot, Henschman's highlight reel, Cavin as Tom Malkin, Fernando's double ball shot, Eli's impersonation of Lauren, Javier's smile, Napach's Curtis Blow, Podl has and is a bad ass, Jackson's dining hall gorilla dance, Oscar being late for riding, Pepe and his snake, Ethan dropping bills at Hollister, Sobel's dance moves, Swain's dunk on the girls camp hoop, Andrea's paddywagon, Max being embarrassed of his bung, Weiss' flight in tubing?

Remember Sobes and Bear are best friends, Eli and Andrea being the classic rivalry, and Podl and Rybo are in love? Remember Annabelle Burrito? Pouring water on everyone in camp. Remember our dance and the mixer? Remember steak bombs and the NBA draft? Remember the Rink? Remember dragon tales in the lake and going in in our underwear? Remember steal the bacon while walking and crab-walking? Remember open range? Remember Sobel catching the horse poop ball? Remember Wasserman jumping over the puddle to join the 15u basketball team? Remember Eli's Parkhorse? Remember when Miguel confessed to his Birchmont past? Remember the trifecta period – ultimate, soccer and mud-sliding? Remember the storm in the barn? Where's Andrea!!? Remember Napach never using Kleenex, yet finding ways to blow his nose? Connor selling Andreas for free?

Remember skit night? Connor's run done perfectly by the Henschman. Milk just proving it, period. Andrea says, "Classic Annabelle." Remember our cool trips out of camp? Going to one of the coolest beaches in New Hampshire and dominating the playground and snack shop. Remember the laundry mat that was only 200 degrees warm? Doing our mixer outside right before talent night. Remember our dance and mixer? Napach as Lana Del Rey and The Polite Boys making an appearance to The Realm. Remember Beach Day? Swain and Harry's interaction with the crazy lady. Remember getting lobsters with Dick, and Stone breaking his water glass within the first couple minutes of sitting down?

Remember our Intercamp success? Remember the drive to West End. We showed up casually late to the game and tried our best to dominate. Remember Flop Wasserman being assistant to the assistant coach? He was quickly fired after spilling water on the court numerous times. Rybo hit some clutch free throws, but what the game came down to was heart, and we had more. I am so proud of the way you boys fought that game, but was also proud of the boys in the stands and on the bench cheering their brothers on. Remember the softball tournament? Dressing like clowns and almost getting kicked out before playing a game. Sea Horses at night and stretching before the second game – don't be a selfish stretcher! Napach almost broke Andrea in two when stretching him out. Remember the laugh off for the last slice? Javi's smile, Rybo's forehead and Bear's impressions beat out the Chalkman air pocket.

Remember the greatest Excursion ever? We had a blast taking over Boston. We started off in the Dunkin Donuts' parking lot with Alexis "tryna hit that Jelly" and ended up getting that car jellied-AF. We then went to Faneuil Hall to grab some food and shop. Remember Milk's whole wardrobe being in Urban Outfitters? Napach dresses up in full suburban infitters outfits. Next we went for a little Duck Tour around the city. Remember half the group buying those annoying quack makers? Andrea uses it as a wake-up alarm. Podl tells the boat driver that our camp is a performing arts camp, and that he's one of the greatest dancers of his generation. Remember Fire and Ice? Staff plays "Loneliest Item at the Salad Bar" game in the restaurant. Henschel ends up with an earful of fresh ginger and Max gets a king crab leg in the nose. Remember Sky Zone and Jackson's cool trampoline tricks? Getting sweaty and heading back to shower before the Red Sox game. We get the Chipotle before entering and then enjoy nine innings of baseball. Remember rooting for the Rays, and Weiss getting screamed at by the lady next to him? To be fair, it is Fenway. Remember Dick surprising us with Pepe. We then hit up CPK to chill with Sierra Mix. Remember Cristal, Jackson and Rybo taking selfies with the girls in the background? Later that night we went to the Blue Man Group for the coolest show ever. Remember Danny participating, and Milk and Cristal twerking at the end? Remember late-night bowling, I mean arcade? Pepe got the snake, but Napach tossed the snake out the window. Remember Katana in the hotel. Swain having to "Take me to your leader." Remember Water Country, and staff getting sick tattoos? Cristal gets the stars, Milk gets a trio of horses that imagine, Paddy gets the butterfly and Daire gets the lips. What a great four days we had together. Not kidding when I say that it was the greatest excursion I've ever been on.

Remember breaking Green and White coming back from Excursion? Neither do I, but we weren't far off. G and W broke moments after during the most intense Katana period against the Lancers. The chopper broke the war and we picked our Captains and Cos. Congratulations to Chalkman and Podl, and Rybo and Bear for the way you boys led your respective teams. Remember our football game? A great comeback by the Green ending in a tie! Remember the lip-sync for both teams? White was over the top, Green was too. Remember when White lost by 2? Neither do I, and let's not talk about it. I am sorry I couldn't watch all of your guys' games, but I tried my best to stop by at most. Every activity, no matter the outcome, was fought hard. I applaud you boys for the way you handled yourselves on and off the field. These five days can bring the worst out in people; I am very glad that it brought the best out of you all.

FORESTERS

Remember getting a little taste of what being the senior-most group on camp was like when the Saxons left? We Forester aided to perfection. I am positive that you guys will one day become great counselors. Remember an eventful last week? Human bowling on the quad, Nadeing out, and the dance-off against the Lancers. Danny's act of valor: belly flopping on the dance floor. Bear chalking Chalkman's head at Paddleboard. Josh beats out Pepe to take the senior camp boys tennis crown. Remember the Bird Bung? Did you know that 99% of birds on camp don't even have a bung? Remember Dude's Night Out? Your staff teaching you how to be responsible at night. Remember our last evening activity of ultimate frisbee? It is awesome how we started and ended the summer with ultimate – come full circle.

To my staff, being a GL is tough, but I wouldn't know. You all made my job so easy this summer and I couldn't be more appreciative of what you have given the group. Each one of you is a great counselor, and it was fun to see our personalities combine to create the greatest staff this Realm has seen. I will miss every single one of you, but I know we will never be out of touch. I love you all.

Foresters – You boys are a group that can never be overlooked. With so much hilarity and love for each other, camp must respect every single one of you. I look forward to hearing about your Saxon summer, and seeing you all very soon. Please remember that it is not what you do but who you are doing it with. As long as you are all together and treating each other with respect and love, you can do no wrong. You are a group that I have always envied for the way you make everything fun. Don't lose sight of what this place means. Don't lose sight of how easy it is to be a kid. Always remember that you have each other, and you will always have me. Thanks for the best summer of my life. One love FOB.

Stone – I can't not smile at you trying your hardest to not smile when looking at me. You pucker the lips and dim the eyes, and I know a laugh is on its way. You came into the summer with such a great attitude of giving every activity your best and sort of lost sight mid-way through the summer. But if I can give you any advice, it would be to do your Saxon summer the way you did the first week of Forester summer. In life you can only control your attitude, and if you keep it positive, I know you will have the best summer of your life.

Bear – You came late and picked up right where you left off. It was frustrating watching you deal with the thumb situation, but you made the most of it. You are an incredible athlete but more than that, you are an incredible friend. Everyone in the group views you as someone they are close to, even if they are constantly teasing. It is a comfort level that no one else has with the rest of the group but you. Being able to laugh at yourself is a very mature skill that you have learned early. You should be more confident because you are an amazing kid. Never underestimate your voice in the group. You are and should be loud.

Rybo – It is pretty clear why your nickname is BFG. You're honestly the sweetest kid I've ever met, but at the same time you have the best whiny voice in camp. You're one easy person to talk to and always down to clown – even if that means flipping a friend's area. I can't wait to see your camp presence increase, and show The Realm some hilarity.

Brock Chalkman – A leader is not someone with the loudest voice or presence, the most years on camp, or the most popular in a group. A leader is someone who has the best intentions for those around him, and for that you are a leader. Whether coming up to me to notify me of a problem that has arisen, or just trying to get more people involved, you are constantly thinking about your boys before thinking about yourself. You have a long career in front of you here. Please make sure to keep your priorities in check. Remember that although it is great to care about everyone's well being, it is not your job. Your only job is to have fun because everything will work out in the end.

Miguel – The once-Birchmont-boy-who-turned-straight Hood. The Realm is very lucky to have you. You are the stereotypical perfect camper. Although maybe not the loudest, a relentless smile goes along way in the mindsets of the people around you. You came into camp knowing no one but left with many great friends. I would like to commend not only the group for this but also yourself. You made your presence felt in a tight-knit group where others could not. As a counselor, it is nice knowing that I can always count on you to be well mannered and to get along with everyone. I am excited to see you next summer, as I know you will be back.

Harry – Even though you came late, your addition to the group was immediately felt. Your constant humorous outlooks on life uplift those around you. With your humor and spirit, you will without a doubt be an integral part of this group's success Saxon year and in summers to follow. Stay full session next summer.

Henschman – You have one of the most lovable personalities I've ever seen and you go everywhere with a smile on your face. If there is one thing for certain, you are always there for your boys, and that matters a lot. Your intelligence allows you to gauge the mood of any situation, thus knowing when to be serious or goof around. Learn to laugh more when people throw negative energy your way. You always have the choice to rise above it, and I know you can and will. I love your family. Keep coming back.

Cavin – It was incredible being able to have those few days with you. Even though we had limited time, I was able to learn so much about you and the man you have become. First seeing you in the Lodge was surreal. We weren't old enough to chill back when you lived in Cleveland, but I feel confident saying that we would be besties now. You are the definition of leader. After being away for so long, I am sure you felt nervous about coming back to the group. But instead of just fitting in, you stood out. You created and rekindled friendships, and added to the group dynamic in a really positive way. I hope to see you soon for either a family visit or at camp next summer, or both.

Fernando – When speaking about someone who has integrated themselves into the group for all the right reasons, you stand alone. You are the constant in this group that provides friendship and humor. I was genuinely impressed by your positive demeanor and enthusiasm. Your spirited, competitive energy at every activity helped to make this summer great for all of us. You are the type of camper that every group needs.

Eli – The entire summer, we have been trying to figure out what kind of creature you resemble. Probably something along the lines of a bird whose also a superhero, who also spends time doing voice overs for the history channel. Your role in this group has been to provide non-stop hilarity and you do that day in and out. It's in your blood to keep coming back to this place, but I hope you understand that it is in your heart where this place belongs. Although at times it may seem as if you are not having fun, in all actuality you are having a better time than you think.

Javi – I know your first year in The Realm was memorable and enjoyable. Not only did you manage to fit right in with the group, but also you killed it on the soccer pitch, basketball court and at nearly every other sport. You are quiet to most, but very outgoing with the ones you are close with. I hope the familiarity that comes along with next summer will allow you to expand your comfort zone to connect with more kids in the group. You are an incredible kid, and the whole group deserves to experience that.

Nasack – You have an incredible sense of hearing. Two counselors could be gossiping at the far, far field, and you would still be able to hear them from the bung. You are mature, often times too mature for yours and the group's own good. But you are compassionate with the junior campers, which is awesome to see because I know that someday you will become a great counselor and leader for camp. Don't let Diddy talk you out of coming back – he's the king of Dooping.

FORESTERS

Josh – I am sorry we never got to our one-on-one game, but I'm down to meet up in Coach Houser's back yard for a quick contest. Josh, you should be more confident in your decision-making. You are a very smart and logical kid. There is no reason to question your gut feeling. You are a leader in this group, but need to start making decisions for the group that benefit everyone. A leader's most important trait is looking out for the best intentions of all, not just one. I am excited to see how you take on the role next summer while leading camp.

Jackson – I think the little scare of you not coming back was a great thing for you and the group. This place can be lost so quickly that when you have the chance to come back, it shouldn't be a decision. You love camp and that's important for you to remember in December. You are quiet to camp, but your voice in the group is very loud. You are hilarious and nice. Camp would love to see that side of you, and there is no better time than Saxon summer. You will do big things next summer, and I am excited to see you grow into that role.

Oscar – You brought a lot of fun and zest to the group. Your wide-eyed outlook got me to realize how special every fleeting camper moment is at this place. I hope you cherish your time here, because it will be all over before you know it. Come back next summer to help the group lead The Realm.

Pepe – You made a very concerted effort to reach out of your shell/comfort zone, and I am so glad to see that it paid off. Your energetic disposition will make you a superb leader of camp next summer. Your sense of humor and huge heart will make you a great leader of the group as well. Come back a little earlier, and this place could be yours.

Ethan – You bring a different and delightful twist to the group. You have grown to love your group members this summer, and they have done the same with you. Your personality will get you far at this camp, but the passion you share for the group's success is what makes you special. You have tons of friends in other groups, but your best friends are the boys you live with. That's awesome.

Sobes – I can't believe we fell in love this summer. Oh wait, yes I can. You're a happy, high-energy camper that loves all who is around and has no place for hate in your heart. You are the epitome of what a camper should be, and for that you are a leader in this group. Your dance moves crack me up, mostly because they are so spot-on. You make everyone around you happier just by being you. That is an incredible attribute.

Swain – You're an athlete but that has nothing to do with why you're great. You are a quiet leader on and off the field. There is never negativity that comes out of your mouth. You have a relationship with everyone in the bunk and it's noticeable how people talk about you. I know you will be back next summer to lead camp. Your time is not finished.

Andrea – I can't believe you're the Prince of Monaco's nephew and you weren't on the White Royalty. You came in a little skeptical and very quiet. A bit of that probably had to do with the language barrier, but by your second week you opened up and everyone loved what you had to show them. You are an awesome kid who could make a wall laugh. You're funny one liners like "Classic Annabelle" and your ability to make people laugh is what makes you such an important piece in this group. You love camp for all the right reasons. Come back next summer.

Wasserman – You throw out uncomfortable faces and jokes. I still can't tell if you're truly funny or just awkwardly hilarious. Whichever it is, you are a leader in this group. It is evident that the group listens to what you have to say. Saxon year is a great way to reach out to all of camp. Make sure you are influencing those who look up to you in the right way. You have the ability to make kids' summers next year. Try hard to get to know everyone. Like you said, "Don't worry... Dick said it won't hurt."

Weiss – I don't think I have ever really seen you in a bad mood. You bring great energy to the group and you're always down to laugh. Who doesn't need that combo at camp? You play an important role in this group as an experienced camper who understands camp and as someone who helps bridge the gap between the old and the new campers.

Whats up dudes?

How are you? So nice to see you!
Anyone seen my cactus? No? Shucks well I guess he's probably off with sandor in a dark and dirty corner of the dorms. Those were clean, right? Just like you all during Saxon inspection. Right? Could have changed the war boys...hahaha

HELLO, welcome to my mind. I am currently sitting and recounting all of the ridiculous hilarity that ensued in what may go down as the best summer any best friends could ever have. Laughter, emotion, sport, adventure, challenge, Ben Scheer, theatre, jesters, love, Dallas, and so much more. You guys saw and handled it all with maturity and excitement this summer. You came in hot on day one and never let the spark die; you gave camp and yourselves the summer we all dream about during the winter, so lets do the thing!

Remember being surprised when I was your group leader? Disappointed? Some of you need to work on your poker faces. Remember when all the group leaders had nice, big signs and I had those post-its that somehow stayed sticky for 6 hours? PUT your hands up for that one! Remember Schreibman botching the potentially epic saxophone shout-out at the staff talent show? Watch out for the left kid. Remember our talent show skit compilation? HUGE hit with everyone except the brass, and the reader...sorry Ariel. Also Meister, no one thought you would go there but you did. Check yourself or I'll have to demote you. Remember that close call at the senior waterfront...there has never been a more clutch towel placement in history. Flash that was yours...Remember feeding the goats!!! Followed by Cozy. Best Mountain bike period in history.

Remember going to see White House Down...EPIC...I have never in my life had zero emotion throughout a film then laughed so hysterically afterwards. Well done Jamie Fox, you have my vote for cheesiest, most Americanized performance of the year. Classic flag twirling lessons coming in handy...Remember blowing up spots in the vans every time we came back onto camp? Remember that gnarly air when we got back early from Beach Day? We don't but the horses might.

Remember our dance? The one that totally existed the day before the show... Although it was last minute, you guys were definitely doin' it right up there (see what I did there). Cue hand motion. Wario and Waluigi... too classic.

Remember making the chill room?
Remember when that was Pepe's home?
Remember when the sinks and toilets were acceptable? Remember when Magda became our friend? Remember mine and Noah's secret shower? Sorry I'm not sorry. Remember our morning rituals with SRUP and SMOSS? SMOSS was so fast! We had such a sick bung.

Remember July 4th...fun day all around and you guys did a really great job. Protecting the flag was a battle of the ages, but with few casualties and a post-battle chill-sesh I think the night was pretty successful. Cody, you are a warrior and that is all.

Remember being athletic? Smiles? Remember our late night basketball games on the upper court? Udanus, CP3, Birdman, Double A, Double B, Bloch, Durant, Kobe, LeBron, and the whole crew balling till the break of dawn. Remember going to Indian Acres with Vertes in the duster? DK taking Kanye's advice and turning off the lights (maybe a more unconventional way). We dominated the fun, the rocks, the paper, and the scissors so at the end of the day I'd call it a tie.

Remember Dermer's tree shot? So determined to hit, he went out knowing there had been bears in that area not long before. Remember JB doing riding at the end of camp? Remember taking an interest in culinary happenings at camp? Remember Yensi coming in that one night to find all the decorations?

Remember PVD...HAVE YOU SEEN MY DAD!?! MOM?!?! You guys have the nicest parents in the world. Don't know what happened to you. Just playing, Remember Wheeler killing it at every activity? Remember Chad and Drob making guest appearances? Remember when I hit trees for the first time all summer? Huge for me. Remember our 45-person dinner? Thanks for being welcoming of the staff into your families. I have come to realize just how important and special it is to be close with your family so never forget that. When I say you guys are a part of my family, that is the biggest compliment I could possibly give. I value family more than anything so know that and please don't forget to value yours, because they are great. Sorry I got a little sentimental there...Cause Scotty...I've got some tissues but nowhere I can sneeze!

Post PVD is always interesting. Remember being aggressive with phone numbers? Operation piglet? Did I orchestrate that?! Firing off cheer after cheer pretty recklessly. Remember our surprisingly sick fake break? Bloch going full camo, obviously? Actually tricking tons of people even though multiple groups were out of camp?

Green and White

First and foremost, congrats to you all for having an incredible war. Your intensity surprised me, your leadership was impeccable, and your heart surpassed what I think you could have ever imagined. Having said that... remember inspection on day 5...euhhh... remember the 6 minute, best of 5, Gaga game...Remember the over aggressive throw in Danish...the game ended exactly as it was meant to and was, what I felt, a perfect end to an incredible war within the group. Remember Nacho playing in jeans (killed it) before heading back to Spain after the game...he was the first one out and I think we were all very emotional to see such a solid new friend leave. But remember when he left with the ONE bag he brought to camp at the gas pump?

Start your engines for GL 2...2...2-2...2-2. Throw up your 2's! We lost the man, myth, legend, and palest man to walk The Realm in Jacob Szabo and said "hello" to Sam Jonas, the only man to ever truly understand the "magic" in the trees. Remember Lazy Day and the White Team staying behind in the dining hall to sing their songs while the Green Team went to Cozy? I hope none of you boys forget that special moment. Remember burgers being more enjoyable than the steak? If you miss another meal, NO Excursion! And so we began Saxon Excursion with nobody left behind, accompanied by DC, Jamie, and the countless Scribes. Remember passing out and leaving Jonas to his own thoughts for four straight hours?

On night 1 we watched the Cape Cod Summer League game under the lights as the Chatham Anglers beat the Dennis-Yarmouth Red Sox 6-5 in ten innings (we should've stayed). ...JB spots up on the dugout for the entire game...Flash gets a souvenir...After an odds-are, Gotts gets rejected (suave)... Remember (almost) leaving Wheeler behind twice...Dermer befriends Huckins over an ice cream... Remember day 2 and the Advanced team?... JB and Scheer take surfing MVP...Sandor dares to try... Off to Provincetown we went for 3 hours of clothes shopping and to B as Exclusive as possible...Half the group eats fancy while the other half become Queens of Burgers...Remember day three and the hype over mini-golf? My bad. I still had fun. Jamie almost beats DC in mini golf...Scheer once again steals the show and Gotts reinforces his country club image...NO drifting or bumping in Go-karts...Flash verbally creates the sound of the motor...We left P-town and drove up to Fire and Ice only to have Magda and Hannah's birthday be the talk of all... Amazing excursion boys.

Remember the final week of camp and having "tomorrow" be the day for remember when's? Shout out to Wheeler and Schreibman... Remember our last minute Founder's Day gift?...OPEN RANGE...Random audio equipment showing up in our bung and the week of music on the quad begins... Flash saves the day by sprinting to change the questionable song choice...Avicii-Wake Me Up becomes the most overplayed song on camp (along with Walk On By)...early morning softball and doughnuts?...Dermer, C'mon man!...Kaptzan and Jonas' intense game of 1 v 1 on the upper court...The final night and the excitement-filled activities like sleeping on the waterfront to sleeping in the bunk...Killed the last night, boys! Finally, the last few days of camp showed all of camp how truly special all of you are...from the continuous cheers in the dining hall to your memorable speeches, never has this Realm seen a young group of gentlemen be so representative of what camp truly is, and should be. You all know how I feel about every single one of you. What was once purely a camper/staff dynamic has turned into a dynamic of which I see all of you as true friends, having shared, appreciated, and experienced every aspect of The Realm. I'm blessed and grateful to have had the opportunity to once again be your GL for a portion of the summer. Come back, come back, come back, camp needs you and you all need camp. I love you all. GL-2, signing off.

SAXONS

Alex Bloch – It seemed to me that you made a concerted effort to be with the group while assisting at the range. You are a very driven guy and I have a lot of respect for you following your dream. It was way too fun to go to the army barracks store with you – having said that, please take care of yourself and be smart.

Hamad Al-Mutawa – I could not have been more pumped to see you on the group list when I first got to camp. We have so many funny memories from '08 and look at how many more we made this summer. You did an absolutely incredible job with the TPJs and they have so much love for you; I think we found your calling. You are tough, funny, aggressive, and lighthearted all at once.

JB – How did you like America? I am very happy we had the opportunity to bond over the beauties of America when we stopped at the lake on our way to PVD dinner. It is difficult coming into camp late, but I know you witnessed the closeness of this group and the bonds that camp creates. You were a great asset for your team in Color War and played very well in all the activities.

David Kaptzan – Everyone was anticipating your Beach Day arrival for days. You showed up with a smile and I feel like I never saw you in a bad mood. You are a love-life person and I appreciate that. Keep hash-tagging.

DK – Do you remember what you asked me for on the first day of camp? Remember that wildcard present at the lower court on PVD? Be calm, Mandela is still alive and we are not doing Subway for dinner. For real, you are one of the most intellectual people I have met at camp. Stay curious, know that you are great, and do what makes you happy. TRIPS STAFF 2014!

Gotts – Goat, cub, chef, drake, sleeping beauty - camp wants their kitchen supplies. I can't tell if you are a better leader or coach. You are a really good coach. I loved hanging around this summer with you. I quickly found out that your smile isn't always conniving, but it is sometimes. Stay level headed; maybe get out of bed earlier, and you will be able to lead people effectively for a long time.

Nacho – I think you got a nice taste of staff this summer. You got camp immediately and fit right into the group. You had an amazing summer man. You have so many new friends, 16 new brothers, and another place to call home. Be well my friend, I hope to see you next summer.

Matthew – How in the world does your brain retain the lyrics to every song ever written? You are one of the most immature, mature kids I have ever met. Always remember your power and influence on camp. You somehow had the energy to be the last one jumping off the walls every night. Don't stop being yourself at all times because you're great.

Meister – Thanks for doing my job dude. You are such a great guy. Down to do anything at any point as long as your friends are there. You're pretty decent with a roller too. I admire a lot in you and you know that; keep being confident and keep being you.

Dermer – You are a ridiculous human and I love you. Please take care of yourself and watch your mouth. Having said that, you have a great smile and have a great sense of humor. Drop boof and sus, they're flops. Be in touch and you should probably go to college in the US.

Ben Scheer – You are such a genuinely nice dude. I really enjoyed our philosophical talks and those that were just about nothing. You are incredibly smart and I want you to always remember that. Stay this friendly forever, stay open and excited for change, and remain curious.

Noah – I am so happy that we spent so much time together this summer. You have a wit or sense of humor that I love and really displays how smart you, and how willing you are to make other people laugh. You love camp more than anyone I know. You did a great job this summer with your groups, and I know you are going to be a great counselor. Control that urge to be inappropriate, be yourself, show people your intellect, and be in touch.

Jorge – I need to meet your parents because I love your family. You are the nicest, most socially aware (even in a foreign country), most helpful, cheeriest guy I have ever met. Your view on camp and life is something that I learned from you this summer and try to emulate within myself today. Stay in touch and I hope our paths cross again soon friend.

Cody – Thanks for keeping that smile the entire summer. You are a great guy and you clearly love camp. Aka you got your 10 year, congrats! You did a phenomenal job with the TPJs. The way you bonded and led those kids was very special to watch for me, like a paternal moment seeing you do so well. Keep coming back because you have a lot to offer.

Flash – I always knew I could come to you for advice and help. You always seem to have the right pulse of what the group is feeling and should be doing. I heard your grandfather was on the canoe! Hope you found big chief at the airport; I am sure he wouldn't forget to come. Keep your head up, stay confident and accepting because you are a great leader and that doesn't go away.

Smiles – I cannot believe you are part of the crew. Know what that means for us and that I think the world of you. You lead in a quiet way, while having the ear of everyone in the room immediately. Embrace everything, work hard and don't let the stresses in life hide the fact that you need to be happy. Keep it alive, keep coming back. See you at vandy. Love you.

Iain and Paddy – thanks for all of your help. You guys are both such funny dudes individually and an even better comical duo. Often I felt the same way hanging with you that I do with Steel, but that's probably because you're both British. Thanks for listening to me complain, helping me when I needed it, giving camp shelter and safety, providing us all with wonderful trips, making trips cool, taking the kids on Katahdin, being funny, and being you. Good luck with everything.

Saxophones – Thank you all for your shout outs in your speeches, I was told all about them. You guys are amazing. You are the best thing to happen to this camp since gaga, nicky, and grey dog. Please come back. You have already proved that you can be great counselors and great leaders. I promise being a counselor is the most rewarding job I have ever had. You will learn so much about people, camp and yourself. You are the present and future leaders of this place. Good luck with being seniors. Love you all. One love.

TUMBLERS

HEY TUMBLERS (YEAH!) HEY TUMBLERS (YEAH!) DO YOU KNOW HOW, TO FEEL THE BURN?

Tumb13rs, step away from your Rainbow Looms and Duck Tape, no I'm not going to tell you what Evening Activity is, and no, we can't have Candy Canteen tonight (we've already had it several times this week!) because instead it's time to look back on an amazing summer spent in The Realm...

Remember that beautiful and sunny day in New Hampshire when you all arrived? There was a level of apprehension and excitement in the air that can mean only one thing: an adventure is about to begin! How lucky you all were to have seven counselors waiting to greet you at the Gas Pump and settle you into, what is definitely, the most beautiful bunk on Camp – Bunk 7 – your new home from home. Remember our first Evening Activity? I could hardly go wrong with a Treasure Hunt, provided the treasure was Candy, could I?! It was the perfect way to show you round camp, and we all had so much fun getting to know each other over some Sour Patch, Rolos, Starbursts, and potato chips: Tucking you all into bed that night, without an ounce of homesickness between you, I knew it was going to be a great summer.

Remember when you all passed your sixteen laps with the Shires? I was so proud of what you all achieved and it really set the tone for what fast became an action-packed first week. Remember the first time we all went tubing and nearly everyone fell off in spectacular style, including me? Remember when we climbed Mount Rattlesnake and the amazing view when we finally made it to the top? Remember going to Weirs Beach afterwards? Remember going to the Mainer's game and eating buckets of popcorn as big as our heads? Remember everyone wearing the buckets like hats? Olivia and Ella, do you remember coming on the buggy with me during half time and waving to everyone from the pitch? Remember how excited you all were when you realized we were going to Cozy Corner for ice cream on the way home? Remember Carys' Birthday at the Outpost? The giant storm managed to hold off long enough to let us eat pizza and s'mores – thankfully! Remember how we led you all there blindfolded and holding hands? Remember when the storm came in and we ran as fast as our legs could carry us? Remember how we only made it as far as the barn before we took refuge and played games together on the stage? Remember when Woody came to rescue us? Remember how he got a van to take us to the dining hall and we all got Sunday Sundae's, even though we'd already had pizza, smores, and cake!

Remember Week Two? Another week, another Birthday – Laurel's this time – Dunkin' Donuts for Breakfast, cookie cake after lunch, and yet more tubing as a special treat. By this point it was safe to assume that tubing was everyone's favorite activity! Hearing you all squeal with excitement every time it was announced was awesome. Remember July 4th? Remember the fair? The slip 'n' slide? The cookie decorating? Marrying your best friends? Noah Wheeler telling your fortune? The dunk tank? The Beach Party? Remember the magic show? Remember how freaked out you were by the magician's 'I'm here' trick? He was soooo good! Remember how hot it was on that Friday that after we'd played gaga we couldn't resist jumping in the lake? Remember how much you wanted to go pajama jumping so we tried to hide it from you? We had an amazing PJ Party on the porch, where I witnessed some of the best dancing I have ever seen, and though I knew you had all figured it out by now, you were no less excited when I finally announced we were actually pajama jumping. Remember when we told you we were going Horse-Poop Wrestling to hide our real activity, but by the time the joke was over you all actually wanted to go and were genuinely disappointed that it wasn't happening? Remember when we had riflery for Evening Activity? Remember when we broke into Candy Canteen and Michelle yelled at us? Remember the relief when she joined the line and we realized she was joking? Remember performing Gingerbread Jan? Remember holding auditions to see who would play me? Keep working on your English accents, girls! Remember sleeping at the Outpost? Remember how we cooked our dinner on the open fire, ate yet more s'mores, and played fun games on the Far Far Field until the sun went down?

ATTENTION! Remember Military Monday? No? Drop and Give me 20! Remember TPJ Tuesday? Remember challenging them to Gaga? Remember Dare2Tri and how incredible they were? Remember how much they inspired us all? Remember playing Gaga with them? Remember playing tennis with Tee Tee? We are so lucky to be here and have everything that we do. Remember having s'mores with the Scribes and learning Robin Hood songs and cheers? Remember scary stories with SRupp? Remember the story of Green Eyes? Remember why you should never be the first one on a Merry-Go-Round? Remember the social with DJ Woody? Remember dancing so much we were all sweating? Remember when I came Trail Riding with you? Remember playing Capture the Flag for the last College League event? Remember cheering the Under 15's on against West End? Remember 'So You Think You Can Dance'? You guys were awesome up there and I was so proud of how well you worked together as a group to make up the dance. Remember the crazy plays you came up with for Paper Bag Skits? I'm not going to pretend that I wasn't a little concerned by some of your observations...Remember getting your SSS's at the Girls Camp Fire? Remember how much fun you had getting secret messages and gifts from your SSS's and doing similar things for yours?

Remember Beach Day? Remember going out for lunch together? Remember the world's biggest ice creams? Remember chasing waves in the ocean? Remember the Island Swim? You were all amazing, especially Lily, Jillian, and Carly Gimbel who swam there and back! Remember spa night? Remember Rain, Sadie-Margaret, and Laqueesha? You guys were so pampered that night between massages, makeovers and manicures and it was so much fun! Remember how much we looked forward to Parents Visiting Day? We practiced our commercial for the Talent Show and it was so funny on the night! Seeing the joy on your faces as you greeted your parents at the barn was very emotional to watch. Spending the day with you and your parents was one of my favorite days of the summer. I was so proud of everything you achieved over the summer and I was excited for you to share that with your families. Remember the best brownies you've ever tasted? Thanks Maddie's Mum! Remember making the Time Capsule? I wonder if Rainbow Looms and One Direction will still be cool when you're Scribes? I hope when you dig it up 7/8 years from now that you will be fondly reminded of the amazing summer you spent together as the Tumblers of 2013. Remember that night? We broke into the kitchen and Chuck caught us, but you were so cute that he gave us ice cream and we lay together on the quad watching the stars and reminiscing about our summer together.

The bonds you formed with each other this summer will be like no other in life and so it was no surprise that emotions were running so high the following day when it was time to say goodbye to many loved members of the group. But, as we said goodbye to some, we welcomed others and Hilary and Quincy finally completed the Tumb13rs. Our numbers may have dwindled, but our excitement did not. As 16 became 6, all we could do now was look forward to Green & White...

Remember the tension in the air when we knew it was coming? Remember how many times people set the alarm off? How many times people ran from the dining hall on to the quad convinced it had broken? Remember the Saxon & Scribe Fake Break? Remember how Evening Activity on that Wednesday night was freaking out about Green & White? Remember when Gurman predicted the exact time it would break? Remember the rumble that came over the lake as DC and Jamie appeared at the waterfront in a helicopter? Remember how fast we ran as we chased them to the quad and then to the Far Far Field? Remember how as they landed and we watched them get out, came the unmistakable sound of a fire engine from behind us and we finally saw the hats, the canes, and the judges? Color War had officially begun.

Congratulations to Daisy and Lily who were elected as the Tumbler's Camper Captains. You both did brilliantly leading your teams over the five days, showing great intensity and sportsmanship. Though the Mighty White Royalty held a strong lead throughout the war, it was the Great Green Monsters who were ultimately victorious following the 'best Song Night ever!' Win or lose, it was an amazing war – certainly the best I have been a part of – and you were all incredible. It was great to see you all coming together with the Jesters to compete so hard in every activity. When the final scores were at last read, it felt so lovely for us all to come back together as group, and as exhausted as you all were, you were promised a night sleeping on the porch and a night sleeping on the porch you got – you truly deserved it. Remember how lazy day was the best day ever? Remember the donuts? Remember how you helped Kruse find her bed, which was bizarrely located in the Riflery Range, and when you went back to check on her she was fast asleep? Remember how we spent the whole afternoon doing manicures and glitter tattoos? After such an intense 5 days, it was just what we all needed so that we were well rested for our next big adventure...EXCURSION!

Junior Camp were an unstoppable force over those 2 days – the Tumbler-Jesters and the TPJ-Squires killing it at Story Land and Cranmore Mountain Adventure Park. Not forgetting a trip to the movies to see 'Despicable Me 2' and a pit stop at Ben & Jerry's on our way home. Remember how many times we went on the Polar Coaster and screaming and laughing the whole way down? Remember the Turtle Twirl and how we were all going to throw up? Remember how much we loved Bamboo Chutes and wishing we could go on it for the rest of the afternoon? Remember at lunch when I had casually poured half a packet of sugar over my fries before Carly pointed out it wasn't salt?! Remember making fajitas at the campground (they were delicious!) before heading off for the movies? Remember how much we loved the movie and laughing almost non-stop the whole way through? Remember getting back to the campground and pitching our tents in the dark? Then you all snuggled up in the tent together and fell fast asleep after a long and exciting day. The next stop was Cranmore Mountain Adventure Park and you all had a blast climbing through the tress on the aerial ropes course, but the fun didn't stop there. After take-out pizza for lunch, we spent the afternoon on all the amazing rides. I loved taking you all on everything and seeing your big smiles, and your screams of excitement as we took turns on the alpine coaster, tubing, the Flying Eagle and the Giant Swing. Remember how bummed out we were when it was time to leave, but then the excitement when we arrived at Ben & Jerry's for ice cream – the perfect – and most delicious – way to round off an awesome weekend.

Though we were all sad that excursion had come to an end, the excitement built once again as we passed under the Robin Hood Sign singing the Alma Mater, and we realized we were all back in our favorite place again greeting our friends like we hadn't seen them forever, though it had only been a couple of days!

Remember when you didn't ask several hundred questions a minute? Remember when you knew where you'd left your water bottles? Remember when we were on time for a period? Remember when Julia wasn't wearing neon? Remember when Lily wasn't organizing everyone? Remember when you slept in on Lazy Days? Remember when circle time didn't go on for hours because we got sidetracked talking about restaurants? Remember when Talia didn't get mail? Remember when you took quick showers? Remember when we weren't playing circle games? Remember when Izzy had her hair up? Remember when Carys got out of bed on time? Remember when Ella wasn't dancing? Remember when Daisy wasn't talking about Justin Bieber? Remember that time when we didn't have the most fun ever? WE DON'T!

Hilary Adelman – You were such a natural camper, and even though you came late to the group, you immediately fit in and threw yourself whole-heartedly into every aspect of camp life. I was constantly impressed by your maturity and confidence, and you were a joy to share the last 3 weeks with.

Talia Charnas – Campers would flock from far and wide to request one of your Rainbow Loom bracelets, and who could blame them?! I was so happy when you decided to stay for an extra 2 weeks, because I had seen you grow so much and I didn't want that to come to an end. It was so great to see you participating in all the activities and watching all the new friendships you made.

Kylie Gilfillan-Long – Our very own Gingerbread Jan, it was such a pleasure to see you give your all to every activity. From Horse Riding to crafts, you made the most of every minute. Your kindness and sweet nature always shone through. Every single night you went to bed with a smile on your face and I knew you'd had the best day ever.

Carly Gimbel – I feel so lucky to have spent 2 amazing summers with you at Robin Hood, and I am so glad that you stayed for Green & White this year because you were a fierce competitor. I loved hanging out with you having a girly chat or dancing around the dining hall. I could always count on you to bring me back down to earth when I got carried away doing something crazy. I hope you never lose your strong spirit or your quick wit – both will take you far.

Olivia Ginsberg – You had such an amazing summer and you have so much to be proud of. Not only the youngest kid in the group, but the youngest kid on camp, you have been a wonderful camper. Always smiling, laughing, having fun, and giving every activity your all, I cannot express how special and rare you are to come to camp at your age with that level of maturity and spirit. That is why you were so loved by everyone and why you have an incredible career at camp ahead of you, like your family before you.

TUMBLERS

Carys Grabel – I will never forget the smile on your face when you woke up on the morning of your birthday to a decorated bunk bed and a pile of presents and cards on the porch. You made me laugh every day with your killer sense of humor and your banter was great fun. Thank you for bringing an unforgettable sass to our group. 2 weeks of it was just too short!

Quincy Hansburg – Who says last minute decisions aren't the best ones? I think deciding to come to camp the night before is the best – and bravest – decision you could have made. From the moment I saw you dive into the lake to start your 16 without a moment's hesitation, I knew you had the right attitude for camp. Though you are positively fish-like in the water, I just know that even if you hadn't been you would have tackled that task with the same positive attitude. You gave everything your all at camp and you were a welcome addition to the group. I hope we will see your smiling face back here for many summers to come.

Ella Jaffe – You came for 2 and stayed for 4: that's how much you loved camp! Watching your skills, confidence, and love of camp grow so much in those 4 weeks was special to be a part of. I admire how hard you worked to improve your skills, especially in swimming. I am proud of how much you achieved in the lake this summer, and you should be too. Next summer you won't think twice before jumping off the tower, I'm sure! PS: Those are some killer dance moves you've got!

Isabella Lightman – Hopefully you've got you hair in a ponytail so you can actually see to read this... Your fun-loving nature and kindness are infectious and you made so many strong friendships this summer, which was lovely to see. You brought so much joy to the group every day as you did everything with a smile and never hesitated to participate or make someone feel welcome.

Laurel Milacci – We're up all night to Mexican Latte's... I was so happy that you could stay that extra week and I hope you were too. I loved celebrating your birthday with you and surprising you with one of your favorite activities – tubing! You were a ball of energy and always the first to volunteer for any activity with a smile.

Ava Napach – The Tumblers could not have asked for a kinder member of the group – a friend to everyone and always the voice of reason. You were everything a camper should be: sweet, funny, generous, enthusiastic, and unique. I hope you loved the Tumblers as much we all loved you. Watching you have so much fun every day used to remind me why I love to be a counselor, and I could never resist a smile whenever I saw your big brown eyes and your beaming smile.

Julia Rosen – As you read this I feel sure that your hair is perfect, you have bracelets going up both your arms, and you are sporting every shade of neon in the rainbow! I feel so lucky to have been your counselor for 2 years now – front row seats to watch you grow into the beautiful and talented camper that you are fast becoming. Keep coming back and sharing all you have to offer with The Realm. PS: I am willing to bet that never before has anyone at camp devoted an entire duffle bag just to bed cushions!

Carly Segal – You are such a sweet and talented young girl and it was really amazing to witness your achievements in so many areas, like when I saw you stay up on water ski's for your whole turn after only the 2nd time of trying – it was just incredible. Your natural sporting ability and competitive streak will make you an asset to any team, and I really admire how much effort you put into every activity.

Lily Shafer – Radio 9 here I come... My Silly Lily, with you it felt like I had another AGL! You are the most confident and organized 9-year-old I know, with more energy than every 9-year-old I know! Being your counselor is SO much fun, especially when you give me piggy back rides round the dining hall... I was so proud of you watching you lead your team to victory in nearly every one of your Green & White activities – well done! You were the life and soul of the Tumblers, but so caring and generous too, we wouldn't have been the same without you. You have an amazing camp career ahead of you.

Camille Skala – From the word go, you loved camp and seemed to breeze through every day. You tried so many new things and made some lovely new friends. I am so happy that camp allowed you to foster all of your interests and develop your many talents. You have so much spirit and determination that I know you will accomplish all of your goals, whatever they may be.

Daisy Swirsky – When you arrived the night before all the others, complete with a roll of Justin Bieber Duck Tape, I thought you might be over-whelmed by all 7 of your counselors who were simply dying to meet you, and maybe an ordinary kid would be, but not The Swirsky! As cool, calm, and collected that night as you remained for the whole summer, you were an awesome camper. You were a delightful bundle of spirit, energy, and enthusiasm, and what more could anyone ask for as a counselor?

Charlotte Wasserman – Thank you for being such a pleasure to have in the group. You did everything with a smile and never complained. Your enthusiasm and positive attitude were as infectious as your smile. You were always great fun and I really enjoyed watching you develop such strong friendships within the group.

Jillian Zolot – Did you ever stop smiling? Every single day you inspired me with your energy, enthusiasm, and love for absolutely everything camp. No one would have known it was only your first year at camp as you embraced the whole experience and truly loved every minute. You are so blessed to be such a natural at so many things and you've got the personality to boot – camp is made for people like you!

To my Staff – Maddie, Gurms, Lainey, Erin, Helen, and Kate... As a first year GL, I couldn't have done all of this without you and I truly appreciate all the support you have given me – and our girls – this summer. Whether we were dancing in the dining hall or planning the next Evening Activity, I sometimes felt like we were having more fun than the campers! From the bottom of my heart, I thank each and every one of you.

To my Tumblers of 2013 – Thank you for the best summer of my life – I love you all so much. All of you gave me the opportunity to experience camp through the eyes of a child in a way I was never lucky enough to be able to do when I was growing up. I am so envious of all the years you will spend in this special place. Coming back here each summer feels like coming home and there is nowhere else in the world I would rather spend my summers than here at Robin Hood. I hope I was able to pass that love of camp on to all of you. You are such a special group of girls – full of so much kindness, fun, and energy – and I wish I could watch you run riot through Girls camp every summer from now until eternity (well, until you're Scribes anyway!). Never give up, never stop smiling, and never spend longer away from The Realm than you have to.

JESTERS

YO JESTERS! BOOM TACO FILLING!

Put down the rainbow looms and gather round children zip it listen, and get ready to head back to The Realm to relive the greatest summer of your lives.

Remember the first day? Ella having been there for a while just hanging out during pre-camp, Riley and Berrett arriving a night before everyone else and getting settled early. Then the next day, everyone showing up one by one until the mighty Jesters 14 strong was formed! Having our first evening activity with a dance/candy party in the Lodge and all getting to know each other with our awesome nicknames (Cool Chrissy. . .). The next morning we hit the ground running and never looked back! Day two started off strong with every one of you completing your 16 laps - Grace, Riley and Elisabeth killing it swimming faster than the staff.

Remember the first week? Getting to know each other and getting to know camp only took about three seconds for you girls. Most of you playing Gaga for the first time and instantly realizing it's the greatest activity ever. Remember climbing Mt. Major, the hike meant for senior camp? You guys complained just a little bit, and our awesome Scribe aide Becca carried at least three of you up the mountain. Regardless, you all made it to the top and claimed spots in our new cabin AKA a crumbling building we found. Then we drove back with the Squires, a trip that may go down as the loudest bus ride in camp history. We stopped at Cozy Corner on the way home for the first of the million ice cream trips we took this summer.

Remember the fake commercial we made? Ella staring down all of camp and successfully creeping everyone out saying, "If you like being trapped inside an octagon, you'll go gaga for Gaga," Berrett randomly screaming "POTATO" dressed up as Leanne, Claire being Ellie with a clip board, Sloane being Chrissy and looking scarily similar to her with a bun and sunglasses. Remember going to Chrissy's house for evening activity? Playing catchphrase in her living room and making ice cream sandwiches with her mom? You all started singing Robin Hood songs to show our camp pride away from camp.

Remember the first Talent Show? You guys ROCKING it with your "Not All About the Money" song and dance ("Seems like everybody's got a AHHHH!"). Riley, Berrett and Emily taking the stage as the singers, and everyone throwing down some crazy dance moves in the back. Felicity and Elena adding some comedy by jumping on stage dressed as boys and screaming "AIN'T ALL ABOUT THE MONEY!" Remember doing dog show for evening activity? Half of you dressed up as dogs and half of you as owners? Samantha leading Lucky the dog, Maddie leading Grace as some kind of patriotic animal.

Remember So You Think You Can Dance? Your INCREDIBLE dance to "Hurricane"? Every girl doing a different solo showcasing each of your talents. All having to spin and fall on the floor at the end, causing a couple of kicks to the head during practices. Your staff holding paper clouds and throwing blue confetti over the stage for the grand finale.

Remember our swag off? Claiming we stole the Saxons' swag because we're better at cheering. Having a dance off/rap battle/cheer off in the barn and the Jesters coming out as the CLEAR winners. Elena, Samantha and Riley doing the can opener and everyone else throwing out some incredible cheers. ("Hey Saxons where'd your swag go... OOOH wait you never had any to start with... OHHH!").

Remember sleeping at the Outpost? Making the long hike out to the far, far field to set up our stuff in the tents and have a camping meal of leftover pasta and chicken. Playing tag and Frisbee. Setting up a campfire and playing mafia forever with Claire on a power trip as Gd. Staying up late telling stories and really bad, really long jokes then waking up early to head back to the cabin.

Remember Beach Day at beautiful Ogunquit Beach? Braving the freezing waters and spending all of your money on candy? Grace getting a rubber alligator for her birthday, and all of you getting weird gifts from your SSS's. Samantha's grandparents buying us all ice cream, endlessly reapplying sunscreen to avoid extreme pain. Remember having lunch together at 11:00 and then dinner at 3:30? Getting dip n' dots and Sloane and Felicity buying the coolest matching necklaces. Remember heading back to camp covered in sand and exhausted then "showering" in the lake?

Remember theme days? Counselor/Camper switch? Your staff wearing pig-tails all day? You guys wearing all of Ellie's shirts, which didn't exactly fit correctly. Emily being Kruse with sunglasses and a whistle. Remember Wacky Wednesday? Jasmine wearing underwear over her clothing, everyone showing off their best neon getups? Remember PJ Jump?? The evening activity you guys waited the whole summer for?? Everyone jumping off the tower proudly (Samantha and Berrett!!!), and finally getting Pilar to jump also.

Remember Fake Green and White? The Green Gods vs. Toxic White and getting pumped for the real deal? You guys making up some cool songs, Elisabeth leading, "I LOVE IT... FIGHT WHITE FIGHT," and cheers with dance moves to match? Ending the contest with a cracker-eating contest and Elena coming out victorious after stuffing her face with 5 crackers. The Green stealing the lead right at the end for a close victory, foreshadowing what was to come after the four-week point!

Remember all the birthdays throughout the summer? Starting off the summer with Ella's during pre-camp, having a parade and all of the staff singing happy birthday since no campers were around yet! Next up was Claire who got an AWESOME spray-painted box and sweatshirt in the mail from her parents, among many hand-made signs from the rest of the Jesters. Samantha celebrated with so many cool Harry Potter themed gifts and a great trip over to Cozy for some ice cream. Grace's three day long celebration started the day before Beach Day with a parade at dinner, then the whole camp celebrated at Ogunquit for the actual thing! Lastly we went to Cozy the next day, so the party never stopped for Grace. Sloane's birthday closed out the summer with an awesome Pizza Barn picnic in the Lodge followed by a cookie cake at dinner.

Remember Parents Visiting Weekend? The staff having the lovely pleasure of meeting all the parents, and you guys getting to show them around the most amazing place in the world. The Talent Show on Friday where you got to show all your parents your amazing dance, this time dressed in our awesome spray painted t-shirts with some of you as clouds and some of you as suns. The next day, welcoming everyone to camp to have an amazing day of drama, dance, water-ski/ waterfront, and basketball. Having to say goodbye at 5:00, then ending the night off with packing and counselor skits and then back to the cabin to write compliments about one another on big pieces of paper to remember all the good times we had in the first four weeks.

Remember GREEN and WHITE?? The Great Green Monsters against the Mighty White Royalty, with Emily as captain leading Ella, Elena, Claire on Green and Riley as captain leading Grace, Felicity, and Sloane on White. So many of you stealing the show during Talent Night, with Felicity dancing, Claire narrating, Riley singing her heart out in Glee, and Sloane being Peter Pan. You all stuffing your faces during cracker eating, and leaving everything out on the field during the team sports. White team won just a couple more things than green but overall it was an incredible competition; we were so proud of all of you for fighting with everything you had. Remember night five, the incredible songs and the Great Green Monsters coming out victorious by a TWO POINT margin??? Remember Lazy Day? Everyone SO happy to be back as the mighty Jes-turds, lounging around on the quad all morning, making bracelets and eating 5 doughnuts each for breakfast.

JESTERS

Remember excursion??? Tumblr/Jester/TPJ/Squires all rolling out of camp together to make one crazy massive group of kids. Going to Storyland on the first day and riding the Chinese Log Flume ride 10 times just to see our hilarious photos. (Felicity and Riley did a great job making serious faces), then all getting matching bacon and sea shell bracelets before heading out to see Despicable Me 2, the greatest movie of all time. The Jesters being the best group around by getting to bed early and quietly, and not making too much noise in the morning. Good behavior led to you guys being rewarded with munchkins for breakfast, and a trip to Cranmore Mountain - the awesome adventure park! We headed back to camp for Founder's Night, happy to be home in The Realm, and presented our two beautiful gifts: a swinging chair and a sign for the Gaga Pit.

Remember the last week? Down to the final five with our amazing count-off, "WE...ARE...THE...ONLY...JESTERS...YAY!" Combining with the Tumblers for an activity or two to become the mighty Jumblers. Remember pushing all of the mattresses together on the floor to have a giant slumber party for at first one night, then two nights, then for the entire last week? Crazy dance parties in the dining hall during pretty much every meal, showcasing your dance moves imitating the counselors. Doing PJ jump a second time, and closing out the summer getting closer than ever, and reminiscing on just how INCREDIBLE summer 2013 was.

Remember all our inside jokes? Heather VS Kate SSS, honey if you love me! Chrissy having one too many Starbursts, I LOVE BACON, BOOM taco filling! When Elena wore a Kimono during evening activity, Jamaican me crazy!!!! The poop dog story, don't forget to pack your Jasmine, smashing bananas during lunch, DEFACING pictures of celebs in magazines, H2O HYDRATION, Leanne as a smiley fry, somebody eating too much kale, Ellie...Tremayne...take...a...shower...NOW!

Remember when... Elena wasn't making incredible creations in woodshop, Felicity wasn't plotting something, Sloane wasn't saying, "When life gives you lemons, shut up and deal with it." Samantha wasn't laughing hysterically, Grace's face was clean while she was eating, Emily lost a Gaga game, Elisabeth wasn't giving everyone compliments, Caroline wasn't giving massages, Riley was silent, Ella wasn't giving out hugs, Claire didn't ask for mail at lunch time, Maddie wasn't dancing, Berrett wasn't hanging out with everyone in camp, We could understand what Jasmine was saying... WE DON'T!

Grace – Graceful Grace! From dumping water all over your head to having an area that was mostly on the messy side, you were always having a crazy time and jumping around full of energy. I feel like every time I saw you or talked to you, you had a huge smile on your face. I loved seeing your athletic side during Green and White, and your creative side when you made cool stuff like those duct tape flip-flops. You knew when to be serious and when to have a good time and I really appreciate that. Miss you!

Ella – Ella-Nor! The first member of the Jester group! From the moment I met you during pre-camp, I could tell you were a genuinely sweet girl with a big heart. The first thing you said to me was to tell me you were shy, but that didn't last long. I loved helping you to draw and paint in Intensives and seeing your artsy side. If you like being trapped in an octagon.... Double tap I like you!

Samantha – Silly Samantha! You could light up a whole room with that giant smile of yours. I was so proud to see you gain so much confidence in swimming and to absolutely shine at horse back riding. Not to mention jumping off the tower for the first time! Remember when you lost a tooth on the bus ride to the hike?? Meeting your grandparents on Beach Day and having ice cream with the group was such a treat for everyone. You have a contagious laugh and were always there for any of the girls when they needed a friend.

Jasmine – Jazzy jazzy you crazy monkey! Whether you were jumping around on your bed or hanging from the rafters, you always seemed to be full of energy. You're one of the best athletes around with your insane soccer skills. You always knew how to make the whole group laugh, even if we didn't understand what you were saying sometimes. You always had the best attitude; I don't think I heard you complain all summer. Never change. Hope to see you soon.

Caroline – Ms. Caroline Press, sometimes I think you are more mature than I am. You are such an intelligent girl, I feel as though I could talk to you like you were my age. You are a talented dancer, even though we had to force you to smile while on stage! I also heard amazing things about you from the riding staff, which doesn't surprise me at all. I'm so excited to watch you continue to grow into the strong young lady I know you are going to be. Hit me up in New York sometime!

could barely get you to put your rainbow loom away long enough to make your bed, you were always making the staff and campers smile. I am so happy you stayed long enough to see your dad be a judge during Green and White. You destroyed the competition in Gaga, and did an amazing job as captain of the Green Jesters. Keep being a sweetheart! See you next summer.

mention an incredible goofy attitude, which we all loved. You killed it during almost every evening activity that involved creativity, from Lucky the Dog to counselor skits. You and Paige rocked the stage singing The Lazy Song in your adorable matching outfits. Your love of camp is easy to see; I look forward to seeing you next summer.

Felicity – Fa-lay-lay! What can I say about how crazy you are? You always can make me laugh by saying something ridiculous, but also are such a good friend to the entire group. You always have a look on your face like you're planning some sort of joke on the counselors, and a lot of the time you are. It was also really amazing to see your serious side and how compassionate of a person you can be when it's needed. I don't understand your obsession with potatoes, but it's the random stuff like that that makes you so hilarious.

Claire – Claire-bear! Such a team player showing your athletic side while remaining a really good sport throughout the whole summer. Your adorable pink area reflected your bubbly sweet personality perfectly, with your cool pillows and stuffed animals. You have a kind big heart and always kept the group stitched (haha!) together by being such a trooper. See you next summer.

Riley – Riley always riled up! Girl - you are hilarious; you have the ability to make the whole group laugh and bring everyone together with a joke. A natural superstar, you were born to be singing and dancing on stage (it's not about the money, money, money...). With more swag than anyone else, you can out-cheer all of camp. You were such a strong Captain during Green and White and led the white Jesters to many victories. Keep doing you Riley; your confidence is incredible to see.

Elena – EIIIIlena! You are so creative, you could make an entire living room in woodshop if given a couple hours, or knit scarves for the entire group if you had enough yarn. It was fascinating to learn so much about different animals from you; it's as if you have an endless vault of knowledge. Also, your incredible archery skills - a super star on the range for sure! You have a wild laughter and sense of humor, which sometimes made it hard to get you to go to bed, but you kept us entertained when we needed to be. Hope to see you soon.

Maddie – Marvelous Maddie! It was such a pleasure to get to know you better this summer, and to see you create new friendships and rekindle old ones. What can we say about your incredible bubble-butt dance moves? You had a beautifully organized and clean area, which made us all very proud. You discovered a new talent of making people laugh in the Honey, I Love You game for evening activity. You were so willing to show your counselors that you were listening and we always really appreciated that.

Berrett – Grizzly bear, polar bear, teddy bear, black bear, brown bear! Whatever your nickname is, I couldn't have been happier to have you here this summer. From watching you complete your 16 laps without one complaint to getting a bull's-eye in archery, you were an inspiration to us all. You blew everyone away with your singing in the talent show, and took camp by storm with your amazing attitude and smile. You are truly a fierce young lady and I will miss you tons and tons.

Elisabeth – Lizard-beth! Your transformation this summer was inspiring to watch. You fought homesickness in the beginning and then one day your love of camp overpowered it and gave way to a kick-butt summer. I miss hanging out by the swings with you and Caroline during rest hour and sitting next to me at meals. You have a natural sweet nature and you were so great at following the counselors' instructions. Hopefully I'll see you round Chapel Hill, miss you!

Katherine, Chrissy, Leanne, Kate, Heather, Wendy, and Pilar – Thank you all so much for everything. I wasn't sure how it was going to work out with so many of us, but I feel as though we bonded into one strange family. I had so much fun with all of you, occasionally acting even sillier than the girls and them needing to tell us to be quiet.

Emily – Don't eat any raisins! Emily you are simply the sweetest girl; it was a pleasure having you this summer. Even though we

Sloane – Sloaney superstar. What a natural born leader! You have such a strong presence that anyone around you can feel. Not to Jesters of 2013 – Thank you girls for the most amazing summer of my life. I couldn't have asked for a better start to my group leader career. You are goofy, crazy, and hilarious; there's never a dull moment in the Jester bunk. I'll miss you all jumping on my bed every morning, cheering endlessly about everything (Mikey for...), keeping spiders as pets, and constantly asking if we can go play Gaga. You already have a strong presence on camp that will only continue to grow as you guys get older. Keep coming back, you girls will rule The Realm one day!

BOWS

Remember When...

BOWS BOWS BOWS BOWS BOWS

Let's try and quiet down

now...let's remember the summer of being the largest group in junior camp and the walk that felt like 15 minutes to our cabin. It's time to stop singing and dancing, put down your rainbow looms, and recap on the best group The Realm has seen this summer.

Remember when Kunmi wasn't sweeping, Yimika wasn't enthusiastic, Adeoyin wasn't asking questions, Natalie was quiet, Haley wasn't singing the Mr. Hanky song, Julia didn't like Taylor Swift, and Paige wasn't obsessed with pink...? WE DON'T!

Remember when Jordan wasn't wearing tie-die, Shaina wasn't showing off her rainbow loom skills, Nyla wasn't nice to everyone, Molly wasn't twerking, Lily wasn't doing her evening abs, and Zoe wasn't doing gymnastics...? WE DON'T!

Remember when Kate was clueless, Margot was unathletic, Maddie wasn't snuggling in her bed, Siena wasn't smiling all day long, Maria wasn't super sweet, Billi didn't want to be Rapunzel, and Emily complained about anything...? WE DON'T!

Remember when Livy wasn't including everyone, Dina actually cleaned her area, Leah wasn't giving hugs, Serena wasn't dancing around, Olivia wasn't athletic at every sport, Cece was last to benches, Ruby wasn't lip syncing to every song, and Izzy's area was clean...? WE DON'T!

Remember the first day of camp, all the staff anxiously awaiting the arrival of the 26 Bows, all the campers arriving from all over the country and the world, meeting all the new faces and rekindling love with the old faces, moving into our cabin and it becoming beyond colorful in about an hour.

Remember our mountain trip, going up the wrong trail and having to turn around and start over, but having a mini snack to get us through it, finally getting to the top of the mountain, eating lunch, and enjoying the beautiful view.

Remember the way down from the mountain and how it only took about a quarter of the time it took to get up, getting in the vans preparing to leave, and Natalie Zimmerman stepping on the fire extinguisher and everyone thinking something was wrong with the van? After finally figuring out the problem, everyone got to swim in the natural waterfalls.

Remember camping out after our hike and having to set-up our tents in the rain, making fajitas for dinner, and then Patrick telling everyone they can have as many s'mores as they would like.

Remember the first camper talent show that was rocked by all the Bows, Julia and her amazing jump rope routine, Dina and Zoe doing their gymnastics, Shaina and Izzy singing a wonderful duet, and Elle singing Beautiful beautifully.

Remember going to Ogunquit for Beach Day, everyone buying and eating as much candy as possible, swimming in the ocean all day, going to a group dinner and not being kicked out of the restaurant for being outrageous.

Remember the giant storm, everyone coming together as a group for comfort, sitting in a circle laughing about everything, finally being able to fall asleep after a special treat.

Remember Parents Visiting Day when all the Bows were super excited to show their parents our group dance, bringing the parents around to the activities with the group, showing off our athletics all day long, the amazing brownies at lunch, even though we missed the cookies.

Remember how sad we all were to see the four-weekers leave, but we had the chance to spend a great four weeks with them; our group getting reduced from 26 to 21 girls and becoming the largest group in girls camp.

Remember Green & White, the helicopter flying all around camp, the fire truck arriving on the soccer field, finding out that we will be the Royal White and the Green Monsters, fighting all five days as hard as we could, learning the medley songs in those short days, Nyla and Livy doing an amazing job as captains with their co's Molly and Olivia, Paige showing off her amazing soccer skills, all the Bows showing off their moves in Talent Night, the final margin of 2 points and everyone crying out of excitement to be back as a group, DC telling Ruby, Paige, Kate, and Zoe that if there was a tie then they would have to play their tennis match.

Remember when Lily fell off her bed, Billi was always banging a Febreeze bottle, when Serena thought she left some clothing on the quad, when we celebrated Leah's early birthday with so much cake, when Haley's Hebrew played on her iPod almost every time we used it, Maria dropped her popsicle and it got everywhere, Cece was able to start and finish a bracelet in the same day, Zoe got stuck under the bench she was painting, Olivia sleep talking about the Hunger Games.

Remember when Paige and Maddie jumped off the tower for the first time this summer, everyone wanting to be Taiwanya in a game of world cup, Emily mastered the art of stringing in less than an hour, when Siena got up on water skis on her first try, Adeoyin's amazing swimming, Margot was amazing at field hockey the first time playing this summer, Kunmi and Yimi matching at multiple points of the summer and no one being able to tell them apart, making counselor skits...cheer break!

Remember Molly's twerk off during lunch, our funeral for Theodore and visiting his memorial at least once a day, remember when *adoodledoo was born and the amazing care we all took of him, Natalie losing so many things and miraculously finding them in the cabin, Ehow needing to make up her mind, everyone in the group memorizing the Parent Trap hand shake together

Remember getting the tetherball stuck in the trees at least once a day, trying to get everyone standing on a paddle board, even Jordan's insane skills couldn't save us from the sailing adventures to the island...nuff said, the flash mob at lunch to Party in the USA, the canoes having to get towed back from the Marina, clogging all the toilets at once multiple times a week, counselor makeovers making your counselors need to take an immediate shower.

BOWS

Remember going on Excursion, everyone thinking that we were leaving on a different day than we actually were, finally leaving and arriving at Monkey Trunks as our first stop, everyone only wanting to go on the zip line a thousand times, going to lunch at the Lakeside Deli and Grille and backing up their whole kitchen due to our group size, the ketchup exploding on Ruby as she opened the packet, the next stop after lunch being mini golf, Billi being really good at it...

Remember going to the campsite and having to set up all the tents, cooking fajitas for dinner and not having enough time for dessert because of the movie, sitting on top of the vans with popcorn at the drive-in, only a few people actually watching our movie because there were three other movies playing, heading back to the campsite and going right to sleep.

Day two waking up and having s'mores and cereal for breakfast, making the drive to Liquid Planet Water Park and zip lining again there, trying to surprise everyone at bowling, even though everyone already knew when you were told to put socks on, finally heading back to camp to present our string picnic table for Founders Night.

Remember the last couple days of camp, having Jimmer for GL swap, hang-out sessions on the quad and girls camp, our final evening activity... "spa night," hearing stories of your counselors' camper days, and giving as much love to each other as possible.

Kunmi – Even though you came late, you were able to jump right back into the group from last summer. You have so much enthusiasm and I love that you put it into every activity that you do.

Yimika – Your energy is amazing. I love being around you because you put a hundred and ten percent into every activity. Your positive attitude is caught by everyone around you.

Adeoyin – You are so passionate in all that you do and I am inspired by that. You are not afraid to say what is on your mind, and that always adds flavor to the bunch.

Natalie – You have such a large presence in the group. I admire your leadership skills that can be seen by everyone around you. It is clear that people are drawn to you because you are constantly surrounded by friends.

Haley – I don't know that there was a day this summer that I saw you without a smile on your face. Your bubbly personality radiates positive energy throughout every group on camp. Whenever people see your happy self they cannot help but smile as well.

Julia – I know you had a rough start coming to camp, but you came out of your shell and I am so happy that I got to see the real you. The group loves you for you, I hope in years to come camp will become to you what it is to me.

Paige – You always have so much love to share. Your warm and fuzzy personality makes the group gravitate towards you. It's easy to see that your passion for camp is great, and I hope you continue to come back and embrace it.

Jordan – It is evident that you feed off of the magic in the trees. Your love for camp shows in how much you care for your friends and their wellbeing. I know you have a great camper career in front of you.

Elle – You have so much talent inside of you and I am so glad that you had the opportunity to shine in front of the whole camp. Your kindness circulates all day long and will follow you everywhere you go.

Shaina – There is never a dull moment with you. I love how you are a great athlete and get engaged in every activity all day long. I have watched you grow so much over the years. Robin:Hood will always be your home away from home.

Nyla – Always willing to lend a helping hand, I really appreciate everything you do from clearing cups at lunch to extending infinite love and care to each and every member of the group. Your smile is contagious, spreading joy throughout our group like wild fire. Keep encouraging others to pursue happiness and live with as positive of an attitude as you do.

Molly – Your love for camp is seen in everything that you do. You are a natural leader of the group and all the girls love you. Keep coming back. I cannot wait to see you run camp as a Scribe of 2018.

Maddie – Even though you ask a million questions a day, your curiosity is contagious. You always know what's up and never fail to express what's on your mind. You're so awesome to be around; when you hang out with the whole group, you bring so much to the table, and the fun never ends.

BOWS

Zoe – The passion you have for The Realm is easy to see, and it shines bright in all that you do. Your inclusiveness with the whole group is recognized and very much appreciated. Keep coming back, and always stay true to whom you are.

Kate – Although you definitely have a crazy alter ego, your maturity never fails to impress me. You always know the right things to do and say, making you a great friend to seek advice from. Always calm and collected, I admire your ability to rise above challenges and effectively tackle them in your own way.

Margot – Even though you were nervous to enter the world of camp and all that it has to offer, I am so proud of the experience you gained from putting yourself out there and connecting with the group. You are such an easy-going girl; you were a great addition to the group this summer.

Siena – The way you always look on the bright side of things always brings positive energy to the group. It's very appreciated that you fully enjoy everything that we do, from crafts to mountain trips.

Maria – From the start, the group was drawn to your warm smile and open arms. Coming to a country with a different first language must have been challenging, but you handled the situation with such poise and intelligence. Keep up your willingness to try new things because it will undoubtedly lead to the best experiences.

Billi – I admire that no matter what other people say or do, you always stay true to your unique self. You aren't afraid to think outside the box, and you always do what you do with a big smile on your face. The Realm wouldn't be the same without you.

Emily – I am in awe at the lack of complaints that you have. You are such an easy-going and caring girl. I really respect and cherish your ability to be a mediator for the group, with a constant smile through thick or thin.

Livy – Thank you for being such an inclusive member of the Bow group. Anytime a girl was feeling left out in any way, she knew she could come to you to make her feel apart of our unified family once again. Never stop reaching out to others with the genuine kindness that you so generously distribute.

Dina – You're a natural leader, and when you demonstrate your confidence, the group can't help but follow you. You're always so encouraging to your peers, and you don't let anything get your spirits down. Never change who you are.

Lily – I can't help but notice and adore how outgoing you are, and how you are always so willing to get involved in camp fun. Your friends all love being around you so much because your positive energy pulls them in. Never stop loving life, and keep coming back. The Realm needs people like you.

Leah – Your outgoing personality made it easy for you to instantly become one with the group. The confidence you possess will allow you to tackle everything you choose to do with the same positive energy demonstrated when you first entered camp. I am certain that your voice will always be heard.

Serena – I love your fun and spunky attitude. I can always count on you to be on the benches at mealtime, dancing and laughing. You are such a smart girl, and you always manage to keep me on my toes.

Olivia – The saying "they would never hurt a fly" definitely holds true to you. Athletic abilities aside, I am always impressed with the kindness you show your group and anyone who has the pleasure of meeting you. You have never been mean to anyone, and that is just one of the reasons why the group loves you so much.

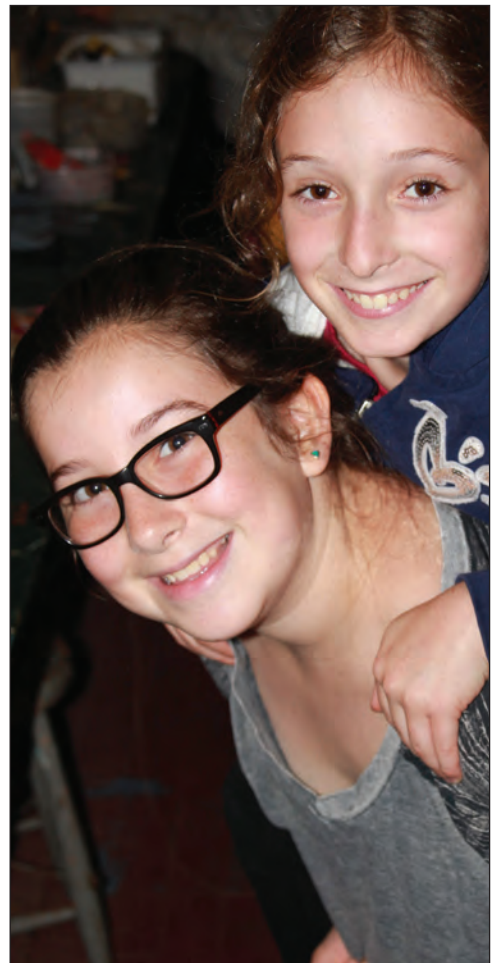

Cece – I am proud of the way you maintained a positive attitude and held your own. You never got involved in any arguments, and remained neutral for any drama that had prospered. I always knew I could count on you to set a respectful example for the group.

Ruby – I really admire the endless amount of love and care you have for your group, and camp as a whole. You never stray from your true self, a quality that will only strengthen your independence and increase the respect others have for you.

Izzy – Your enthusiasm and charisma can be seen by anyone who lays eyes on you. The group thrives on the energy you bring forth, never failing to pick up the mood when any girl is down. I appreciate your positive attitude that shines in any activity in which you participate.

To my Bow Staff – I appreciate everything that you have done for the campers this summer. You are all amazing counselors and the girls love you all so much. Bow Staff 2013!

Bows 2013/ Scribes 2018 – Thank you so much for an amazing summer! I can see your love for camp growing every minute you spend in The Realm. I cannot wait to watch you guys grow up and lead Girls Camp. You are an amazing group of girls; each and every one of you contributed something so different and special to the group, which made us the Bow group that we were this summer.

QUILLS

HEY QUILLIES!!

Time to stop posting and liking each other's pictures on Instagram, put those phones and laptops away and reminisce on summer 2013 when the best Quill group ever took The Realm by storm.

Remember when Julie got out of bed in the morning? Or when Ari wasn't speaking in an accent and/or quoting Despicable me? When Jinsul wasn't wearing her hair in a side pony? Or when Dana wasn't doing some sort of weird dance, with or without clothing? Remember when Rosie wasn't asking questions? Or when Tara wasn't being told to be appropriate? When you could see the floor around Meatloaf's bed? Remember when Sbutler wasn't freaking out about spiders? When Sofie wasn't being awesome at everything even with a broken rib? When Ella said her count-off number? Or when Sam wasn't beasting at every sport? Remember when Julia was in a bad mood or wasn't smiling? When Alex wasn't wearing the cutest clothing or trying to organize shirts/sweatpants? Or how about when Cami Kaye was actually wearing clothing? Remember when Tessie wasn't laughing in her mischievous little way? Or Katie H was able to breathe? How about when Marisa wasn't sweet and smiley? Remember when it didn't seem like Payton had been here forever even though she only came in the last two weeks? Or when Sadie didn't have ridiculously neat shelves? When Scurran was calm and quiet? Remember when Maggie wasn't obsessed with Harry Styles?? When Sara K wasn't helping out with something? When Lizzy wasn't singing for everyone to hear? How about when Sophia wasn't being trendy? Remember when Anna H wasn't talking about or listening to Justin Bieber? Or when Anna M wasn't looking in the mirror and confirming that she looked awesome?? When Cecilia wasn't amazing at soccer? When Teresa wasn't making everyone laugh? When Ellie Tello wasn't wearing her animal hat to breakfast? How about when Ellie Romantz wasn't being told that she should just stay at CRH all summer? Or when Makayla wasn't talking about the tree she wanted to plant?? Or when Gabi wasn't following all the coolest trends? Or when Katie S wasn't being praised on how well she cut her tanks? How about when Jasmine wasn't an awesome dancer? Remember when George wasn't dancing or being loud and Slesh wore her hair down all day? WELL WE DON'T!!!!!!

Remember when you would all sleeptalk/ sleepwalk every night? Sometimes even having conversations in your sleep...!? (cough cough Sbutler cough cough Tara). Always fun for your counselors...Or how about how the toilets that were ALWAYS clogged and flooded the entire bathroom multiples times...? Remember the sailing period that didn't go too well, a.k.a. when you all capsized and Ella and Sofie were a bit traumatized...Or remember McDonalds?! When we thought you would all jump out of bed ecstatic but instead none of you wanted any at first...Or remember how trying to wake Lizzy up was both the hardest and creepiest thing ever...And then how none of you were able to go back to sleep because of the humongous spider in bunk 8...fun times!! How about the marriage game!? Remember when Teresa was in the bathroom and just starting yelling about some spider...Oh Teresa. Remember being blindfolded and making cookies!? Or tubing? Or camper hunts when you all said it was unfair for the counselors to be on bikes but then we lost by a lot anyways...How about all the (two or three) food parties!? How about dancing in the pouring rain on the tennis courts? Or Danish with thousands of beetles swarming around...but then Cecilia helping to kill them...Or feeding the goats during mountain biking!? Quills LOVE mountain biking! Remember SSSI? And how Dana had to cheer alone...Remember the lounge aka the coolest hang out spot on camp!? How about Parents Visiting Day and all of you bawling afterwards not because your parents had left but because you were going to miss each other!? Or hanging out on the beach on the last lazy Sunday...going boat riding/booming in your clothes...

TOO MANY good times to even get through half of them. Safe to say we've had the best summer ever Quillies!?!?

But now for some of the most memorable events of our amazing summer...Remember Ella's birthday on the first day of camp? And then Cami Kaye's only a few days later? How we overdosed on Cozy Corner within the first 48 hours of camp...Then how about the hike and overnight a couple weeks later? How all of you dreaded the hike for weeks saying you would make sure to be sick the day of and then ended up all doing it pretty easily and happily without complaining...? Then how about jumping off the cliff into the freeeeezing cold water even though your counselors were too scared...or camping out in the pouring rain...and Tara waking us up in the middle of the night for allergy meds...and Jinsul confidently asking if she could please go back to camp...good times Quillies! Now how about reminiscing on Beach Day!? How you all planned out your bikinis like a year before the actual day and still debated the right one up until the morning of...Then how about how much candy and food you all bought on the day of? Coming back to camp and filling up an entire nap sack with only your leftovers...do the Quills like junk food or something? Now how about Dare 2 tri? How inspired we all were by everything we saw and heard, all the bracelets and signs we made and that amazing bike ride that most of you went on with the visitors? Something you'll never forget! And now what about Conway!? How could we forget about that...overdosing on every possible junk food...candy, ice cream, and obviously useless little objects! How excited you all were to go to Zebs!? And how could we forget about our Talent Show dance and PVD which came only a couple weeks later! Remember the dance to "Summer Girl" and the amount of time you guys spent convincing me and many many others that "Aaron's party" would just work that much better...well at least you succeeded at convincing us and it looked really good, I must say! Then the actual Parents Day weekend with no rain...and no cookies...And then what else besides Green and White to come next!? Remember how you guys thought it was going to break for countless days before and kept running at the slightest sound of anything? But then how about the actual break with the helicopter! (still a little bitter I missed it, but thankfully you gave me a good description). Then remember how you were all amazing at every single sport even though you pretended to be nebs for the rest of the summer...then how about how the Green Team winning by TWO points!?!?! Insanity!! And then, last but not least...EXCURSION! Starting on day 1 with Attitash...how cool was that!? And then the Moose Tour...lots to be said about that...but let's just leave it at WHAT ARE MOOSE? (oh, and we can't forget the moosic...) Then the beach, pizza, mini golfing, panda garden, ice cream, hannaforbs, Despicable me 2, waterpark... we did it all girls and had so much fun if I may say so myself!

QUILLS

So, fair to say we had essentially the best summer of our lives!?!?

And now to each of you...the reason that this summer was so special.

Marisa – You are one of the sweetest girls I know and it was so great getting to know you this summer. I truly love that you are always willing to have fun with anyone and anything and keep a smile on your face!!

Sofie – You never ceased to amaze me this summer with your constant smile and positive attitude. You are such a strong, important member of this group and I am so excited to see you back for many summers to come!

Julie – Your sense of leadership is amazing to watch. You are such a big part of the Quill family and I cannot wait to watch you lead girls in just a few years from now. Not to mention that you are possibly one of the funniest 13-year-olds I know; you never cease to make me laugh!

SButler – It was amazing watching you come into camp this summer and absolutely take The Realm by storm. You are such an awesome girl and I knew from the start that you would love camp and camp would love you. Please keep coming back; I know you'll do great things!

Tessie – You never cease to make me laugh and smile with your funny but secretly evil little self ;) You are also so kind and friendly to everyone in camp, campers and counselors alike. Keep doin' you Tess!!

Alex – You are such a kindhearted and sweet girl and I know that this group would be so different without you in it! Your upbeat and smiley attitude is such an important part of the Quills so keep it up!!

Ari – I had so much fun hanging out with you this summer. Your constant smile and positive attitude is so great to watch so just keep doin' what you're doing because you do it so well!!!

Sam – It was so great to see you come to camp late and fit in so quickly as if you had been here forever! I am so happy that I got to meet you and be your counselor, your constant smile was really amazing to have around!

Lizzy – You are such a genuinely kind girl and it comes through so clearly how much you care about camp and the other girls in our group. You are always there for anyone to cry with or laugh with which is truly amazing. Never change Liz!!

Scurran – You are such an amazing young girl and I cannot wait to see you lead girls camp one day. Your dedication to camp is so unbelievable and shines through in everything you do. Keep doing what you do, I know that it will take you very, very far!

Julia – Your constant smile and appreciative attitude makes me so happy. You are such a great girl and play such an important role in this group. I hope you stay at camp forever because I know how many great things you can achieve!

Sophia – I wish that you had stayed longer!! You are so sweet and kind and I am so happy to have gotten to know you! Hope to see you next summer and many more to come!

Katie H – Looking back at this summer, I cannot believe that it was your first year! You were such an amazing camper and friend to all the girls, always so positive, sweet and caring!

Anna H – You are so genuinely kind-hearted and it shines through in everything you do. It has been really great getting to know you this summer and I hope to see you back for many summers to come!

Jinsu – It is so easy to tell how much you love camp and the Quills. Your fun-loving attitude is so great to watch and I have genuinely had so much fun getting to know you this summer. Better see you back for a long, long time!!

Sadie – Between your contagious smile and adorable personality, I have had the best time being your counselor and also sharing an area with you for the second half of the summer! Keep being your crazy awesome self and I know that you can do great things at camp.

Sara K – You are such a special young lady and I have been so lucky to know you this summer. Your acts of kindness do not go unnoticed and neither does your sweet and loving attitude towards others. I hope to see you at Robin Hood for many summers to come!

Cami K – Your ability to make others laugh and smile is truly great to see. You care so much about your friends and about camp and it is very clear to everyone. Keep being your crazy self, I love it!

Dana – You can always make your friends and your counselors laugh which is only one great thing about you among many. You are also a great friend and it is clear how much you care about your friends and about camp so keep coming back, I know you can do great things!

Anna M – You never cease to make me laugh and your smile is contagious to everyone around you. Your fun-loving attitude adds so much to the group so keep doin' you and never stop coming back!

Meatloaf – You are such a sweet girl and what you add to the Quill group is irreplaceable. I loved getting to know you this summer and I cannot wait to see you for many summers to come!

Tara – I loved getting to know you this summer. You are so mature and kind, I always enjoyed our talks and heart to hearts! Keep coming back and don't change, you're awesome!

Cecilia – I am so happy that you came to Robin Hood this summer. You fit right into the group and I loved watching you try all the things that camp has to offer. You better be back next year, the group wouldn't be the same without you!

Ella – You are one of the nicest sweetest girls that I know and your kindness is definitely appreciated by all those around you. I am so happy that I got to know you this summer and share a (very neat!) area with you!!

QUILLS

Ellie R – Although only here for 2 weeks, you play such a significant role in this group. Your sweet and kind-hearted personality is really great to watch; don't change and keep coming back...next time for longer!

Rosie – Watching you as a friend and as a leader is truly amazing. You are so caring of the other girls and of your counselors; you can always be counted on to have a smile on your face and put a smile on everyone else's. Keep doin' you Rosie posie!!

Makayla – You are such a special girl and I loved meeting you and hanging out with you for the 2 weeks that you were here. Your constant smile and will to participate in everything made it impossible for camp to not love you. I better see you back for longer next summer!!

George – Your crazy and upbeat personality is irreplaceable in this group. Keep smiling and keep being loud, it is amazing to watch and always so much fun to be around you!!

Slesh – You are truly one of a kind and I have had the best time getting to know you this summer. You are fun, crazy, sweet and so caring and all these qualities makes you such an irreplaceable part of the Quills. Never change and I cannot wait to see you back until you are a Scribe and after that!

Gabi – I am so happy that you decided to come to Robin Hood this summer. You are such a sweet girl and it was great watching you participate so actively in everything camp has to offer. Can't wait to see you back next summer!!

Kaitie S – Although only here for a really short while, it is clear that you have a strong place within the Quill group. From the second you came, it seemed as if you had been here forever and that was really amazing to see. I really hope that you come back next summer and others to come!

Ellie T – As hard as it is only coming in the last few weeks, you have amazed me with your ability to fit right in. You have such an important role in this group and I have sincerely loved getting to know you!

Jasmine – Your warm and loving personality was so important to our group this summer and I couldn't be happier that you came to Robin Hood. You are always so much fun to be around and your happy way of being is so great to see!!

Maggie – You are seriously one of the most amazing girls I have ever met in my life. Your presence in camp is so strong and I cannot wait to watch you grow up at camp in the next few years. Never change Maggs and just keep being you!!

Payton – I am so happy that you decided to come to camp this summer. You became one of the Quills so quickly and it was truly amazing to watch. I hope that you come back to camp for many more summers to come and for much longer each summer, you'll be great here!!

Teresa – You are hands down one of the funniest 12-year old girls that I have ever met. You never cease to make the girls and the counselors laugh. Keep being your funny, sweet self, you're truly awesome!

To my staff – thank you all for being fabulous! The girls and I love you and thank you for all the energy and love you brought to the summer.

And now to the Quills of 2013 /

Arrows of 2014 – You have honestly been the best group I could have ever asked for. Your love of camp shines through in everything you do and makes everyone around you want to be here just that much more. So thank you for being the craziest, most fun-loving, caring group of girls I could have ever asked for, I wouldn't trade this summer for anything. I cannot wait to see you girls lead camp some day and I see it in every single one of you. So as this trip down memory lane comes to a close and we are just that much closer to next summer, the only advice I can think of giving you is to come back to camp forever – never stop coming back. A bad day at camp is better than your best day at home and you will only get more great things out of The Realm as time goes on. Just keep loving The Realm and keep loving each other. And that is all for now Quillies, I love you all and cannot wait to see you all as the most amazing Arrows of 2014!!

ARROWS

Hey Home Slices! Wow it seems like just yesterday that you were all pulling into The Realm. Remember reuniting with old friends and immediately making new friends as well. Now do me a favor and take a few minutes away from your busy day to re-live the best summer of your life with me! Remember climbing Boulder Loop and finishing the day off with a trip to Wal-Mart and then eating some Cozy Corner. Remember Beach Day – the weather could not have been better and neither could you girls. From the ocean to the sand and all the way to the boardwalk you girls made that place your beach. Oh and how could I forget our mini adventure to see Barbie...I mean White Lake Beach.

Remember when that storm hit camp and we stayed up all night eating Tootsie Pops and gossiping while Gracie hid under the blankets. Remember skinny dipping at the ODT. Remember Paulina saying "NO LOW" every night during highs and lows.

Remember our amazing Excursion led by the fabulous cocoa and powdered sugar. You girls were incredibly on point with everything we did. I could not have asked for a better three days! From laser tag to making fajitas you made every moment of our educational sail boat...interestingly appropriate if you know what I mean. Don't forget our delicious snacks after the tiring journey. Remember when Catherine and Abby spent over 5 dollars at 5 below; we thought that was impossible #not! Oh, and Liv and Belkin way to pull through out there on the ice.

Now take a moment, put your hands where I can see them and let's relive the best five days of 2013. It all started with Rachel, Noa, Ivanna and Elise leading teams to their full potential. You girls were all stars in my eyes. Thank you for putting your all into every activity while still being better sports than I could ever be.

Remember when Liv and Elise were being appropriate, Arianna wasn't doing gymnastics, Olive wasn't being sassy, and Polly wasn't beasting in the water...we don't! Remember when Tori didn't memorize Snapple facts, Arlet wasn't rocking the backwards hat, Martha wasn't being awesome...we don't!

Remember when Elena and Noa didn't play tennis, Georgia wasn't being spunky, Charlotte wasn't being super sweet, and Hannah wasn't being silly...we don't!

Remember when Gracie wasn't ballin', Ivanna wasn't at the Infirm, Paulina was quiet, Olivia wasn't being the most mature... we don't. Remember when Sophie wasn't frolicking, Abby and Catherine weren't talking about clothes, Caroline wasn't being sweet, Frida wasn't being a Norwegian princess, Rachel wasn't being friendly... we don't!

Remember when Ines wasn't being super cute, Fredrika wasn't making people laugh, Emily wasn't curious about camp, Maddy wasn't loving horses, and Viola wasn't making friends... we don't!

Elena – You are one of the most genuine people I know. You really care about everyone and it shows in everything you do. You are such an emotionally strong girl and I look up to you for that. I am so glad that you are part of this group. This group would not be the same without you. #killinit

Olivia – You truly are going to quietly take over the world some day. Your maturity and way to handle difficult situations is truly remarkable. I admire the way that you can take charge when the group needs a voice of reason, yet you are willing to have fun when it's needed. I am so glad that you stayed longer this summer! #leadingdarealm

Ariana – You are so much fun to be around and I know that I can always count on you for a good laugh. You know when to be serious and when to be silly. You always listened to me, which I really appreciated and did not give you enough praise for. Come back for longer next summer! #flipzonflipzonflipz

Liv – Most Improved. I could not have asked for more from you. You went above and beyond this summer and led this group in times of doubt. Thank you for keeping your head up and making my lame ideas seem cool. Also, thanks for trying to loosen things up. #scarredforlife

Olive – Olive, I know things started off shaky but you truly turned things around. Your spirits were always high and you made my job easy. You take direction well and I know I can count on you to take charge when needed. Thanks for making an effort to do what I asked of you. I honestly appreciated it more than you know. #turndabeataround

Hannah – You are crazy and outrageous and that is exactly what I love about you. You own your personality and don't let anyone mess with you. I admire the way that you jumped right into this group. You fit in from the start and made this group your own. Stay silly. #Idon'tcarelloveit

Elise – Oh my! Those are the first two words that come to mind when I think of you. You are truly something special. You are outgoing and I know I can come to you when I want to smile. Thank you for always brightening my day. Keep coming back, this group needs someone like you. #forrealztho

Sophie – You are so fun to be around. I know I can count on you for a good laugh in times of need. Your love for camp shows in everything you do. You are a leader and I respect you in so many ways. My honest advice would be to just keep doing everything you're doing, because you're killin' it. Also, keep smiling. #it'scontagious!

Abby – I'm so glad you chose Robin Hood. This summer would not have been the same without you. You fit right in from day one and never stopped smiling. I admire how strong of a person you are. You are such a great friend to everyone. Your ability to be outgoing from day one was remarkable. #loudandproud

Caroline – You are so sweet! I love the way that you make everything we do your own by adding something unique and special to it. You make dull days fun and lame ideas cool! Thanks for always listening to me and giving your staff such heartfelt respect, we genuinely appreciate it! #sweetcaroline

Paulina – You are crazy and I love it. You bounce off walls and make every activity entertaining. I envy your ability to be so energetic and pump people up when they are feeling down. You have one of the biggest hearts of anyone I know. You are a key component to this group and without you the summer wouldn't have been as exciting. Also, remember to listen to your own quote because it really is true that it is better smiling than crying! #motivationspeaker

Gracie – You are the best friend I wish I had growing up. You are so funny and nice to everyone. You genuinely care about everyone in the group and take into consideration what everyone's feelings are. Your passion for basketball makes me jealous; I can honestly say that I wish I was as passionate about something as you are about basketball. Keep coming back, The Realm needs more people like you walking around. #justdoit

Ivanna – You couldn't be nicer if you tried. You are honestly one of the nicest people to ever come through The Realm. You include everyone in everything you do while still making people laugh. You were an amazing co-captain during Green and White. I wish you could have seen how incredible you were! Thanks for always listening to me and following directions. You really broke out of your shell this year and embraced every opportunity to socialize. #waytobeamazing

Frida – You jumped right into the group from day one. You are exactly what this group needed. You were the perfect mix of sweet, funny, and energetic. Your smile lit up the room! Keep coming back, this group loves you. Keep doing what you do. #perfection

Viola – Although you didn't talk that much, when you did you always had something nice to say. You were so easygoing and always willing to sacrifice yourself for the good of the group. I appreciate everything you did this summer and my one regret is not telling you that enough. #respect

Fredrika – You are so fun to be around. I admire your ability to be a leader in times of need and to take charge when people are struggling. I am so glad that you randomly found Robin Hood on the internet. If I could tell you one thing it would be to come back for longer and experience more of the magic that camp has to offer. #swoopedin #killedit

Rachel – You remind me a lot of myself as a camper. Your ability to include people is admirable. You can be serious while still having fun. Even though you are younger than me I look up to you in many ways. You know how to balance everything. You can lead but are also okay following, which is a #greattraittohave

Polly – You were amazing this summer. You did everything I asked and went above and beyond. I am so glad that you came to camp this summer. You better stay longer next summer! This group could use more sweet people like you. #beastin'thelake

Arlet – You are so funny. I wish I got to see that side of you earlier in the summer. The more I got to know you the more I realized how amazing you are. You knew exactly when to bring in your sassy attitude and make me laugh. I am so glad that you decided to give Robin Hood a second chance! #secondtime'sacharm

Charlotte – You were amazing this summer. I wish more than anything that you had stayed longer. You are such a camp girl. The Realm can be your home if you just let it take you. Come back next year for longer and let the magic in the trees take over! #beautyandabeat

Ines – You are adorable! Your smile makes me smile. You are genuinely one of the nicest people I know. You care about everyone and make an effort to be nice to everyone even if they aren't your best friend, you treat them as if they are. I admire your ability to be carefree and calm in stressful situations. I knew I could always come to you to take my mind off of anything I was stressing over. #cuteandclassy

Tori – You are so funny and I love being around you. You really came out of your shell this year and it was amazing to watch. Be confident and don't doubt yourself. This group loves you more than you will ever know. Stay longer next summer! #snapplefactqueen

Georgia – I honestly don't know if I would have made it through this summer without you to laugh with. You are such a key component to this group and I wish you could see that. I love you more than you'll ever know. Thanks for always being there with your spunky attitude and energy. You are exactly what this group needed this summer! Keep coming back - camp needs more people like you. #spunky

Noa – You have the ability to brighten people's days just by looking at them. You are one of the friendliest people I know. I admire your ability to include everyone and always take into consideration how everyone is feeling. You genuinely care about everyone no matter what. I envy your ability to make friends so easily and to always have a smile on your face. #sweetlikesugar

Maddy – You were so amazing this summer. You are so sweet and always know exactly what to say. You are fun, energetic, and always follow directions. I appreciate the way you respected the staff this summer. You always listened and I thank you! #thanksforlistenin'

Martha – You are so cool. Sometimes I just want to be you. You are one of the sweetest people to ever enter Robin Hood. You care about everyone and are willing to sacrifice your own happiness for the good of others. Come back for longer next summer! #wildcard

Catherine – You are so silly and I love it. I love your energy and the way that you can have fun while still being mature. You make every activity exciting and entertaining for everyone. #shoptillyadrop

Emily – You are so much fun to be around! You are creative, energetic, and I know I can always count on you for a good laugh. I am so glad you joined the group. You made the end of the summer better than I could have ever imagined. You were the glue that kept us together in the end. #curiosityiskey

To the best staff in camp – Thank you for making this summer so amazing. I owe everything to you and couldn't have done it without all of you. Your commitment to the happiness of every camper was remarkable and I tried to emulate you all every day. You were not only amazing counselors, but you also were amazing friends. I could not have dreamed of a better staff, especially as a first year Group Leader. You made the transition from AGL to GL easier than I could have ever imagined. #whatever

To the Arrows of 2013 – This group would not be complete without each and every one of you. You are all so unique and crazy but somehow it works. Keep coming back, you all have something so special to offer! Camp needs you girls to keep the traditions alive and energy flowing through Girl's Camp! You all have so much to offer individually; however, when put together you are unstoppable. Even through hardships remember how strong you are as a unit, and never let small conflicts keep you away from the best place in the world. #BESTGROUPINCAMP

If I could give you some tips for the rest of your camper years

I WOULD SAY THIS:

- Seize every opportunity to turn a dull moment into an unforgettable memory. Use the rain as an excuse to get dirty and play squirrel, and use the unbearable heat as a way to get a funky tan.
- Don't take your camper days for granted; however, don't stress over the time that you have left. Be present and always live in the moment. Focus on the here and now and make it as good as it can be.
- Be early and prepared for anything and everything, you never know what might come your way. Expect the unexpected.
- Not everything will be right in front of you and sometimes things take time to unravel themselves. Search for the magic in the trees (which you will hit one day) if at first it doesn't come to you.
- Be weird because camp is the one place where the weirder you are, the cooler you can be.
- When in doubt, just breathe. Take a minute and think to yourself: you are smarter than you think.

Why did the plane crash?

Because the pilot was a potato...

BARDS: gather around, put some clothes on, turn off the weekend, Callie get prepared to focus and read the entire article, and get ready to re-cap one of the most amazing, different, bard summers ever...

Remember everyone arriving on day one... surprise! Katie's your group leader again for the third time. To round out the best staff ever: Becca as our AGL and Fuerst as the coolest specialty staff The Realm has ever seen. Being the first group to use the new Outpost, making s'mores around the largest campfire ever, Ian and Patty telling us to leave the fire burning, missing the sarcasm and almost burning down camp! Taking a cute picture – totally insta worthy.

Remember Chanel and Kendall's traditional ethnic plates consisting of ribs and sweet potatoes, not hearing the end of how excited they were about it, Jane saying, "Mama, I'm ashy," getting loopy from camp mashed potatoes and feeling as silly as ever, Shelby and Emily being saved by Archers while sailing, thanks boys! Janeold's dad's letters: "the air conditioner went upstairs," and only giving her details on plants and Home Depot.

Remember going to Pizza Barn, eating way too much but never slowing down on the slices, Jesse and Tanner the cute workers, taking pictures with them, and them holding up signs... Pretty sure we made their night, 26 girls all gawking over them! Remember going to Panda Garden for Perlick's birthday and eating ridiculous amounts of fried food, Jack and Jack driving us, going to get ice cream. Remember Perlick's dad being the coolest man ever for treating us all to a great dinner and dessert! Remember Talia and Evin's birthdays falling on the same day and getting two cakes and two Cozy trips!

Remember Swody's two homeruns and 3-pointers, what a great day for her! Katie cutting Evin from the basketball team and never hearing the end of it from the group, So so sorry Ev, at least you have a lot of heart! Remember Katie forcing everyone to love Pinky as much as she did, swirling her hand, getting freaked out by her face (or lack there of), Pinky and Baby Brown being BFFs. Remember when Callie asked Katie if life was boring without ADHD, Daire fixing Cai's bed and her thongs getting stuck on the nails, him pretending not to notice. Remember singing SAIL! Every time we had that activity, it's MAIL time, in the veggie line you find KALE, go to the beach and bring a PAIL, this summer was the opposite of a FAIL... Ok, that's enough, I'm done.

Remember group beatings at night, some of my best memories of the summer come from those meetings. Not going to lie, I was a bit worried in the beginning of the summer when we had that serious talk, but you girls picked it up like I knew you would, changed your attitudes into the most positive and amazing views I have ever seen, and charged on with the summer. You girls effortlessly lead camp from behind and I cannot wait to see you as Shires and Scribes. It's not time to get mushy yet so I'll save the rest for the end...

Remember Jade saying, "Oh my Gd you have the same initials as Kraft Dinner... I'm craving you." Kendall's mom sending her baby onesies instead of adult size pajamas, putting them on Pinky and Baby Brown, remember our commercial for the adirondack chairs that won us first for ice-cream sundaes, "Adirondack chairs, a place to sit, a place to laugh, a place to flirt and have a blast, adirondack chairs- a place for you and me."

Remember bringing tree twerking to The Realm, shaking our booties wherever and whenever we could, Chanel being the best at moving dem buns, creating the best vine that the world has ever seen, giving Katie the best clipboard design ever. Remember the West End game, getting to do a dance-off with the boys from the other camp, cheering like crazy, and winning! Remember when the Hey Lahdee's didn't stop the entire way there, that poor bus driver! We had a blast with the Shires. Remember our scavenger hunt with the Shires and Scribes... Ki bringing in Charlie for a lot of points, running around camp in the rain, the winning team getting candy canteen!

Remember challenging the TPJs to Gaga and almost losing... that would have been embarrassing! Remember them saying "Get Dirty, Get Dirty!" Remember them loving us, and us loving them. Too cute! Remember trying to play kick the can, what a fail! Remember Katie making you fake laugh to convince the Friar staff we were having fun. Remember our best in camp Talent Show dance. A few moves from the dance team but the Bards made sure the dance was our own and it was amazing. Remember how loud the crowd screamed? How many people complimented it? How Chanel blew everyone's minds? Cai as the real slim shady. I could not have been more proud of you guys for that dance, serious faces and all; can't wait to help with yours for next year... Higher ground here we come...

Remember Katie getting woken up early on lazy Sunday by Woody, SURPRISE! We're going on a mountain hike! Your blank faces were hilarious and scary, but you picked up your attitudes and we set off. It was a quick hike starting with candy and chips that we purchased from a gas station. We literally ran up the mountain with few breaks, scarfed down lunch, ran back down, sped the vans home, and made it just in time for the West End game! Which we lost miserably...

Remember Beach Day, the warmest water The Realm has ever seen, thanks for visiting me in neck duty! Remember spending all of our money on candy, ice cream, and dip'n'dots, going back and forth to the boardwalk, Katie desperately looking for campers to hang out with, swimming in the little bay of warm water that formed before the ocean.

Remember when Aude would say Sugar Daddy, our Founder's Day gift of a first aid kit for the Gaga pit. I think that will be extremely useful, especially for us because we go so hard at Gaga! Maren's dotting cream and everyone being obsessed with using it, everyone beating JuCo, Evin's constantly dirty face, Fatima's cute freckles, Lexi's buba accent that never stopped. Do you ever feel like a plastic bag?

Remember when... Jane wasn't wearing a solid colored outfit, Jade wasn't with Shelby, Halley wasn't being nagged by counselors, everything about Kendall wasn't brown, Chanel wasn't being the best dancer in camp, Maren wasn't being quietly inappropriate behind her perfect smile, Julia wasn't being called JC3, Cai wasn't receiving love letters, Derin didn't have the best music, Aude wasn't being secretly hilarious, Talia wasn't screaming THANK YOU!, Lucia wasn't counting off in the best way ever... eleven!, Devon wasn't being the sweetest, Mikayla wasn't killing it in every sport, Shelby wasn't coming around the mountain, Kike wasn't being the most polite camper to grace The Realm, Emily didn't have the best clothes, Vicky wasn't being an amazing singer (in drama intensive lol), Ava wasn't having a good time, Sophie wasn't at archery, Neema didn't have the sickest accent ever, Perlick was being appropriate, Evin wasn't wearing her frog or crazy lax outfit, Fatima wasn't helping Katie with her spanish, Callie was patient and calm, Lexi wasn't twerking, Rafaela sent us a ouija board, Swoody's knee wasn't hurt, Sophia wasn't an amazing artist, Maat wasn't thirsty, Fuerst let the campers stay up late, Becca made the campers go to bed, Diva wasn't obsessed with the Bards... WE DON'T!!!

Remember the LIV LUV LYFE playlist that we listened to nonstop. Higher ground, wicked games, 1901 remix to ignition... Just to name a few hits. Remember Evin's frog outfit and Katie convincing the entire camp that green and white was breaking before the four weekers left during the magic show, Mikayla criticizing your counselors' outfits before leaving camp.

Remember pink and blue? Playing headbands and no one having any idea what Jade's meant. But who is farva...?

Remember green and white breaking... Halley getting sick and Swoody hurting her knee. Love the intensity, girls, even before the war started! The Great Green Monsters led by Kendall and Swoody and the Mighty White Royalty led by Callie and Vicky. You all fought a hard five days and every game ended in a handshake – I could not be more proud. Remember Gonzalo on stage killing it- in fact all of you killed it on stage and I loved watching you! Remember Maat winning the predictions of when it would break and Chanel being close... Except for on the completely wrong day. Remember all sobbing during Katie's speech and it ending in a huge laugh because of "yo tia on a shtick." Putting Diva's, or should I say kickerkatie's, bed on the soccer field with Pinky up the flagpole.

Remember leaving for Excursion the day after lazy day? Waking up early, packing up the vans and heading to Dunkin. Katie getting sick instantly upon arriving, Cai almost getting sick, and Chanel needing a bag. Remember Julia and Swoody eating subway for breakfast? Remember fake nose piercings? Remember coming back to three absolutely soaked tents and standing around the fire drying our sleeping bags? Jade's being the only unbearable one and having to sleep with a towel. Remember the baby doll in the window of the parked car and screaming while walking by. Checking if Devon was there every time we got in the vans, becoming best friends FOREVER with mountain bike Jordan. Remember all of Lily's bad luck: getting hit in the head with a basketball, getting hit in the nose with an inhaler by Kendall, the coffee Coolata spilling all over her clothes, shutting her finger in her retainer case, biting her lip... Remember

Six Flags roller coasters and water park? It raining and the brave ones moving to the water park and the rest watching the best illusion magic show ever... And by best I mean worst... FV, FV count off... Remember turbo shopping because of the crazy traffic and going PSYCHO in the vans? Perlick and Halley buying more fake nose piercings. Remember running into Beth and hearing all the wonderful things she had to say about your group leader. Remember white water rafting and doing a mini GL swap? Hope you had fun with Ben Castle! Remember being really nervous before and ending up loving it? Halley falling off three times in a row... Wait, but you're okay right?

Jane – Seeing you leave so early this summer was tough on the group but I am so grateful that you got to come for as long as you did. You are hilarious, lighthearted, and always know how to make your friends laugh which is an amazing quality to have. You are a strong leader of this group so please stay for the full time next summer! Love you Janeold!

Jade – It has been such a pleasure to see how much you have matured since Bow summer. You have grown into a beautiful, genuine young woman who loves camp and the bards. It is evident to see how important camp is to you, cherish your time here as a camper because it will be over before you know it! Love you Jade!

Halley – I am so sorry I had to nag you so much this summer but you wouldn't have made it to any activity if I didn't! You know how to make people laugh when they are down and that is why you are such an amazing friend to everyone in the group. It has been amazing to watch you grow and change since Bow summer and I am beyond impressed with the amazing woman you have become! I love you Halley!

Kendall – I am so glad we have gotten so close these past few years. You are an individual that sticks up for what you believe in and I admire that so much. Your confidence radiates to everyone and your smile can truly brighten anyone's day. You are a true friend that branches out to everyone in the group and have become such an integral part of the group – keep coming back forever. I love you Brown!

Chanel – You are one of the most amazing people I have ever met. Your positivity shines throughout the group and you can always keep everyone at their best. You have a truly kind heart and laugh that brings out the best of everyone in the group. Keep coming back, the group wouldn't be the same without you. I love you Chanel!

Maren – Secretly one of the most inappropriate campers I have ever had. Behind your beautiful smile and soft skin you crack the most hilarious, R-rated jokes! You have grown up so much since Bow summer and nothing makes me happier to see you never shed a tear (even though E isn't here!). You are such a loveable leader within the group and I truly enjoy every minute I spend with you. I love you Maren!

Julia – JuCo! You are such a good friend to come to when any of the girls need help. Everyone loves you and you always bring positive energy to the group right when it is needed. I love your long, long stories and your perfectly timed hugs. Love you Three!

Cai – I am so proud of everything you have accomplished during your camp career. You have grown into a strong, beautiful young woman with a great head on your shoulders.

You would never hurt a fly and you genuinely care so much about everything and everyone. We are similar in many ways and that only makes me feel so much closer to you. I am so proud of you for tackling your fears. I love you Cai Cai!

Callie – You effortlessly and quietly lead the group every single day. I could not be more proud of you when DC read your name on awards night, you deserved that award so much. From the soccer field, to the mountain hikes, to the bunk, you add enthusiasm and spunk into everything the group tackles. I love you!

Lucia – There is nothing I will miss more over the winter than hearing ELEVEN!! It was your first summer here but I would have never been able to tell with the way you fit right into the group. You grew to love camp over the five short weeks that you were here and that truly amazes me. You are hilarious and adorable and we must hang out in Spain! I love you Lucia!

Derin – It was so fun to get to sleep next to you for the last few weeks of camp, sorry for being such a mess! You effortlessly fit into the group and everyone loves you and your hilarity. Never stop dancing or letting the true you shine, because you are truly the best. Even though you may not think it, you are very important to this group so please keep coming back! I love you Derin!

Perlick – I don't even know where to begin with you... We have grown so close since I had you as a knee-high converse-wearing Bow. You are a leader of this group that shows so much love for camp in every single thing you do. When you aren't busy cracking inappropriate jokes you are such a loving and caring person. Keep puffing that inhaler and don't forget to call me over the winter because those moments keep me strong over the long, winter months. Sometimes I feel like you are my best friend and not my camper. I love you Hannah!

Vicky – Behind your beautiful blonde hair and amazing singing voice, there is an honest, caring soul. You are always fun to be around and that is why people in the group flock to you. Never change and always feel confident in the amazing woman you have grown to be. I love you Vicky!

Lily – I am so glad I got to meet you this summer. You are quietly one of the funniest campers in the group and I can always count on you to cheer me up. You have an intelligent, strong, confident head on your shoulders and that is something I think a lot of people admire. Keep coming back, the group needs someone like you! I love you Lily!

Evin – I don't know where to start with you, Ev! You are so willing to help and lend a hand without any recognition. I can always count on you to cheer me up, keep me level headed, and get the group ready or excited for literally anything. A genuinely great person inside and out! I would tell you to keep coming back but I know I don't need to tell you that! I love you Evin!

Woody – The most optimistic camper I have ever met even in the worst scenarios. You have done amazing all summer even with a hurt knee. I have never seen you negative and your positive energy radiates to everyone in camp. You are the best kind of friend to have and everyone in the group appreciates that. I love you Sarah!

BARDS

Shelby – I can still remember the first day meeting you. Even though you were homesick in the beginning, you stuck through it and I am so proud of you for that! No one would ever think it was your first year because you fit in perfectly with the group. You were the missing piece to the puzzle that the Bards were lucky to find. Keep coming back! I love you Shelbs!

Kike – I can honestly say that I have never met a more polite, caring camper than you. Even though it is your first year at camp you have meshed into the flow of this crazy group with ease! Keep coming back because the girls and the counselors cherish your friendship. Love you Kike!

Neema – I am so glad I got to be your counselor again this summer! Your positive energy and smile makes everybody happy to be around you. You have such a bounce-back attitude and absolutely nothing can bring you down. I love you Neema!

Maat – The whole energy of the group picked up once you arrived. I can honestly say you are one of the most hilarious and most inviting people I have ever been around. It has been such a pleasure to watch you mature through the ranks of Robin Hood. You have a sweet and sensitive side along with a wild, crazy side and both halves make a great person. I love you Maat!

Mikayla – I am so glad I have gotten closer with you this summer. Beyond your amazing athletic abilities, you are such a caring and sweet, valuable friend. You put your heart and soul into all activities and truly love camp. I love you Mikayla!

Talia – I could not be more proud of you this summer. You stuck through everything even when I know you didn't want to and you proved to yourself and the group that you are meant to be at Robin Hood! You grew to love camp and I hope that next summer we get you for all seven weeks! I love you Talia!

Fatima – Watching you with Savannah was one of the biggest privileges I have ever experienced. It just goes to show how great of a friend you are, how much you are willing to help with anything and everything, and how cheerful and loveable you truly are. It was so fun getting to sleep next to you this summer and I can't wait to hang out in Spain! I love you Fatima!

Ava – I had heard so many great things about you before going into this summer and I am so glad I got the chance to get to know you so well. You are sweet hearted and never complained. You were just genuinely happy to be at camp and were willing to do anything within The Realm. My only regret is that you had to leave before the end of the summer, so next year please stay longer! I love you Ava!

Aude – You are secretly so hilarious! I loved getting closer with you this summer and I hope that will only continue. Thanks for being such a kind soul and being a good friend to all of the Bards. I will never forget the night you and Lucia were up so late running around! I love you Aude!

Emily – Forget cuttyhunk! Next summer you must stay all seven weeks! You are very mature for your age and I feel as if I could talk to you about anything. You are so easy going and fun to be around. Keep coming back, I love you Emily!

Lexi – If there is one person I could count on to make me laugh it is you. My favorite days were when you were hilarity on the job chart. From your accents to your impressions, it is a constant, guaranteed good time with you. Stay for longer next summer, please!!! I love you Lex!

Devon – The sweetest girl I have ever met! You are always willing to lend advice or a helping hand, which is an amazing quality to have in a friend. Please keep coming back because the group benefits so much from such a genuine girl like you! I love you Dev! Sophie: You are perhaps one of the easiest girls to talk to ever. You are always willing to help which showed every single time you went to help out at archery. Don't grow up too fast, savor your last moments as a camper! Please keep coming back and getting to know your group more and more. I love you Sophia!

Sophia – Not only are you one of the most talented artists I have ever seen, but you excel at everything you do. You instantly fit into this group with ease and it seemed as if you had been at Robin Hood for a lifetime! Come back next year please! I love you Sophia!

Rafaela – I could always count on you to be a smiling, happy camper. Even though you were only here for two weeks, I feel as if you have been at Robin Hood forever. Next summer please stay longer than two weeks, the group loved having you here! I love you Rafa!

Katie and Becca – I can't thank both of you enough. This summer ran so smoothly because of both of you. You were there whenever I needed anything and everything and for that I am forever grateful. It has been so amazing to get to know both of you and I hope this is just the beginning of our friendship.

BARDS 2013 – I cannot begin to explain how much this summer has meant to me. Watching the majority of you girls grow up from Bow summer has been the best gift I could have ever asked for. I feel like I have known every single one of you for a lifetime and sometimes I forget that you are only fourteen years old. The love you show for each other is astounding and I can honestly say I have never seen a more inclusive, caring, loving group. The Realm is lucky to have you and I know the impact you will make on Robin Hood is never-ending. You are all crazy, wild, individuals that together form the most cohesive, hilarious entity ever. As I sit on my bed writing this, I watch you all together, hanging out, including everyone, with overwhelming bouts of laughter. You are truly at home here and will have 30 bunkmates to call sisters forever. (And I do mean forever.) Never forget your love for camp, each other, and the magic in the trees. Take every moment in because your camper careers will slowly come to an end no matter how many times you wish for time to slow to a stop. I know I don't need to tell you this, but always remember how truly irreplaceable the bonds you share with each other are. Camp will forever be an integral part of your lives, just as you are an integral part of mine. Know that wherever I am in the world, whatever time it is, whatever is on your mind, I am just a phone call away from all of you. You will forever be in my heart, Bards. Thanks again for the best three summers of my life,

Infinite Love,
Diva

...Wanna date?

Duh duh duh duh...SAIL!

Wake up Shires, stop reading CRH Problems, turn off Timeflies, stop causing so many shinanigans, and get ready to look back on the summer of 2013.

Remember when Evie wasn't late for benches, Izzy's voice wasn't cracking, Maia wasn't finding some way to get food, Sam wasn't beasting in a triathlon, Carly was awake by 8:20 am, Lucia wasn't trying to help everybody, Lauren wasn't knocking over everything around her (or people), Alejandra wasn't rocking a middle part, Jen wasn't telling an elaborate story, Nieves wasn't dressed cooler than everyone else, Maddy wasn't writing letters home, Megan wasn't jamming out to her faulty boom box, Cari wasn't being athletic, Marta wasn't unexpectedly killing it in Green and White, and Hannah wasn't twerking? WE DON'T!!!

Remember Opening Day, reuniting with each other as well as meeting the new members of our group. You are such a strong group that reunites as if nothing has changed since last summer, while also letting new friends mesh right in – makes me very proud.

Remember how we never heard revelry in the mornings? But we would wake up to some calming music like "Sail" to get us going in the morning. Then there was triathlon training with Jamie Cole and Abby... lots of swimming, biking, and running, and feeling really good about ourselves and what we were accomplishing. We went so hard everyday up until the triathlon, and we all finished so fast, with Sam getting first place with just over fifty minutes time.

Remember the Outpost with the Arrows, making s'mores around the campfire? We then got a giant game of football going, followed by the pony game that was never ending. Remember the magic show? That was also when Katie Davis convinced all of camp green and white was going to break that night... it seemed like it made sense at the time! Remember the fashion show, with the themes of Egyptian goddesses, circus, cavemen, and Disney princesses, not to mention the staff biblical theme (probably where the idea of Abby being Jesus originated).

Remember the bus ride to West End? There were undoubtedly about thirty hey-lahdee's chanted on that short bus ride to keep us entertained. We then cheered until our voices were shot, and we defeated West End after a very close game. Not to forget the halftime entertainment – the dance circle, and Carly and Hannah twerking in the middle. Then it was Marta's birthday, we went for a late night boat ride to the sandbar. Afterwards, we went back to the bunk and...SURPRISE! McDonald's fries and shakes for everyone (as if we didn't get enough food already). Hannah's birthday soon followed, with a trip to Pizza Barn and then Cozy Corner (even though we were already stuffed, and half of us are lactose intolerant).

Remember the fake commercial about the perfect camper? "Like a good camper, Evie is there!" Remember the 4th of July carnival? Everyone ate way too much, and then went on some questionably dangerous rides... and saw some quality live music by the band Rock Bottom (we got to meet them!). Remember the Bard/Shire/Scribe scavenger hunt in the rain? Ki brought Charlie to the Lodge, winning team gets...CANDY CANTEEN (shocker). Remember the bike ride to Cozy, and it was closed? Instead we decided to venture further, where we got to pet and feed some goats, and then buy some strawberries and space cookies...we're still alive! Remember when we weren't eating Dunkin Donuts on the porch (always...), and winning the volleyball tournament?

Remember our awesome dance to "Bad Girls" for the talent show? Our outfits definitely made it cool – genie pants with some bling. The Jesus part was definitely a flop, but we had a good laugh about it. Remember our kickboxing sessions led by Abby on the basketball court, followed by our shloop runs? We go hard! We went especially hard on the hike up "Mount Potash." Some of you weren't too happy about the hike (Lucia), and we couldn't even find the tram to go back down! Abby's back was killing her on the way down because she packed too much extra water in her bag, and Hannah thought it was hilarious. Remember the crazy thunderstorm during barn time? We toughed it out and ran back in the pouring rain, at least we didn't have to shower that night!

Remember Beach Day? Everyone went in the water which felt so warm this year, and everybody bought so much food that they had to eat before they got on the bus to go home. People also were giving some very aggressive S.S.S. gifts. Remember "making party" with the Spanish girls? Parents Visiting Day quickly approached, with a sad goodbye to our four-weekers: Lucia, Nieves, and Maddy, going from fifteen to twelve Shires.

Remember leaving for excursion bright and early, our first stop at Dunkin Donuts. We entertained ourselves on the three-hour drive by blasting Now 17, Pop Mix, and some other fun throwbacks. We finally arrived in Boston, our first destination was Faneuil Hall for some food and shopping. Next was the Duck Tour, which let us see all of Boston from the land and in the water. After checking into our awesome hotel, we went back downtown for dinner at Fire and Ice (delicious). Our first morning in Boston was spent at the Aquarium. Alejandra and Marta were teaching us how to say the names of different fish in Spanish, making our trip that much more educational. Our next stop was the Shun Hei gift shop. Still not sure if they knew any English, but they had some high quality designer bags... then we broke a sweat at Sky Zone! Playing lots of dodge ball and doing lots of flips on all of the trampolines was enough exercise for the rest of the summer. After freshening up at the hotel, we went for a scrumptious dinner at Rock Bottom, in preparation for our viewing of "THE LION KING 3!" Just kidding! We had great seats at the Blue Man Group show. Some of us were convinced one of them was Andrew Cristal...

"Wait, I know what it is...it's SOUR CREAM!" "What the..." Okay Maia, not quite sure what you were dreaming about that night at the hotel. Our second morning was spent at the John F. Kennedy Library – we love history! Lauren learned that JFK was indeed assassinated, and that he was hot! Who knew? It then started pouring as we headed to Newbury Street, so we drove back to the hotel. We got some food to bring back to the hotel, where we had a party in the lobby. The rain eventually cleared up, and we got some shopping in before we went to the Red Sox game. We finally made it into Fenway Park...after walking around it a few times. We made sure everyone around us knew we were from Camp Robin Hood by singing some Robin Hoods and doing some dining hall cheers. We definitely got the crowd pepped up! After the game, we met up with the Foresters at the arcade, where we pooled our tickets together and won a stuffed snake (which seemed really cool at the time). After our third and last night at the hotel, we headed off to splash around at Water Country before going back home.

SHIRES

We were barely back at camp for three hours before we heard the buzz of helicopters that broke Green and White. The helicopter went from the waterfront to the far far field, where the eight or so judges arrived dramatically on a fire engine. That night, after voting on camper captains and co's, counselor captains were announced – Andrew and Kruse leading the mighty White Royalty vs. James and Katie leading the great Green Monsters. After the bean pick the following morning, the teams were revealed: captain Evie with co captain Carly leading Sam, Jen, Maia, and Marta on the green vs. captain Cari and co captain Izzy leading Hannah, Lauren, and Megan on the white team.

Before basketball, our first green and white event, we had a sad goodbye to Alejandra, bringing us down to eleven shires – but the pulse of Green and White kept things moving and full of energy. Every game was so close and intense, even bocce! The war ended with a score of 3,315 for the green team and 3,313 for the white, a margin of 2 points making it the closest color war in Robin Hood history.

Then, things finally unwound after Green and White. We got to have a relaxing canoe trip to the Marina and buy some junk food, before Carly, Evie and Cari capsized theirs on the way back and Danny had to turn around (tacked on an extra half hour). Luckily, nobody got burned besides Jordan. Remember the shaving cream fight in the shower house that made its way to the girl's camp field? Remember playing thumper and board games at the ODT, having a "flipping good time," in the words of Jordan. Izzy tripped over a root on the way back up from the ODT, but she shook it off because the next day we went out for her birthday! A dinner at Panda Garden and seeing Despicable Me 2 was a good night. Remember group leader swap, and we had Andrew Cristal? Remember the midnight stroll? This summer has been nothing but craziness!

Evie – You are so camp. Everything you do, you do with everything you have. If something is not going well, you know how to turn things around and have a good time. You care about everyone equally and are such a huge part of this group. The combination of athleticism and fellowship that you have keeps the group strong. Don't ever change, and let camp bring out the true you.

Maia – You are your own person. You do your own thing and don't take yourself too seriously. You know how to be independent and carefree while still having a huge heart and being a good friend. When someone has a problem, you help them realize that at camp, nothing is that big a deal and to just shake it off, which is good because time at camp is too precious to waste. Camp loves you.

Megan – Your pep and spirit are irreplaceable. No matter what the activity is, you always have a positive attitude that keeps the rest of the group motivated. The energy you emanate is constant; camp needs people like you. You do everything that's asked of you with no complaints and with a smile. If you lose a game, you walk away happy with your effort, not upset because you didn't win. Don't ever change.

Lucia – Your warm-heartedness is truly admirable. You care about every single member of the group so much and are selfless. When anyone needs help, they can rely on you, and that's a great quality to have. You entered a group of girls that are bonded so tightly and you immediately fit in with ease. That is so impressive, we are all in love with you; please come back next year as a Scribe.

Cari – The love and devotion you have towards camp is strong, and your bonds with the others in your group are even stronger. Your attitude about camp rubs off onto the rest of the group. You know how to be a good competitor, and showed it off during Green and White. You know how to be intense and play well, but also be a good sport and show humility. You're a reliable friend that this group needs.

Lauren – You are quietly one of the most hilarious people in The Realm, even though you don't try to be. You're constantly smiling or laughing (and wheezing a little bit) and make everyone else around you laugh. You're never afraid to be a little crazy and laugh at yourself every now and then. Even though you'll always be a spaz, you've grown so much this past summer and will make a terrific Scribe next year.

Carly – You are the definition of chill. You make the most of camp because the activities are never as important as the people you are doing them with. Your smile is contagious and so is your confidence. Your constant state of happiness is something to be jealous of. Camp allows you to be yourself, take full advantage of it.

Marta – I am so glad you returned for a second summer, and hopefully many more to come. You fully participate in every activity and integrate yourself well into the group, being friends equally with everybody. You are such a sweetheart and are respectful to counselors and others in your group. We'd love for you to come back as a Scribe.

Maddy – I am so happy that you came this summer, despite your injury – it just goes to show how much you love this place (and this place loves you). You are a very balanced and levelheaded girl that helps keep this group grounded. You have so much class and intellect that you bring to the group, while still letting camp bring out the crazy side that you know you have.

Hannah – You are the most easy going person I've ever met. You keep the group levelheaded when things get out of hand. You have had a great camper career thus far and will thrive in your Scribe summer as a leader of girls camp. You are beautiful inside and out, and you are so honest and true to yourself. You are weirdly good at everything you do and are so humble.

Izzy – You were born to be a leader. You basically help to run this group, and do so without overpowering anyone. You help keep things organized and keep the group moving, but give everyone an equal chance to lead. You have such a big heart and are sensitive to the feelings of those around you. When someone is down, you know how to be there for them – we all love you.

Nieves – The group remembered you as a sweet, shy Bow and couldn't have been more thrilled that you returned this summer. You quickly got back in the groove of camp and reunited with old friends that you hadn't seen for a few years. You are so much cooler than you realize, and you're a secret weapon when it comes to sports (especially volleyball). You are special to camp; keep in touch and keep coming back.

Sam – You are one of the most genuine people to walk The Realm. You care about every person you meet and will do anything that anyone asks of you. You help people without trying to gain recognition for it. You are more beautiful than you will ever know. Keep coming back, and let camp give you the confidence to feel like the incredible person that everyone already knows you are.

Alejandra – You are absolutely hysterical. From your facial expressions when playing tennis to your impression of your own accent, you never fail to make me laugh. You are so camp-cool – your style, your attitude, everything you do is camp. Keep taking The Realm by storm with your coolness. I can't wait to see you shine as a Scribe next summer and lead girls camp.

Jen – You are so crazy and I love it. You are like the cheerleader of the group (you have the voice for it). You never take things too seriously and do things in your own style. A smile is permanently planted on your face, and that's the way it should be for the two months a year that we get to spend in this place. You're so confident and so energetic all of the time, and keep the group moving at a good pace.

Jordan, Ciel & Alexis – You all are amazing staff members that I hope return in the future because you were great to work with, and the campers love you. Not only did we have a sick staff, we also all gained friendships that I will value for the rest of my life. We all have different brains that were creative and worked well together to help give the Shires a great summer. Thank you for everything you've done.

Shires of 2013 – Thank you all so much for helping me have one of the best summers of my life. You all took me right in and made me feel at home. Girls Camp looks up to you and I can't wait to see you all shine next summer as Scribes. The bonds you girls share is so admirable, and will undoubtedly last you a lifetime. I've watched you girls grow up starting as MowJows when I was in my own group, all the way up to your Shire year as your Group Leader. I feel as if I am truly part of two groups. If there is one last piece of advice to give you girls, it is to keep the traditions of camp alive. Dance to every song in the dining hall, jump off the tower ten times in a row, swing for trees (even though we know we can't hit them), and most importantly, keep coming back to camp forever.

Remember When....

When Susie hit Haley with the ball very hard during Gaga, when we weren't squeegeeing, Haley thought coconuts were nuts, when Kruse asked that kid what his favorite cereal was, when Hannah thought observant started with an A, when we sped up the alma mater so we could finish if I were a boy, when we did an odds are, when we made those inappropriately named brownies, PVD drama session, Susie got banned from canoeing during island swim, Ki got most improved for swimming (again...), our last night in the grandstand, we played staff question and answer, New York!, you passed down your Shire tradition, we had outrageous dance parties, when Molly had a tan line, when we had a high speed golf cart race with Dallas, when Ki got hit with the softball...twice, SSS 2013, our many road trips, Ki sleeping with her eyes open, our last evening activity scavenger hunt, the last boat ride of the summer.

Like your Scribe song says...

there is honestly no combination of words I could put on this page of the yearbook to sum up the Scribes of 2013. But let's be real, if I didn't write anything this page would be empty so I guess I should try. So Scribbles of 2013 evacuate the dance floor, drop that thun thun, stop eating Cheez-its and for once listen to me.

Here we go....

Coming into the summer I was very apprehensive about being a group leader. I was even more apprehensive when I first learned I would be leading the Scribes. This uneasiness quickly faded as I met each and every one of you. You all made me feel so welcomed and so loved, and for that I cannot thank you enough. Everyone made fun of our small group of 7, but we quickly showed them how mighty we were.

Looking back I can say hands down we had a perfect summer. It took us a while to reach full capacity with Montana making a fashionably late entrance, and Molly soon to follow. Then there was Maddy who graced us with her wonderful presence for the peak of the summer. With everyone present, we had a whopping 7 in our group. You would think we would have mastered count off, but no. Rather than work on it we simply gave up on it.

We started the summer with an evening activity that obviously consisted of lots of food, and laughing so hard I almost peed my pants...again. Our first activity of the summer was drama. I was not sure if you girls were going to participate, but you quickly proved me wrong once again. I haven't laughed so hard, or acted so silly, in a long time. This was the first moment I really saw how great, and ridiculous, of a summer we were about to have together.

Although we didn't always go to our planned activities, we always managed to have a great time wherever we were. We had such a fun time playing volleyball, which you all rock at! My favorite activity, and I know you can all agree with me, was tubing and waterskiing. Remember how many times we went to mountain biking? I really enjoyed our game of kickball with the Tumblers at the end of the summer. Especially when we decided to throw in the dizzy bat component at the end. Remember when we went to riflery that one time and stole Bloch's Sprite?

The fourth of July was one of the most fun filled days we shared together. It was impressive to see how well you planned the day's events all by yourselves. You worked amazingly as a group and made the day a success. I loved our matching Walmart USA t-shirts, and watching Susie try to get all of the cotton candy sugar off of her after the day was over.

Speaking of Walmart, remember the hundreds of trips we took there? The first time you guys came back to the van with two huge big joe chairs, two razor scooters and a lava lamp. I would make fun of you now, but I also came back from a day off with a fish (named JASMINE not Tianna) so I guess we are even. I love how you guys can take something as simple as going to Walmart and make it such a memorable time. For instance when we went to Starbucks and you all decided to say different names. I think Montana actually thought her name was Sparkle. Susie definitely was trying to be the Hunter to my Beth. Our cup collection was unsuccessful, but it was a good laugh.

Your Scribe song and dance were more than impressive! I am still amazed that you managed to write your song in only a few days. You really put your heart and soul into every word. Your dance was simply amazing. What a great idea to use glow sticks taped to your body. I can't believe we got asked to film it for that contest. Fingers crossed we win! I am not going to say taping those glow sticks all over your bodies three times was fun, but it was definitely a good laugh.

One of our biggest feats of the summer was climbing Mount Katahdin in Maine. I am so proud of you all for making it to the top and for remembering your lunches. It was a long hike, especially since we went the wrong way for a good hour. Nacho expressed how we felt best. We then got to go camping for a few days, and although camping is not all of your fortes, we still had a blast. Remember when you all tried to swim near me and do dolphin dives? Or when Hannah went all Trip Staff on us and cooked every meal? Oh and remember when Sue thought it would be hilarious to tip my canoe in the middle of the pond? She then tried to get back in it, but fell out right on my face. Thank you for making me swim all the way back to shore guys.

We ended the summer with an amazing trip to Cape Cod with the Saxons, Jamie and DC. The surfing lesson was a blast, although I wish we had seen DC give it a go. Then we had a lovely girls dinner with Jamie, before which we all went to a middle school and played on the playground. Sorry Sue that you got kicked off the baby swing. I loved going to Boston the last night even though it took me years to find parking. Fire and Ice was so cool, especially when we pretended it was Hannah's birthday once again.

Shout outs...

Becca – I have loved getting to know you this summer. You are one of the most genuine people I have ever met. You really do not have a mean bone in your body. Your love for camp radiates so bright, and I hope you never lose that. You have done such a great job aiding with other groups this year and you are going to make a phenomenal counselor next year. You have made so many younger girls enjoy their time at camp and start to love it just like you do. Love you, you sassy girl you.

Hannah – I have loved seeing you grow this summer. I still don't believe this is only your third summer at camp because you fit in so perfectly. I also don't believe that you hardly talked at camp before this summer. You are such a sweet and loving person. You may have a soda addiction, and when I say may I mean you do. You also may have an addiction to eating at least one bite of every food someone has, but that is a different story. I hope someday I can be your nanny and we can chill and snuggle and eat Cheez-its, but I guess we could also just do that next summer.

Ki – You possess so many great qualities, especially when it comes to leadership. I will never forget watching you go out of your way to cheer on your teammates during Green and White track meet who were falling far behind in a race. You were a force to be reckoned with this summer in more ways than one. You are going to be such a good counselor next year, and I am pumped to be on staff with you. You also are one of the best dancers I have ever met. I wish you didn't bring that bunny mask to camp though because it really scares me a lot.

Maddy – Although you came a little late this summer, I feel like I know you just as well as everyone else. You have such a fun and positive personality. You make me smile and want to be more positive just by being around you. I loved that the moment we met you hugged me like we knew each other. Before you came, all I knew about you was that you were a Green and White star, and you quickly proved that to be true.

Molly – You may be quiet sometimes, but you are such a bubbly and gregarious person. Thank you for always laughing at my jokes, or at least laughing at me laughing at my own jokes. Glad the sweatpants finally came... just kidding! You are such a great athlete and I am very impressed by just how many athletic talents you possess. I hope you have a great year!

Monty – Loved sleeping next to you all summer. I'm not really sure whose area had more pink. I really admire your perseverance and strong character. I hope you know how strong of a person you are Monty. Thank you for always having a good attitude. I am so glad that I got to know you and am so excited to be on staff with you next year.

Susie – Please can you for once hear what I am saying? You said this in your speech, but it's weird that we just got to know each other this summer. I feel like I have known you for way longer than just a summer. You are such a fun person to be around. Thank you for always listening to me and doing what I said... even if it took you a long time to actually hear me. I hope you have a great year and I can't wait to see you next year.

Caoimhe – I spelled it correctly right? I hope you enjoyed your first summer at camp! I was very shocked when I first met you and you said you wanted the Scribes, but I was so happy to add you to my staff. You are such a cool person and added so much personality to the group. You did a wonderful job with dance this year. Thank you very much for all you did this summer.

Haley – I am glad that I got to have you on my staff, and I know the Scribes were very happy as well. You were a perfect addition to the group. You have such a fun loving personality and it really added a lot of positivity to our group. I wish you would have been able to stay longer, but I wish you the best in the coming days.

Kruse – I was so lucky to have you on my staff this year. I would not have been able to do this without you. You are such a role model to everyone in Girls Camp, and especially to me. You have taught me so much about camp and all of the traditions that are involved. You have made me love camp just as much as you do. Thank you for all you have done for me and for the Scribes this summer.

Scribes of 2013 – Thank you for welcoming me into your tiny, but mighty group. I could not have pictured a better summer if I tried. You all should be so proud of what you did this summer. You lead Girls Camp with immense passion just like you promised you would. I hope you see how much you are looked up to and admired by all of Girls Camp. Your speeches were unforgettable and the advice you passed down was nothing but perfect. You all are so different, but together you make an unstoppable group. I cannot wait to be on staff with you all. Watching you aide this summer was amazing and you all should be proud of the job you did. I love you all so much and cannot wait to spend more time with you. You are amazing people and I wish you the best of luck in the coming years.

SPECIAL EVENTS – EXCURSIONS

Along with Green and White,

group excursions are the most highly anticipated event of the second half of the summer. This year we focused on both extending the trips, as well as incorporating many fun-filled activities for campers and staff to build friendships and make lasting memories, while away from camp together.

Tumblers/Jesters – The girls started off their trip with a great day at Storyland theme park in Glen, NH and after a campfire dinner, traveled into North Conway for an evening showing of Despicable Me 2. Cranmore Mountain Adventure Park was the highlight of the trip, including a bungee trampoline, aerial adventure ropes course, summer tubing, and much more!

Tinkers/Pagers/Jugglers/Squires – The boys traveled to North Conway where they enjoyed Ben and Jerry's ice cream, Zeb's General Store and exciting rides at Storyland. They loved the day at Cranmore Mountain Park on the ropes course, Spider Mountain, Soaring Eagle and a delicious local pizza lunch!

Bows – Traveling to the Lakes Region of central New Hampshire, the Bow campers visited Monkey Trunks Aerial Adventure Park swinging along the high ropes course. They putt-putted their way through Pirate's Cove and enjoyed a movie under the stars of a drive-in theater. The girls visited Liquid Planet Water Park and Funspot bowling before returning to The Realm.

Archers – Cooling off at Liquid Planet Water Park started the boys off on their adventure. They also enjoyed watching a movie outside at the Weirs Beach Drive-in theater their first night. After waking up and cooking breakfast together, they climbed the ropes course at Monkey Trunks Aerial Adventure Park. They satisfied their sweet tooth at the Kellerhaus ice cream buffet before go-karting and bowling the afternoon away.

Quills – The Quills headed north for three days of quality time together. After a day at Attitash Mountain's summer park, they enjoyed a campfire dinner and headed out for a night safari in search of New Hampshire moose! They lounged on the beach of Echo

Lake State Park and played some miniature golf in North Conway at Pirate's Cove. The traditional Chinese buffet at Panda Garden and a movie rounded out their second day together. They headed south for Water Country Water Park for some fun in the sun to wrap up their time together.

Yeomen – After being the first group to travel the Auto Road of Mount Washington to its summit, they enjoyed an afternoon of whitewater kayaking. The movies, miniature golf, and Attitash Adventure Park were more highlights of their trip together. They concluded with a day in the sun at Portsmouth's Water Country Water Park!

Arrows – Despite some rainy weather, the Arrows enjoyed three days of fun in southern New Hampshire. They were surprised by late-night ice-skating with the Lancers and enjoyed the rink while it was closed to the public. Sky Zone indoor trampoline park was a morning of fun while the girls jumped and dodged balls together. Laser tag, Chinese, and a sailboat ride on the Piscataqua River added to the excitement on their travels together.

Lancers – The Lancers started out their trip with a bang at the OSG Paintball facility in southern NH. They also enjoyed a movie, an indoor water park (due to the rain!) and a night at the minor league NH Fisher Cats baseball game. Their last day provided them with a trip on the open sea, fishing with Al Gauron Fishing Charter.

Bards/Friars – The Bards and Friars traveled to western Massachusetts for their four-day excursion. The groups stopped in Portsmouth, NH on their way down where the boys enjoyed an all-you-can-eat pizza buffet at the Portsmouth Gas Light Co. restaurant, while the girls visited Hampton Beach for a morning of sun and sand. They continued their trip at the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame and settling in to the campgrounds. On day two, they had an action-packed day of fun at Six Flags New England and Hurricane Harbor Water Park. We sent them down the Deerfield River with Moxie Outdoor Adventures to ride the rapids while whitewater rafting. Bowling, movies, dinners out to eat, and campfires were also included in their time together. The Friars rounded out their trip with a day at OSG Paintball and the Bards enjoyed some turbo shopping in southern NH.

Shires/Foresters – The Shires and Foresters visited Boston, Massachusetts on their excursion. They started off at Faneuil Hall for lunch followed by an afternoon Boston Duck Tour sightseeing the city by land and water. They concluded their first night together with a late dinner at Fire and Ice. While staying in hotels, the groups were able to see what Boston had to offer. The Shires had a morning at the New England Aquarium while the Foresters visited the John F. Kennedy Museum and Library. Both groups met up at Sky Zone indoor trampoline park for an afternoon of dodge ball and jumping. Their second night the boys saw the Boston Red Sox play the Tampa Bay Rays while the girls saw the incredible performance of a Blue Man Group show. On day three, the Shires visited the JFK Library and Museum while the Foresters traveled to Patriots' Gillette Stadium and CBS Scene. That night they swapped activities, enjoyed the Red Sox and Blue Man Group. On their final day of excursion, both groups headed back to NH and stopped at Water Country Water Park on their way to Robin Hood. What a busy and fun-filled trip!

Saxons/Scribes – The culminating excursion for campers brings them to Cape Cod, Massachusetts, where David and Jamie escort them on an easy-going three-day excursion. While on the Cape this year, they took surfing lessons on a beautiful beach, shopped in the quaint towns of Wellfleet and Provincetown, and watched a minor-league baseball game. In addition, they relaxed in the comforts of lodging at an upscale hotel while enjoying other activities such as: mini-golf, go-karting, and on their last night, a delicious dinner together at Fire and Ice. It was a memorable way to conclude their last excursion as campers.

GREEN & WHITE SONGS – GREEN

Born to Run

In the day we sweat it out on the fields
Of Robin Hood living the dream
And tonight we're one step closer to glory
A victory for green!

Can't contain our monster pride
Untamed, fear injecting
We're stomping all over the white

Baby this war rips the robes from your back
It's a death trap, it's a monster bash better get out, never come back in
Cause freaks like us, monsters we were born to win!

White Royalty, you could have been our friends
But we crushed your dreams and visions
Hiding under your beds, we got into your heads
And ravaged through your kingdom

Our bloodline runs deep in the trees
We fight for the Realm
Till every single monster runs free

Our spirits could never be higher
Even in the lake we were still on fire
Judges you know how it feels
You can see that green is wild
Now you know that monsters are real

Together Monsters we conquered those classists
We loved it with all of the madness in our soul
Tomorrow noon, we'll make amends
We'll all hold hands
But we'll never forget where we've been Oh!
Cuz freaks like us, monsters we were born to win!

Freaks like us, monsters we were born to win!

I and Love and You

When I was younger I was told
There'd be a time when I grew old
The summer skies that fought the cold
Would one day fade away

And all at once, I came to see
My future became clear to me
I'd make my life into a tree
And let my love grow tall

Freedom, Freedom take me in
With grateful hearts our voices sing
You gave us all you had to give
Our friends, ourselves, our everything

Our family tree it reaches high
As generations pass us by Traditions held will never die
Forever in our hearts
Forever in our home

Those magic days we laughed and cried
And counted shooting stars at night
The golden sun, blue water skies
The pulse of Green and White

Freedom, Freedom take me in
With grateful hearts our voices sing
You gave us all you had to give
Our friends, ourselves, our everything

When summer comes you'll hear us say
We are headed home
The person that I am today
I never would have known

Impervious to time and age
A Dream that set my world in place
And we will ever sing thy praise
To thee will ere be true

When summer comes you'll hear us say
We are headed home
We are headed home
Robin Hood's our home

What's My Age Again/ All the Small Things

Broke the war
It was a Wednesday night
The copter soared
It must be Green and White
We started picking beans
We started hearing screams
Sounds like the white's afraid of green

That's about the time Monsters
took the lead
Five days we fought so valiantly
Nobody likes you when you're royalty
What about equality?
James and Katie want it more
DC read the score
Monsters won the war

Our captains come
From California
They bring the heat
Thought we should warn ya
Saxon and Scribe 09
Got along just fine
Together leading this green team

That's about the time the Monsters
took the lead
Five days we fought so valiantly
Nobody likes you when you're royalty
What about equality?
James and Katie want it more
DC read the score
Hear the Monsters roar

[ROOAAARRRRRRRR]

Judges, all know
White's been, dethroned
Take off, your crowns
It's all, over now

Green team
High five [do it]
Live free
Or die

Domination since the break
Tomorrow we will eat our steak

Andy's dream
Alive in this team
We scared off the white
And won tonight

Andy's dream
Alive in this team
We scared off the white
And won tonight!

WHITE – GREEN & WHITE SONGS

100 Years

I'm laying here for a moment
The stars look brighter than ever
And I'm just dreaming
Knowing this day will slip away
Talking to you for a moment
The sun feels warmer than ever
I'm just here breathing
Knowing the light must soon fade

Chorus:

10 months I'm apart from you
No time to buy just time to lose
Just stand still,
Take in the air, we know it's not fair
That we only have so many years for this
Let's reminisce for a moment
To all the laughs that we shared you and I Just feeling
Memories made will stay forever
I'm waiting here for a moment
To see your face in the place that we love
Just dreaming
Hoping our time will last forever

Bard/Friar Up:

8 years old, still time for you
Time for us to guide you through Just hold on,
Don't let the moment slip away

Arrow/Lancer Down:

15, let us learn from you
Learn what makes this place so true
Just teach us,
So much to gain, we want to remain

Everyone:

'Cause we only have so many years for this
We can't move on
Suddenly were gone
In the blink of an eye
Camper days they just fly
We want nothing more, to never move on
I linger here for a moment,
It's cold outside and I know that it's time
I'm leaving
Know that my heart will stay forever

Chorus:

Next 10 months, I long for you
No time to buy, just time to lose
Just waiting
Speed up the pace, to get back to that place

Junior Camp:

Cause we only have so many years of this

Senior Camp:

Wish we had more years here to be kids

Staff:

We know this is the place that we will miss

Everyone:

Cause we only have so many years for this

Save Tonight

Go on and close the curtains
Tally up the score for white
Royalty, looking mighty fine
We've won it tonight

Well we know White's dominating
And how we wish - we wish it were close
Judges (pause) can't we all agree
The Monsters met their misery

Chorus:

Royalty, has ruled since it begun
Come tomorrow, these five days will be done
James and Katie, we hope you've had your fun
Watch the Throne, the white team has won

On the fields and in the water
Royalty has made green bow
All five days have been a slaughter
Go ahead and end it now

It was easy to get ahead
We aint scared of what's beneath the bed
'Cause Green Team's Mike Wozowski
And Monsters Inc was rated G

Chorus

Kruse is our perfect Queen
King Cristal keeps it polite and clean
The White Team is a royal flush hush
Our crowns and swords were just too much

Chorus

Royal Blood Lives On
The Kingdom Carries on
The White Team has won
THE WHITE TEAM HAS WON

[select few only]

1985

White team took it all
From skits to basketball
Loyal to the crown, we took the Green team down
We knew we're Royalty, when we first picked the bean
Rulers of the land, Monsters have been banned

Where did Diva's group go? James wants to be Ted
No more cousins left, the deuce will soon be dead
The White has reigned supreme with Cristal and Kruse
We live the Royal life, Monsters-Don't Scare-The White

Chorus:

It's our kingdom, not threatened, royals always reppin'
Back when Cristal met Kruse
Cookies still on PVD
These two kids, from '02, now rule the realm before you
The Green Team put up a fight
We're the, we're the, we're the Royal White

Diva loves the bards,
Newmy loves to tweet
What they have in common,
Both will soon be beat
We could not hear the roar
Inside our castle doors
Dick please read the score,
We know it is our war

Volleyball in dirt, we call it the grass,
Sunset Instagrams, CRH hilarious
Happy our cabins, became screen free
Whatever happened to platters, peanuts, and silence at the meals

Chorus

Our kingdom, not threatened, royals always reppin'
Back when Cristal met Kruse
Cookies still on PVD
These two kids, from '02, now rule the realm before you
The Green Team put up a fight
The Royal, Royal, Royal Wins Tonight

As always, with Parents Visiting Day out of the way, G&W fever struck with a vengeance.

However, with a few groups out on their excursions, the general opinion was that we wouldn't see a break until all had returned. And so it was, that on Wednesday July 24 the last of the travelling groups rolled back into camp in the late afternoon. The tension was tangible. Cookout came, and went. Just as groups were settling into an evening activity, fire truck sirens were heard coming from the infirmary area, followed by the thundering of an approaching helicopter. There was a moment's confusion, before all rushed to the waterfront to watch this helicopter make some low passes before heading towards the far field with everyone in hot pursuit. Here it landed, and out stepped DC and Jamie, resplendent in their Green and White attire. Meanwhile, the aforementioned fire truck had made its way through camp bearing our judges, and came to rest by the grandstand soccer field.
And so began Green and White 2013.

Groups were dismissed back to their cabins to begin their elections of captains and co-captains. Following that process, we gathered in the theatre to recognise those campers in each group who had been elected by their peers. Then the excitement really rose as DC announced the 4 counselor captains. This year's competition would be lead by Andrew Cristal, Katie Davis, Katie Kruse and James Newmyer.

The next morning we were up bright and early for the Jellybean Ceremony, which would determine which team each camper and staff member would be on. The beans determined that James and Katie D would lead the Green, and Andrew and Katie K would lead the White.

Day One

We went straight into group activities following breakfast, which saw the White team off to a flyer, taking the majority of events. White continued to dominate in the afternoon, and it was beginning to look like a one sided contest. The evening staff volleyball games evened themselves out, while Green edged a very close Cracker eating contest. Day One ended with White in a commanding 302 point lead.

GREEN 452, WHITE 754

Day Two

Green needed a big morning Swim Meet to restore confidence, but White stretched their lead by taking the meet by 27 points, and it was looking ominous for the Green. They did manage to gnaw away at the lead through the afternoon. Male staff soccer went to White while Green took the girls. Junior camp Spelling Bee was split, while Green took Senior Geography Bee. Thus the Green team had minimized the gap by the end of the day, cutting White's lead slightly to 284 points.

Day Three

While it was White that took the Track Meet by 45, the rest of the day belonged to the Green team. A big Green rest hour was followed by Green taking all 60 points in the Junior Sandcastle building. Again the evening staff events, male and female basketball, evened themselves out. So the comeback was on the cards – White's lead was now cut to 169.

GREEN 2042, WHITE 2211

Day Four

Day Four is Regatta day by tradition. However, there were plenty of other activities going on alongside this. Junior Camp regatta went to White by 31, while the Senior Camp was won by Green by 15 points. Other activities were pretty even, so by the end of the day White had stretched their lead again, although not by much. The margin was now 185.

GREEN 2577, WHITE 2762

Day Four also sees the presentation of each team's flag. Both teams put on a wonderful presentation to introduce two terrific flags. The flags of the Green Monsters and the White Royalty will grace our Barn Theatre for many years to come.

Day Five

Final Day! And it proved to be an exciting and historic one. Green was determined to close the gap, and with plenty of points still up for grabs, they were fired up to keep the pressure on. They took the morning by 40 points, and just came out on top in the Tug of War by 20 points. While weather curtailed the Giant Relay, it was split, Green also won an exciting Rope Burn. So it really was coming down to Song Night, and the (as yet) unannounced scores for the judged events such as Talent Night, Flags, Nature, Camp Sanitary etc.

Talent Night was split, White took both Flag and Flag Presentation, but Green took the majority of the rest; which set up a crucial Song Night – the margin at this point being only 28 for the White.

Green took Song Night 87–57 to leave us with an incredible final score of:

GREEN – 3315

WHITE – 3313

A margin of only 2 points!

Our closest Green and White prior to this year was in 1974 when there was a margin of 3 points. In 1986 the margin was 6 points. All 3 closest Color Wars have been won by Green.

Who knows how long we will have to wait for a closer one, or even a tie!

Congratulations to EVERYONE involved in this epic Color War. I am sure everyone has learned two valuable lessons:

1. Every point counts! In all walks of life, the contribution of an individual to a greater cause may seem insignificant, but it DOES matter.
2. Always believe – even when the odds seem stacked against you. Just when you think you are down and out, things can and do swing your way.
